U. S. PREPARES TO FORCE DROP IN OIL OUTPUT

Lamont Warns Industry That It Should Put Its House in Order.

ACTION BY CONGRESS IS HELD ALTERNATIVE

Comprehensive Interstate Compact Is Pointed Out as Way to Remedy.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

After five years' study of the petroleum industry, the Federal Government is ready to press for immediate action by the oil and gas producers to eliminate prevailing wasteful operations.

In presenting a broad-guage conservation program to the American Petroleum Institute at Chicago yesterday, Secretary of Commerce Lamont warned that if the industry does not soon set its house in order it may find itself in a crippling legislative strait-jacket.

He urged a new approach to the thorny problem of self-regulation—through a comprehensive interstate compact, such as paved the way for Boulder Dam.

Federal participation in this program also would provide a method for regulating petroleum imports.

Vigorous Cooperation Plan Urged.

Summarizing the conclusions of the Federal Oil Conservation Board, which has been studying the whole problem since 1925, Mr. Lamont emphasized that only a vigorous plan for State and Federal cooperation can cope with the existing problems of the industry.

Congressional approval of this plan would be required, to avoid conflict with the antitrust laws.

"I have every confidence that the industry has, or will develop, the capacity and leadership to recognize its great opportunity and to discharge its equally great responsibility," the Secretary said.

But in any plan agreed upon, he added, "Federal participation, in the long run, is essential for the protection of the consuming public."

In addition to the interstate compact, the seven oil-producing States should institute a new system or regulatory laws, uniform in principle, governing new drilling, pipeline extensions, unit-pool operations and the production of natural gas.

Would Focus Authority.

The principal job of the joint Federal and State body would be to arrive at "an equation of domestic and foreign production and imports." No step can be taken in this direction under existing law, for the enforcing power rests with the several States, while the machinery for international negotiation is exclusively in the hands of the Federal authority. The projected new board would bring these Drought Menaces U. S. Crops Again

Western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas Wheat Is Damaged.

(Associated Press.)

Bright autumnal skies lacking in drenching rains needed for the countryside have brought new black spots of drought to the Nation's map.

Throughout the Southern States and into the Kansas wheat belt, streams are drying, shrubbery withering and forest fires are curling their black smoke upward. Damage to winter wheat in Western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas is becoming serious, the weather bureau said yesterday in placing the condition of wheat at "poor to very poor."

Joseph B. Kincer, weather bureau meteorologist, added that the outlook was not promising, as the normal season for rains in Kansas was almost past.

De Rivera's Son Freed In Spain After Quiz

Madrid, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Juan Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator, was released tonight after he had been held for investigation of charges of anti-Republican activity.

Reports that his arrest resulted from a monarchist plot were exaggerated, Angel Galarza, director of public safety, said. Galarza also denied that the arrest had any connection with "anti-Republican activities" of Commander Francisco Rosales and Andres de las Marias, a priest of the Madrid Cathedral, both of whom were still in jail.

Meeting to Decide Fate Of Indian Conferences

London, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today issued a summons to the Indian round-table minorities committee, to meet Friday in what may be a critical session to determine whether the conference will be continued or abandoned.

It was considered significant that the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi has made no definite engagements in London for any occasions after next week.

G. O. P. Leaders Query Garner on House Rule

(Associated Press.)

The administration wants to know what the Democrats plan to do with the House of Representatives.

That it concedes they will organize the legislative branch became more evident yesterday as Republicans who held much of the power in the last House dropped into talk with John N. Garner, of Texas, Democratic choice for the Speakership.

Among those who sounded out Garner on his legislative program were Tilson, of Connecticut, and Snell, of New York, Republican candidates for the Speakership; Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the last House appropriations committee; Parker, of New York, who guided the Interstate Commerce committee, and Underhill, of Massachusetts, head of the accounts group. Tuesday, Walter Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries, talked with Garner.

Garner withheld comment on the conferences or on what work he had in mind. The committee chairmen of last session, among other things, were asking him for rooms to replace those they will have to give up if Democrats organize.

Some of the Republicans themselves conceded that President Hoover was trying to obtain information to guide him to some extent in his proposals to Congress.

Meanwhile, over in the Senate more weight was attached to the suggestion by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, independent leader, for a $3,000,000,000 road-building program. Two other independents—La Follette, Wisconsin Republican, and Wheeler, Montana Democrat—approved the idea.

La Follette, however, said it should be extended to include needed Federal building construction; Wheeler held the authorization should specify the

TRIAL OF CONTEMPT CHARGE NEAR CLOSE

Machine Guns Guard Pitts as Escape-Attempt Plot Is Reported.

Over repeated objections by Dozier De Vane, counsel for G. Bryan Pitts, the Government moved forward yesterday in presentation of evidence by which it hopes to convict Pitts and "others" of criminal contempt of court for introduction of several score allegedly spurious documents in Pitts' trial a year ago.

At the end of the day the Government's case was complete except for reading into the record Pitts' testimony at his first trial, which will be done today. Since no defense is being made, the trial will end when the Government concludes.

Following reports that a plot was under way to release Pitts, a special detail of police guarded the former broker on his trip between the jail and the courtroom. Special operatives of the Department of Justice armed with machine guns were reported to have been a part of the escort. The defendant laughed when told of the precaution.

Standing on her constitutional rights, Miss Helen L. Schneider, former personal secretary to Pitts, refused to answer questions yesterday when she was put on the stand. Her attorney, Martin F. O'Donoghue, jr., son of the recently appointed District Supreme Court justice, Martin F. O'Donoghue, advised her.

Miss Schneider said that because she was under indictment for perjury in the same case she must decline to answer any questions that might disclose her defense. Justice F. Dickinson Letts, presiding, held that she was within her rights in refusing to answer, and she was excused.

George D. Horning, jr., Wilton J. Lambert and Edmund Toland, attorneys of record in the first trial, testified, but each denied that he knew of the documents until they were actually produced at the trial.

Mr. Lambert said that after Emory L. Coblentz, Frederick banker, had testified in the trial last year, Frank G. Raichle, another defense attorney, and Pitts both assured him the papers introduced with Coblentz testimony were in every way genuine.

To this, Mr. Lambert testified, he replied, "I hope so; otherwise I would withdraw at once from the case."

Following this, experts were employed to examine the papers, and re-

Bank's Head Kills Self, Worried by Interest Cut

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Philip Grove, 65, president of the Sharpsburg, Md., Bank, drowned himself in the Potomac River today, apparently because he was forced to reduce the interest rate on deposits in his bank from 4 to 3½ per cent.

Mr. Grove left two notes on the river bank, one to his wife and the other to the bank, in which he said his action in reducing the interest rate had preyed upon his mind until he "couldn't stand it any longer." Bank officials said Mr. Grove told them he regretted having to reduce the rate, but that he felt the bank had to keep faith with the other banks in this region which had reduced rates.

RITCHIE CANDIDACY TO BLOOM AT FEAST

Will Be Formally Launched at Jackson Day Dinner in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The "wide open secret" of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination is to be brought into the open here January 8 by one of the largest political clubs in Maryland.

Officials of the Concord Democratic Club have announced plans to launch formally the drive of Maryland's four-time governor at its annual Jackson-Day dinner, to which national leaders of the party have been invited, both as speakers and guests.

Announcement of the club's plans was followed by departure of Gov. Ritchie for New York on the second speaking trip in as many weeks. He was accompanied by Robert B. Ennis, president of the Concord Club and one of the most powerful leaders of the party in the State.

One of the first engagements scheduled by the governor was a visit to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential candidate of 1928, in whose favor the Maryland executive withdrew his candidacy at the 1928 convention. Tomorrow Gov. Ritchie and Mr. Ennis will be joined by Howard Bruce, former Democatic national committeeman for Maryland.

Gov. Ritchie had three addresses scheduled for New York. Tonight he was scheduled to talk before the annual reunion of the United States war industries board of which he was general counsel, tomorrow night at the Links Club and Friday night at the Academy of Political Science.

Returning to Maryland, the Governor will go to Pittsburgh Sunday, where on Monday he is to address the international bituminous coal conference. The jaunt followed one of last week which took him to New York, Boston and Providence.

On these trips Gov. Ritchie, with his lieutenants, have been conferring

Merger Halves All Italian Ship Lines

Boats to America Placed Under Single Concern Called Italia.

Rome, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A double steamship merger involving all the principal Italian lines and designed to coordinate sailings and permit a wider range of activities was officially announced today.

The three big lines operating between Italy and America—the Lloyd Sabaudo, Navigazione Generale Italiana and Cosulich—are joined in one company called, "Italia," and lines operating in the Mediterranean are merged under the Lloyd Triestino banner.

"Italia" will have headquarters at Genoa and Lloyd Triestino at Trieste. All the "Conte" boats, including the 48,000-ton Conte Di Savoia recently launched at Trieste, will be included in the giant "Italia" fleet, as well as the 47,000-ton Rex, recently launched by N. G. I. for the New York run.

CAPITAL HONORS A. E. F. MEMORY AT CEREMONIES

President Hoover Leads Nation in Armistice Day Observance.

MRS. HOOVER PLACES WREATH ON UNKNOWN

15,000 Persons Unite in V. F. W. Celebration of Paris Night.

Memories of thirteen years ago gripped the Nation's heart yesterday.

Armistice Day linked the country in honoring the gallant dead, praising the heroic living, and dedicating new hope for permanent peace.

Closing the day's events, 15,000 persons last night united in joyous gayety in the Auditorium where the Veterans of Foreign Wars presented "Paris on Armistice Night."

There, a throng renewed the riotous thanksgiving which shook the French city 13 years ago.

President Hoover led the Nation in its commemorations.

Putting aside affairs of state, in a day of honor for the past, he visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, dedicated the temple erected in honor of the city's World War heroes, and visited the historic frigate, "Old Ironsides."

A wreath of laurel was placed on the marble slab at Arlington by the Chief Executive, while the guard on duty stood at salute. The President paused for a moment with bared head and then returned to his party.

Tomb Is Decorated.

He drove to the cemetery with Mrs. Hoover, Gen. John J. Pershing and Secretaries Hurley and Adams. Mrs. Hoover's tribute to the symbolic World War soldier was a bunch of chrysanthemums.

From the Virginia hill the party went to the grove in West Potomac Park, where a white marble temple proclaims the District's reverence and glory in her warriors.

Before thousands, the President appealed for peace and prosperity throughout the world by a combination of adequate defense, arbitration and good will.

The ceremony proper was opened by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d., who introduced Frank B. Noyes, chairman of the memorial committee. After an invocation, John Philip Sousa, famous bandmaster, led the Marine Band in his immortal tribute to the flag, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Taps Is Sounded.

Following the presidential address in acceptance and dedication of the classic tribute, Mrs. George Gordon Seibold, national president of the Gold Star Mothers, left a wreath on the white stone steps, and as the multitude stood with bared heads, taps was sounded by Arthur S. Witcomb, second leader of the band.

The slab of stone which symbolizes every soldier who sacrificed life in

Hoover Football Mate Flies to Capital Dinner

San Francisco, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Charles M. Fickert, Los Angeles attorney, is going to attend President Hoover's football dinner for the 1898 Stanford Team tomorrow night after all. He left here today by airplane and will reach Washington at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

When the other members of the 1898 team, of which President Hoover was manager, left here last Saturday Mr. Fickert pleaded pressure of business. They told him if he would make arrangements to get away and follow them by plane he could have the place of honor at the right of the President.

JAPAN THREATENS TO OCCUPY 2 CITIES IN NORTH MANCHURIA; DAWES TO GO TO PARIS PARLEY

Ambassador Takes Place of Gilbert; Selection Is Unexpected.

STIMSON STATEMENT OFFERS RAY OF HOPE

Secretary Terms Japanese Reply to U. S. Note as Very Conciliatory.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States will send Charles G. Dawes to represent this country at the meeting of the League of Nations Council in Paris next Monday to discuss the method of bringing peace to Manchuria between the warring forces of China and Japan. The American Ambassador to London, will occupy, however, an especially significant position. He will not participate in the actual meetings of the League Council, but he will be in Paris at the time the meetings are held so as to apply the weight of American prestige to any move the league may make.

For the first time in many days, Secretary of State Stimson yesterday allowed himself to be quoted. He declared that after a thorough reading of the Japanese reply to his aide memoire of last week, he finds the answer "a very conciliatory note."

Note Texts Still Secret.

This statement afforded the only ray of hope that has come out of the Manchurian situation in the last fortnight. The reasons for Secretary Stimson's optimism, he declined to make known. Furthermore, despite unofficial advices from Japan that the Tokyo government would approve the publication of all the diplomatic correspondence between the two countries, Secretary Stimson declined to reveal any of the correspondence at this time. He did offer some hope that the texts of the notes will be revealed when the emergency has passed.

The appointment of Ambassador Dawes was altogether unexpected. Prentiss B. Gilbert had represented the United States at the various meetings of the League Council and it has been assumed that he would continue to act in Paris. However, it was felt after the Secretary had discussed the point with President Hoover that an American delegate of more prestige than a consul, even a consul general, was necessary to a matter fraught with so much importance as the Manchurian difficulty.

Direct Connection Avoided.

Furthermore, the real factor in the appointment of Ambassador Dawes is said to be an earnest desire on the part of Secretary Stimson to avoid any too great connection with the League of Nations. Mr. Gilbert has already sat with the delegates and his absence from the place previously reserved for him might create some embarrassment to tht League Council authorities and M. Briand. Ambassador Dawes has, however, no

Infante Alfonso to Try His Fortunes in America

Paris, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Financial reverses brought on by the overthrow of the Bourbon dynasty have reduced the Infante Alfonso d'Orleans, cousin of former King Alfonso, to a point where he has decided to go to America within the next two months to try to recoup his fortune, it was learned today.

A member of the family said the downfall of Alfonso and bad investments previous to that time had drained his resources. His sons have two more years of schooling before they can expect to earn a living and it is possible that the Infante and his wife may remain in America.

Navy to Reduce Fleet Stationed in Far East

Economy and Efficiency Program Is Extended Also to Caribbean Sea; 17 Vessels Will be Decommissioned.

(Associated Press.)

As the ominous growling in Manchuria continued, the Navy yesterday announced reorganization of its Asiatic fleet, but the realignment will result in a reduction of numerical strength.

The Caribbean squadron also will be changed somewhat, said the announcement by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, describing the move as one for efficiency and economy.

Seventeen vessels are to be taken out of commission, and about 1,000 enlisted men and 100 officers are to be displaced to cut expenses some $4,000,000. Admiral Pratt maintained, however, that the move was not connected with the administration's program for the 1933 budget.

For efficiency alone, officials said, the Navy will decommission the old cruiser Rochester, the aircraft tender Jason, six destroyers and nine submarines.

Most of these will come from the Asiatic fleet, which is to be materially curtailed. The changes will go into effect gradually after January 1.

The efficiency, it was indicated, is to result from placing the ships at duties best suited to them, and in saving wear and tear on a few of the destroyers which are not yet obsolescent.

Under the new plan, the special service squadron in the Caribbean will consist of the light cruiser Memphis and the destroyers Philip and Wickes, now attached to the scouting force. The Rochester, present flagship of the squadron, will be disposed of.

The old gunboats Sacramento and Asheville will go to the Orient. These shallow-draft boats are considered

EARLY CLERK VOTING IS AGAINST A. F. OF L.

First Four Locals to Report Say Yes on Withdrawal of Affiliation.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Members of the National Federation of Federal Employes apparently agree with their national officers and executive committee that the time for President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, to have acted in their behalf was at the A. F. of L. convention in Vancouver, when reclassification legislation was disapproved.

It was because of that vote against the Federal employes that Luther C. Steward, president, and Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer, and members of the executive committee submitted to their membership a recommendation to withdraw from affiliation with the Federation of Labor.

Four local unions have reported to national headquarters here. They are locals at Los Angeles, Calif.; Charleston, W. Va.; Phoebus, Va., and Hingham, Mass. Not only did each of the four vote in favor of severing affiliation with the American Federation but supplementary reports showed that every member in each of the locals voted in favor of withdrawal, with exception of two members of

3 Youths, Trapped Upon Trestle, Die

Train Kills One as Others Leap Into River and Are Drowned.

Detroit, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A freight train and a passenger train, coming from opposite directions, swept onto a double-track trestle over River Rouge today and trapped six boys who were walking across the structure.

One of the boys, Oscar Filipart, 10, was killed by the passenger train. Two others—Oscar Schrohk, 11, and Robert Rear, 12, jumped into the river and were drowned. The other three—James Carter, 12; his brother Carl, 8, and Robert Alandt, 12—escaped death by hanging from a railing at the side of the trestle.

The boys were on their way from their homes in the suburb of River Rouge to Woodmere Cemetery to visit the grave of the Filipart boy's mother.

GENERAL AND LEGION HEAD HIT ARMS CUTS

(Associated Press.)

Prediction that the coming Congress will be the battleground of opposing forces in attempts to slash armaments, Henry L. Stevens, jr., national commander of the American Legion, last night said plans are under way to reduce the Navy in 1933 to "the lowest ebb of combat efficiency since prewar days."

Speaking over the same National Broadcasting Co. system in Newark in an Armistice Day program, Gen. John J. Pershing indicted Congress for previous laxity in maintaining the national defense.

He said the United States "should not again be guilty of that lack of military foresight which has always been the weakness of our national lawmakers and which made it wellnigh impossible to train, equip and transport our armies to the battlefront in time to save the allies."

Stevens said the present naval reduction program will contribute to unemployment, as 80 per cent of construction represents labor. Curtailment of naval shipbuilding, he asserted, is in opposition to recommendation of the legion's national defense committee, adopted unanimously at the Detroit convention.

"The coming session of Congress will see the principles of universal service in time of war presented for final acceptance in the fundamental plans for the future defense of this republic and for insurance in maintaining peace," Stevens said. "Equal service for all and special privilege or profit for none in war has been the plea of the veterans of the World War since the earliest days of the American Legion."

Insisting the Army as well as the Navy is below the minimum consis-

Presbyterians in Parley Discuss Organic Union

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Committees representing the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches met here today to discuss technicalities in the proposed organic union of the two denominations. Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, Philadelphia, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., said favorable progress was being made in working out details for the merger.

Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, of Princeton University, is chairman of the Presbyterian committee and Dr. W. J. Reid, Pittsburgh, is head of the United Presbyterian group.

NANKING STUDENTS MAKE WAR DEMAND

Martial Law Is Declared in Hankow and Shanghai; U.S. May Join Patrol.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo (Thursday), Nov. 12 (A.P.).—War office reports that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan was preparing a counter attack against Japanese troops in the Nonni River zone in Manchuria brought an announcement today that if the attack materialized Japan would be compelled to occupy Anganchi and Taitsihar.

Ambassadors Matsudaira at London and Yoshida at Rome have been instructed to proceed to Paris to assist Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese spokesman, in presenting Tokyo's case at the meeting of the League of Nations Council there next Monday.

Soviet Interference.

Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador at London, who has been instructed by his Government to go to Paris for the meeting, is regarded here as friendly to Japan.

London (Thursday), Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Japanese troops were reported advancing north of Taitsihar Tuesday, "possibly with the intention of preventing Soviet interefence" in the trouble between China and Japan, Gen. Mah Chan-Shan is quoted as saying in a Daily Mail dispatch from Harbin.

(Associated Press.)

Japanese troops in the Nonni bridge area in Manchuria have resumed their advance and have bombed and shelled the retiring Chinese army, the Chinese government declared last night in an urgent message to the League of Nations.

The message said the Japanese forces were 20 kilometers along the road to the Chinese controlled town of Tsitsihar.

Girl students attending the Keen School at Tientsin, operated by American Methodist missionaries, were marched to the French concession yesterday to get them out of the danger zone.

Many of them were in a state of collapse from fear and the rigors of the long march when they arrived. The Nankai School at Tientsin also was evacuated.

An unconfirmed report said Japan had issued an ultimatum demanding the removal of all Chinese soldiers from Tientsin. Negotiations between Chinese and Japanese were going on, it was authoritatively said, apparently on the basis of the substitution of a Chinese regime friendly to Japan.

Destroyers Get Orders.

Emperor Hirohito of Japan ordered a fresh brigade of troops and four naval destroyers to Manchuria after word was received of a battle on a new front in which 300 Chinese and 3 Japanese were killed.

Japan's dead to date total 129; China's are estimated at 800 to 1,000.

In Nanking 3,000 students paraded, demanding war with Japan. Martial law was declared in Hankow and Shanghai.

Repairs to the Nonni bridge should be completed before the end of the week, Mukden reported. Meanwhile, China continues massing troops in the vicinity.

Peiping reported Japan's strength in the Nonni region was increased to 4,000 men with 40 field guns and that 6,000 Chinese rebels, friendly to Japan, were nearby.

Importance Is Attached.

London attached much importance to the fact that United States Ambassador Dawes and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, will attend the League of Nations Council meeting on the Manchurian conflict in Paris, November 16.

Secretary of State Stimson announced the receipt of "a very conciliatory note" from Japan.

Hankow, China, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Martial law was declared tonight in preparation for possible disorders growing out of the bitter feeling

Girl Closet Victim Placed In Care of Welfare Board

At a Juvenile Court hearing in Gallinger Hospital yesterday, Judge Kathryn Sellers committed Edith Riley to the care of the Board of Public Welfare for six months.

Francis Riley, her brother, who was responsible for her rescue from the closet prison where her parents were said to have kept her, was given into the custody of his aunt, Mrs. Louise Hall, for a similar period.

Edith will stay at the hospital for treatment and to recover from the effects of her alleged four-year solitary confinement.

Commitment of Francis was made by Judge Seller over strenuous objections by Attorney Bertrand Emerson, representing Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Riley, father and stepmother of the children, who were arrested last week on a charge of cruelty to Edith.

Emerson argued that by living with his aunt, Francis, chief witness against his stepmother, might become influenced against them and prejudice the case should it come before the Supreme Court.

Little Edith, dressed in a blue bathrobe, was brought into the courtroom for a minute that the judge might view her. Stiff-legged she walked in, paused, and walked out.

Later the judge complimented the hospital attaches on the treatment

Blast at Italian Vice Consul's Home May Draw Some of Secret Agents Being Mobilized to Protect Statesman's Visit.

Bombing of the home of the Italian vice consul in Scranton, Pa., yesterday created considerable uneasiness in the State Department, as it was feared as beginning of a series of outbreaks motivated by anarchist and anti-Fascist elements protesting arrival here of Dino Grandi, Italian minister of foreign affairs.

The State Department dispatched a telegram to Gov. Pinchot asking for complete details. If the bomb throwing incident can be traced, it may be necessary to send to Scranton some of the Secret Service men who are being mobilized for the Grandi visit.

Italian Ambassador Giacomo de Martino has been in frequent conference with officials of the State Department regarding various functions which are being arranged as marks of Italian-American friendship. However, the problem which seems to be creating more concern than any purely social one is the matter of Signor Grandi's personal safety.

In this connection it was reported but not confirmed that it is Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., who has been selected to go to New York and make the trip with the Italian foreign minister from the steamship line pier to the Pennsylvania Station.

Final details of the Grandi trip have not yet been arranged, but the Italian Embassy announced yesterday "it concurred in the plans formulated by the State Department as, naturally, the visit is in the hands of the Government acting as host."

Warren Delano Robbins, chief of the Division of Protocol, accompanied by Capt. Gene Regnier, Secretary Stimson's military aid, recently conferred with authorities in New York City on details of the Grandi reception.

Signor Grandi, it appears, had expressed the desire to see President

Whistler's "Venus" Barred From America as Obscene

(United Press.)

A nude "Venus" etched by James McNeil Whistler, famous American artist, was barred from this country as obscene by the Customs Bureau yesterday.

Two etchings by Anders Zorn, noted Swedish artist and a contemporary of Whistler, were also barred.

The ruling was made by Acting Commissioner of Customs Frank Dow. He sustained Customs Collector Anthony Czarnecki, of Chicago, who remarking that "I know a naughty picture when I see one," held the etchings inadmissible and then forwarded them here for final decision.

The etchings were sent to a Chicago firm by art dealers in Frankfort, Germany. Unless a rehearing is granted, the pictures will be returned to Germany.

The Customs Bureau held the pictures were obscene within the meaning of section 305 of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, which says pictures of undraped figures may be brought into this country for art purposes but not for commercial use. The bureau did not go into details of distinction, and answered queries by saying, "They would have been admissible as art but they were intended for commercial purposes."

Were Whistler still alive, he probably would have delighted in the

BISHOP URGES PEACE AT TOMB OF WILSON

U. S. Must Cooperate Says Dr. Freeman at Impressive Cathedral Rites.

America must do her full share in bringing order and peace out of the present world chaos, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman asserted yesterday afternoon in a memorial address made in front of former President Wilson's tomb in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral at the annual commemoration service held there Armistice Day.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the War President, was present at the service, together with a group of President Wilson's relatives, close friends and associates. Gen. Pershing was seated near Mrs. Wilson and the Bethlehem Chapel was filled to overflowing with veterans and the public, the largest congregation ever assembled for this commemoration service.

The commemoration service and sermon was broadcast over a Nation-wide network of stations through the Columbia Broadcasting Service, originating in WMAL, the local station. Many local posts of the American Legion were represented by delegations and their colors at the service, and floral tributes were placed at the tomb at a given point in the service by many representatives of organizations, including the Washington Woodrow Wilson Armistice Day Committee, Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, chairman, under whose auspices the service was held; the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, through Maj. Oliver P. Newman; the District American Legion, Commander Henry L. Stevens, jr; Past Commander Ralph P. O'Neil and Col. John Taylor, commander of the George Washington Post of the American Legion.

Wreath From Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson's wreath of white chrysanthemums and white roses had been placed on the tomb earlier in the day.

In speaking of the need to bring about world peace Bishop Freeman declared "World peace is as much our concern as that of the European powers. 'America for Americans' may be a popular slogan, but in a world such as ours is today we cannot abdicate our responsibility by prosecuting with selfish zeal our own devices and living independently and apart from our neighbors."

The world must unite to cure its economic and other pressing ills, the bishop further pointed out. That the conditions prevailing through the world are irresistibly drawing the United States "even against our will, into the council chamber where world affairs are being determined," was another conclusion of the bishop. "Our very economic and industrial ills we cannot cure, of and by ourselves," he exclaimed. "We cannot even if we would, have either our misfortunes or our prosperity to ourselves. No Nation liveth to itself. The misfortunes and disasters of Berlin, Paris, London and Tokyo have their repercussions in our life, and our values rise or fall with the markets of the world."

A floral tribute was placed on President Wilson's tomb for the committee in charge, by 4-year-old William B. Davis, son of Maj. and Mrs. Davis, U. S. A.

Clergy Conduct Services.

The brief service was conducted by Bishop Freeman assisted by the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington, and Canon Raymond L. Wolven, chaplain to Bishop Freeman. Other Cathedral clergy present in the procession of clergy and choir were the Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of Washington, Canon Dunlap and Canon Gummere.

The cathedral choir of men and boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster, sang favorite hymns of the former President.

Bishop Freeman paid a striking tribute to Wilson in the course of his remarks, when he said:

"The late President Wilson did not claim infallibility of judgment as his own and yet as we reflect today upon his brilliant career, with its excelling qualities of intellect, we see in him the certain evidences of rare statesmanship that gives him permanent place among the good and the great. With clear vision he saw the growing need of ties that must bind nation to nation in a great confederation. He envisioned a new world order where the arbitrament of arms should give place to calm and quiet counsel. He seemed to see on the horizon a new day where, in truth, the Prince of Peace should be universally regnant in the hearts of men. He strove, when physically impaired, strove even when the chilling hand of death was upon his brow, for that which his comprehending vision believed was for the lasting good of all mankind. We did not heed his call and he went to his death declaring, 'I would rather go down to defeat today for a cause that will ultimately triumph, than to triumph today in a cause that will ultimately know debeat.'"

"New World in Making."

In conclusion, Bishop Freeman pleaded for a better realization on the part of the United States of its share in the restoration of world peace and security. "A new world is in the making," concluded the bishop. "What shall be our contribution to it? Can we, with our unmatched skill, rehabilitate our household while the world about us lies stagnant and impoverished? Have we no concern about those beyond our secure confines, no sense of responsibility for the dire ills that oppress and destroy the happiness and peace of other peoples?

"We are in the midst of a mighty world upheaval and it may be that, under God, and by His divine leading, we are to be the way-preparer for those who can no longer find the paths that lead to happiness and contentment. The world's order must be restored, its peace must be secured; let us with courage to the task, with renewed zeal, freshened enthusiasm and Christian faith."

The commemoration service for President Wilson held at 3:15 p. m. in front of his tomb in Bethlehem Chapel was followed at 4 p. m. by choral evensong and memorials of those who served in the World War.

tent with national security, Stevens said the legion "earnestly recommends a program of expansion of the air forces of the United States until they are on a par with other nations' before our Government participates in any further disarmament conferences."

Gen. Pershing said there exists no such thing as a "militaristic spirit in America," but added, "Adequate preparation against war does not mean aggression."

STRIKING INCIDENTS OF ARMISTICE DAY HERE

ARREST OF LEAVITT DEFENDED BY POLICE

Coast Chief Backs Officer Who Arrested Hoover's Brother-in-Law.

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Chief of Police Clarence Webb today declared the arrest of C. Van Ness Leavitt, brother-in-law of President Hoover, on a charge of possessing 19 pints of liquor, was "legitimate," and that he would "stand squarely behind" the arresting officer.

Chief Webb made the statement in denial of a report that his office intended to investigate the circumstances of the case.

"It was a legitimate arrest and will be handled through the usual channels," he explained.

Leavitt, 57-year-old retired plumbing contractor, was apprehended Monday by two Federal dry agents, who said he "popped" out the back door of a grocery with the appearance of Thomas Carr, police dry raider, at the front entrance. Carr said he was not going to arrest C. R. Dailey, the store proprietor, but merely intended to give him a "scare."

The brother-in-law of the President said the liquor belonged to Dailey and was shoved into his hands by the owner when the latter saw Carr at the front door. Dailey denied this version of the story. Leavitt said he did not know what was in a sack containing the liquor, but took it as a "friendly service."

Leavitt and Dailey were arraigned and freed on bail of $250 each, pending trial November 16. They pleaded not guilty.

Leavitt, the husband of Mary Hoover Leavitt, a sister of the President, was arrested in November, 1930, for intoxication and paid a fine of $25. Some years before he was arrested for violation of a sanitary ordinanc, but the case was dismissed.

Old Ironsides to Spend Winter in Capital's Port

(Associated Press.)

The venerable frigate Constitution will spend the winter at the navy yard here, but she may resume the abandoned Southern cruise some time next year.

Secretary Adams announced the plan yesterday after he had accompanied President Hoover aboard Old Ironsides. The ship will remain here long enough to take part in some of the ceremonies incident to the Washington bicentennial year. For the rest plans remain to be made.

Originally the Constitution was to have left here today in tow of the minesweeper Grebe, destined for open house sessions at every consequential port down the Atlantic Coast line. Then came the cut in the Navy's budget figures, and the coast tour was abandoned. The ship probably will remain open to Washingtonians and tourists all winter.

the Great War was covered with floral wreaths, representing millions of citizens.

Harry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion, paid that body's allegiance at the Arlington shrine. Following him, Boy Scouts from every troop in the city bore a beautiful wreath to the tomb.

Eagles Visit Tomb.

Two others who kept faith with the Unknown Soldier were Col. John T. Axton and Rabbi Morris S. Lazeron, of Baltimore. The Washington Aerie of Eagles also visited the tomb and held a service.

Soon after noon the traditional services of the Knights of Columbus were held at the Tomb, when a wreath was placed by William G. Feely, State deputy for the District.

Four organizations who served the soldiers at the front, the Salvation Army, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Y. W. and the Y. M. C. A. left their tribute on the Tomb.

Cadets Pay Respects.

Representatives from all the public high schools accompanied by cadets also paid their respects.

One of the inspirational events was the raising of the flag at the Capitol yesterday morning by a small band of War Mothers in memory of sons who rest in France. Veterans formed a guard of honor.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception a solemn high mass was celebrated. Rev. Francis J. Hurney, celebrant, is chaplain of Costello Post and past departmental chaplain of the District American Legion.

In his sermon, he made a plea for avoidance of more suffering such as the men endured during the war.

Pershing Entertains.

There was a general celebration at Walter Reed Hospital. Many of the patients were guests of Gen. Pershing, who arranged the showing of the picture "Way Back Home" for them.

Senator King, of Utah, pleaded for a thoughtful consideration of the ravages of war with a view to the betterment of world understanding in and address made at the Wilson Teachers College.

The President, Mrs. Hoover, and Admiral Richard V. Pratt, inspected the Constitution at the Navy Yard after the carronades on her forward deck had crashed out a 21-gun salute. While looking at cannons on the lower deck the President's hat was crushed against one of the timbers on the low-roofed deck above.

Appeals for Peace.

A further appeal for peace was made last night at the Press Club meeting of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, by the speakers, Houston Thompson, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and Frederick R. Coudert, of New York City.

"Let us try out for once an agreement with all the nations to the extent of an economic boycott against any nation that overruns the borders of another," Mr. Thompson said in recommending a plan for peace insurance.

Peace held the spotlight at ceremonies held at the Jewish Community Center in connection with the opening of the national forum. Mrs. George Hyman discussed proposed reductions in armaments.

Colored residents united for services at the St. James Baptist Church. A plea for the cherishing of the ideals which the day represents was made by Dr. James M. Jones, pastor.

Constructive disarmament measures for peace were discussed by the Rev. Mark Depp, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Church, at the commemorative Rotarian luncheon in the Willard Hotel.

Allies of 13 Years Ago Observe Anniversary

Athens, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Armistice Day here was marked by demonstrations throughout Greece for a union with the Island of Cyprus, where serious disturbances occurred several weeks ago.

Galena, Ill., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Galena, home town of Gen. U. S. Grant, today celebrated its greatest Armistice Day with the presentation of the Grant Memorial Home to the State. The home was accepted by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Knoxville's Armistice Day parade had just begun today when Calvis T. Bittle, Spanish War veteran, marching with his comrades, fell dead.

S. S. Conte Grande, Nov. 11 (A.P.). Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister who first proposed the one-year armaments truce to which 40 nations have adhered under the auspices of the League of Nations, today called for another truce in the discords among the world's peoples.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, former Secretary of Labor in President Hoover's Cabinet, said today in an Armistice Day speech that he believed "we can best serve our people by following the advice of George Washington to keep away from all foreign entanglements."

Rome, Italy, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—While many nations were celebrating Armistice Day, Italy was rejoicing today over the 62d birthday of King Victor Emanuel.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—During the Armistice Day parade today a man jumped into the marching ranks from the sidelines, snatched a flag from the hands of an elderly woman and threw it into the River Liffey.

A group of war veterans seized him and were about to throw him into the river to bring it back when the police interfered and placed the man under arrest.

Boston, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—United States Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, tonight charged that what the American soldier in the World War won in placing the United States in a dominant and strategic position among nations "has been lost through the narrow and selfish economic policies of those who have since in large part directed the affairs of the Government."

Crowds Pack Auditorium For Gay Armistice Ball

Many Celebrities Are Present at Day's Final Festivities as Battle Memories Are Revived by Colorful Scenes Depicting War-Time France.

All the gay abandonment of Paris on that famous night of November 11, 1918, was reproduced last night when a crowd estimated at nearly 15,000 jammed the Washington Auditorium to help the Veterans of Foreign Wars celebrate Armistice Day and aid the disabled and destitute veterans of the World War.

It was a riotous evening, just such another as occurred 13 years ago when all the world cut loose on a magnificent jamboree to signalize the termination of hostilities between the Allies and their former enemies.

While hundreds tried to dance in the big floor of the main auditorium, other hundreds performed joyous snake dances about the hall, singing the songs of the trenches and the leave areas. French, Italian, American and other uniforms of the various branches of military and naval service mingled profusely throughout the hall. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes in eleven divisions, and an attraction of the evening was an elaborate style show.

A spectacular feature of the jubilee was the arrival of Commander in Chief Harold D. DeCoe from Pittsburgh in a plane piloted by Judge Walter B. Wanamaker, war-time ace. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Jennings.

Searchlight Demonstration.

During the evening the 260th Coast Artillery, under command of Maj. Walter W. Burns, gave a searchlight demonstration in the vicinity of the Auditorium.

An emergency first-aid station was established on the second floor, under command of Maj. John C. Eckhardt and Capt. Russell H. J. McNitt, of the Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. A. Assisting were Mrs. McNitt, a graduate of Walter Reed School of Nursing, and Mrs. Myrtle Hodgkins, Miss Ruth Johnson, Miss Rosalie Calhoun and Miss Mildred Ellis, instructors in the Army School of Nursing at Walter Reed Hospital.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, new superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department, was director general of the jubilee.

La Salle de Jeu, or playroom, on the second floor, was presided over by Mrs. Evelyn Glazis and Mrs. Elmer Hagler.

Military pomp and ceremony attended the arrival of the distinguished guests, the Overseas Band of the Veterans.

Pershing Given Ovation.

Gen. John J. Pershing, the honor guest of the evening, received an ovation upon his arrival. He was the guest in the box of the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, who also had Admiral and Mrs. William V. Pratt. Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, were cochairmen of the box committee, with Mrs. John Allan Dougherty serving as advisory chairman. Secretary and Mrs. Hurley had with them the Chief of Staff, U. S. A., Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison.

Others who occupied "balconies" were: The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, the Surgeon General and Mrs. Charles E. Riggs, Representative and Mrs. Richard S. Aldrich, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George B. Scriven, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Capt. and Mrs. Hayne Ellis, Judge Robert E. Mattingly, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ridley McLean, Mrs. Henry Alva Strong, Col. and Mrs. Morris Ernest Locke, Mrs. Herbert O. Slocum, Rear Admiral and Mrs. H. P. Jones, Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln, Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton, Mr. Russell McDonald, M. K. Midzusawa, first secretary of the Japanese Embassy.

The First Secretary of the Egyptian Legation and Mme. Aly Ismail Bey were guests in the balcony of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim. Mme. Aly Ismail Bey was a sponsor of the "Desert Necromancers," one of the popular features of the event.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol and Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Schoellkopf occupied a box together, having as their guests the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik, Mrs. Edward Davis, of Philadelphia, house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Schoellkopf, and Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton Brian.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. David S. Ingalls were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Carol Morgan.

The Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Ban H. Fuller and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John T. Myers had a box together.

Guests in Boxes.

The Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Lindsay had with them in their box the Naval Attache of the Embassy and Mrs. Macnamara and the new secretary of the embassy, Mr. Harold Frees-Pennefather.

The Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart were accompanied by Miss Patience McCormick-Goodhart and the assistant military attache of the embassy, Capt. Godfrey.

Col. and Mrs. Morris Ernest Locke had in their box Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Scott Thropp, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Miss Charlotte Mayo and Mr. James McMillan Gibson and Miss Mary Preston Gibson, son and debutante daughter of Mrs. Locke.

Maj. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lee entertained at dinner later, taking their guests to their box. The company included the Second Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Huxley, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Acheson and Commander Robert R. M. Emmet, U. S. N.

The Belgian Ambassador and Mme. May were guests in the box of the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, having turned their box over to members of the embassy staff. Also with Ambassador and Mme. Claudel were members of the embassy staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Noyes had in their balcony Capt. and Mrs. Ralph McDowell and Commander and Mrs. Smith Hempston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson had in their balcony Mr. John Hughes, who had a party with him.

Entertained at Dinner.

Maj. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lee entertained at dinner preceding the jubilee, having as their guests the Second Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Huxley, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Acheson and Commander Emmett, U. S. N.

The Minister of Czechaslovakia and Mme. Veverka were guests in the balcony of Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, who also entertained the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Ferederick H Payne, Representative and Mrs. Fred Britten, the commandant of the Army War College and Mrs. William D. Connor, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Cheatham, and Brig. Gen. William E. Horton. Mrs. Loose entertained her guests at dinner at the Mayflower before the celebration.

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes were hosts to a party of young people in their box, entertaining in honor of Miss Anne Butler, daughter of Mr. Justice and Mrs. Pierce Butler, and her fiance, Mr. Edward K. Dunn, of Baltimore. Others in the company were Miss Olivia Stokes and her cousin, Mr. Stokes.

Others who subscribed to the jubilee tickets were the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, the Minister of Lithunia, Mr. Belutis; the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite, Senator and Mrs. Cameron Morrison, Mrs. Bayard Cutting, mother of Senator Bronson Cutting; Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Col. Clarence M. Young, Judge and Mrs. Gus A. Schuldt, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Q. Ashburn, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James E. Fechet, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Mason Patrick, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Mrs. Lutz Wahl was chairman of the refreshments committee.

War-Time Chaplain Appeals for Peace

Legion and V. F. W. Hear Father Hurney in Armistice Day Address.

An appeal for lasting peace was made yesterday by the Rev. Francis J. Hurney in an address before members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars at Armistice Day ceremonies held in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest.

Father Hurney, who served as a wartime chaplain aboard the cruiser Charleston, pointed out that a lasting peace could not be obtained by reliance on man-made human principles of conduct.

"We, as veterans of the great conflict," Father Hurney said, "have a right to demand that our leaders exercise in their dealings with other nations the principles of Christian justice and charity." Other nations, in their dealings with our country, should practice the same doctrine, he said.

Father Hurney was celebrant of the mass, the Rev. Stanley Czyz deacon, and the Rev. J. Kelly Reese subdeacon. Miss Florence Yocum and Miss Kathryn Bowers were soloists, assisted by the boy's sanctuary choir and the church choirs.

Speculative Boom Of Silver Failure

Bullion for Immediate Delivery Tumbles to Price of 35 Cents.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The speculative boom in silver was punctured today. Some bulls on the metal felt the puncture would soon be repaired, but traders generally turned somewhat hesitant, pending a clearer outlook.

Silver bullion for immediate delivery tumbled 1⅞ cents to a price of 35⅜ cents, losing a substantial portion of the 6-cent advance of the past week.

Trading in silver futures slackened in the National Metal Exchange and prices were off ½ to ¾ of a cent at the close, or somewhat above the day's lowest levels. Transactions totaled 4,775,000 ounces, or 3,400,000 less than yesterday's.

Crowley Will Quit New York Central

F. E. Williamson, of C., B. & Q., Will Succeed Him as President.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Patrick E. Crowley—"Pull Eighty Cars" to the old-timers—will relinquish the presidency of the New York Central Railroad on January 1.

Frederick G. Williamson, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, will succeed him, subject to release from his present position.

Other important railroad changes will follow. Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railroad, will succeed Williamson, in the Burlington post. At Vancouver, Wash., William P. Kenney, vice president in charge of traffic, said "I have heard that I have been nominated to succeed Mr. Budd." Kenney added that official announcement must come from the Great Northern board.

MISSING GIRL, 14, MARRIED TO GYPSY

Brother of Bridegroom Says Father Sold Daughter for $2,250.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The stalwart son of a gypsy queen was under arrest tonight while Federal authorities sought to determine the status of his 14-year-old bride, Ruby Ranco, allegedly kidnaped from her Brooklyn, N. Y., home three months ago.

Frank Ranco, of Brooklyn, father of the young bride, sought the aid of county officers today in searching the gypsy camp near Sharonville, where he said he had traced his daughter.

After one futile search, Ranco and the officers returned and found the child, who told them she had been hidden in a tent when the officers approached the first time.

Ephraim Marks, 25, her gypsy husband, and his mother, Mrs. Amerlia Marks, 48, queen of the entourage, were arrested.

They contradicted Ranco's charges and told officers Ruby had been sold to the bridegroom for $2,250 after the gypsy custom of bartering for the bride.

Cites Gypsy Law.

"It is the gypsy law that a man must pay for his wife. I paid for mine and my brother paid for his," summarized George Marks, brother of Ephraim. Ranco said his daughter had been kidnaped by Marks as she left a Brooklyn theater three months ago, and that she had been forced into marriage ceremony before Justice of the Peace R. A. Klinton, in Brooklyn.

He said he had followed the wandering trail of the gypsy caravan through St. Louis, Detroit, and Cincinnati.

In view of these conflicting statements authorities were puzzled in an attempt to determine if the gypsy law was to be upheld if true, or if the child had been kidnaped against her will and her father's.

Another angle was injected into the investigation by Pete Sterio, a member of the gypsy band, who sought to gain Marks' release.

Father Is Accused.

He told officers Ranco had "worked the kidnaping racket" on his (Sterio's) brother in Ottawa, Canada, several years ago, and that Ranco only wanted his daughter back so that he might sell her in marriage a second time.

The gypsies intimated they intended to fight for retention of the bride via the law courts.

George Marks declared he was an eyewitness to the exchange of money between Ranco and his brother at the marriage celebration, which he said was attended by Ruby's mother, her brother and a girl friend.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 103

THE above photograph depicts the original establishment of the Hecht Co. department store, taken before it expanded to its present size, which embraces practically the entire block. The line of buildings to the left were all occupied by retail jewelers and clothiers, with the exception of the Ashton lunchroom, which catered to the patronage of the many Government workers in the vicinity.

Around the corner was the site of the Schubert-Garrick Theater, where noted actors and stock companies enthralled packed houses by their portrayal of the legitimate drama long before the advent of the "talkies." In the rear of the present building was situated Charles Dietz's saloon, the favorite oasis of thirsty actors and theatergoers. Also in the near vicinity was Rex's livery stable, which did a land-office business on warm Sunday afternoons and summer evenings when the moon was full.

However, with the advent of the "horseless carriage" and moving pictures, coupled with the inexorable onward march of civilization, these once familiar landmarks have been engulfed in a busy mart of commerce and industry. However, they will inspire wistful memories in the minds of some who still cherish the scent of lavender and old lace blended with the fragrance and beauty of the roses of yesteryear.

GENEVA HEARTENED BY HOOVER SPEECH

League Believes It Means Firmer Action in Regard to Manchuria.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Brief reports of President Hoover's Armistice Day speech received at Geneva tonight gave officials of the League of Nations tremendous encouragement in their efforts to straighten out the dispute in Manchuria.

Observers interpreted his assertion that peace "cannot be had by resolution and injunction alone" as an indication that the United States is ready to take a more advanced position than the League Council itself has taken thus far in mediating the Sino-Japanese quarrel, and even is ready to go as far as the league covenant provides for settlement of the dispute.

So far the council has limited itself to resolutions and injunctions.

The next step would be sanctions of some sort, but, although they are provided for in the league covenant, the council has scarcely dared to contemplate them.

This hesitation has been due hitherto to uncertainty in Europe regarding what course the United States would be willing to support in enforcing peace.

League officials heartily welcomed the President's reference to strengthening international confidence by closer personal contact of the nations' leaders, pointing out this is exactly what the league has been trying to do for the last twelve years.

The exact significance of this part of the speech caused some speculation here and commentators were asking whether it meant that Mr. Hoover wants the heads of the Japanese and Chinese governments to come into personal contact or whether he was suggesting by inference a general international gathering.

Some observers suggested that such a statement might be preparing the way for a Washington peace conference.

RAIDS IN MARYLAND NET 18 PRISONERS

U. S. Agents Capture 11 in Alleged Great Rum Conspiracy.

Striking a body blow at the reported liquor industry in southern Maryland, Federal dry agents yesterday arrested eighteen men, twelve of them alleged to be involved in a $100,000 conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Of the twelve, eleven are residents of Waldorf, Md., and agents are seeking about a dozen more said to have been connected with the reputed conspiracy. The plot was reported to have been discovered when agents examined the books of a prominent merchant in the section. The other six men were captured on the road with small quantities of alleged liquor, or at work around small alleged distilleries.

The wholesale raid was conducted early yesterday morning, when nine men were rounded up by a squad of agents and United States marshals. The nine were whisked to Baltimore in a fleet of cars, where all were released on bond. Later yesterday morning three more surrendered and were also taken to Baltimore. All of them were charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition act by engaging in the manufacture, sale, transportation and possession of whisky.

Plot Discovered Last Winter.

The conspiracy, which involves an investment in stills and other illegal possessions of about $100,000, was discovered last winter in the Christmas drive on the industry, according to Milton H. Talkin, assistant United States attorney. It is understood that agents went over the books of the merchant involved and made note of large sales of sugar and glass jars. This information is supposed to be the basis of the charges.

Those arrested and the amounts of their bonds are Raymond Beavers, Emery (Smith) Bowie and Roscoe Roby, $5,000 each; Fulton Willett, George Hunt and Lewis Hicks, $2,500 each; Sidney Thomas, colored, $2,000; and Anderson (Battles) Trotter and Theodore Hawkins, colored, $1,500 each. All are from Waldorf.

The men who surrendered yesterday morning are Paul C. Robinson, of Ironsides, Md., $7,500; Louis Groves, of Waldorf, $10,000, and Ernest Wedding, Waldorf, $1,500.

Hearings for all those charged will be held in Baltimore on November 27, before United States Commissioner J. Frank Supplee.

The warrants were sworn out before Mr. Supplee Tuesday night, amid the greatest secrecy. Ten dry agents and seven deputy marshals were loaded into automobiles in Baltimore and taken out of the city under cover of darkness. Arriving at Waldorf, the five cars disgorged their cargoes of men outside the little crossroads town and the policemen separated in order to serve all the warrants as close to the same time as possible.

Those who were not captured at their homes were warned and the agents did not waste time looking for them. Their captives were loaded into the cars at once and removed to Baltimore. After procuring lawyers, the other three surrendered to the agents who are stationed in Waldorf.

"Wettest Spot in U. S."

Southern Maryland was described last winter by a high dry official as "the wettest spot in the United States, and the quality of its liquor is noted. Approximately 40 men were sent into the territory just before Christmas of last year and they destroyed a number of stills and arrested many small violators. Yesterday's round-up, however, is the largest ever made in this section.

Garfield Myrick, who said he lived on Sherman avenue northwest near Girard street, was held in bond of $1,000 on charges of transportation and possession after being captured on the southern Maryland pike with 24 gallons of alleged contraband. Bond of $1,000 was also set for Ralto G. Horton, of Ashland, Va., who was caught on the same road with 15 cases.

Robert J. Quade and James W. Johnson, who live near Mechanicsville, were arrested on one of the roads near their homes and charged with transportation and possession of 36 gallons of a liquid said to be whisky. They were together when arrested, and bond for each of them was fixed at $1,000.

Irvin Henson was arrested when the agents raided a house at Mason Springs, Md., finding a 300-gallon still. He was charged with possession of liquor, manufacture and possession of articles for manufacture, and his bond was fixed at $1,000. Griffin Swan, who was arrested at a 500-gallon still near his home at Faulkner, Md., was held for the same amount of bail. Agents said they found 6,000 gallons of mash at this still. Swan, also, is charged with manufacture, possession and posession of articles for manufacture.

Farm Board's End Sought by Senator

King Prepares Bill, but Stone Predicts Its Defeat on Hill.

(Associated Press.)

Senator King announced yesterday he was drafting a bill to abolish the farm board, but its chairman, James C. Stone, said such a movement would not get very far.

Stone made his comment in connection with what he termed a "funeral oration" delivered over the board Tuesday by Representative Beck, Pennsylvania Republican.

The Utah Democrat proposes to abolish the board and set up a temporary agency to liquidate its business as quickly as possible. He said the board had been a "complete failure" and had "injured rather than benefited the farmers." This represented no change of attitude on his part, however, as he voted against creation of the agency.

King will have the support of Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, in his effort, but not of the farm bloc in the Senate. Chairman McNary has called a meeting of the agriculture committee for November 24 to consider measures to strengthen rather than abolish the board.

Accord Among Nations, Hoover's Armistice Plea

Text of President Hoover's Armistice Day address, in which he renewed his appeal accord among the nations and paid tribute to the valor of the District's war dead:

Great shrines in our National Capital mark reverent remembrance of those who have given sacrifice and glory to the Nation. Marble and bronze, in their eloquence of silence and beauty, tell the deathless story of heroic deeds done for our country.

We gather here today to dedicate a new shrine to those residents of the District of Columbia who served in the World War. This temple will recall for all time their services and sacrifices.

It is particularly fitting that these services should be held on Armistice Day, when, throughout the Nation, our citizens pause to honor all those who gave their lives in the greatest conflict which has ever engulfed the world.

Thirteen years to the day and hour have passed since the guns ceased their destruction of life, and nations began their march back to peace and reconstruction. That day was a day of rejoicing in victory, a day of pride in the valor of our Army and Navy, a day of hope for peace in a better world. With each succeeding year, Armistice Day has come to be a day to pay tribute to the millions who valiantly bore arms in a worthy cause and to renew resolves that the peace for which these men sacrificed themselves shall be maintained.

Peace Is Not Assured.

However great our desire for peace, we must not assume that the peace for which these men died has become assured to the world or that the obligations which they left to us, the living, have been discharged. The minds of many races still are stirred by memories of centuries of injustice; in others there is ever present the fear of invasion and domination; many peoples are filled with hopes of liberty and independence. The boundaries of many nations are but zones of age-old contention. The growth of population and economic striving press against the borders of others. World-wide expansion of commerce and industry, with its vast interchange of citizens, brings the daily obligation of self-respecting nations to see that their nationals abroad in pacific pursuits shall not be unjustly imperiled as to life and property. In every country men can secure public attention and even a living by stirring malignant forces of fear and hate of their neighbors. As a result of these forces the world is more heavily armed than even before the Great War.

All of these dangers present to statesmen a world where peace can not be had by resolution and injunction alone. Peace is the product of preparedness for defense, the patient settlement of controversy, and the dynamic development of the forces of good will. It is the result of the delicate balance of that realism born of human experience and of idealism born of the highest of human aspirations for international justice.

The backwash of forces loosened by the great war has grown until during the past two years the stability of many nations has been greatly shaken. This, with their fears and discouragement for the future, weakened confidence throughout the whole financial and economic world. That loss of confidence added enormously to unemployment, to the distress of agriculture and business everywhere. From it all we have been passing through an emergency second only to the great war.

Confidence Prime Need.

But the emergency has brought a realization that the outstanding problem of statesmanship today in every country and in every part of the world is to reestablish confidence, not alone each nation in its own institutions, but among nations. And no greater contribution can be made to economic relief than day-to-day conclusive demonstration that progress is being made in relieving stress and strain which now so oppress the atmosphere of the family of nations.

Such action requires no treaties, no documents, and no commitments. It requires only that each nation realize the situation that exists; that it contribute in its own policies and within its own best interest to the building of good will and the rebuilding of confidence.

That progress is being made. It has been made by frank, sincere and direct personal conferences on mutual problems between heads of states throughout the world. It has been made by similar action among the financial, industrial and social institutions of the world. These discussions have developed common action and have increased good will and confidence. These consistent efforts are providing new avenues of relief and are assuredly turning the tide for a greatly suffering world.

It is by building good will and constructive effort among nations that we can best honor the memory of the men who died that the world should have peace. This monument stands for men who fought not alone for their country, but to establish the principles of justice and peace. We pay tribute here to their valor. We honor them for their sacrifice. We respect their memory by renewing our obligations to the purposes and ideals for which they fought.

Probe Promised In Smith Death

Woodcock Refuses Comment in Case of Colorado Prohibition Agent.

(United Press.)

A thorough investigation of the death of Milford G. Smith, 20, Englewood, Colo., as the result of an alleged clubbing by a prohibition agent was promised yesterday by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Woodcock said agents had been cautioned against the use of violence. The prohibition chief refused to give any judgment on the Colorado case.

The dead youth was said to have struggled over a bottle of wine which the agent tried to seize. He was struck in the head, allegedly with a revolver butt, and died several hours later. Murder charges have been filed against Agent Henry Dierks by the local authorities.

Fellows Deplores Leak In County Water Lines

Harry A. Fellows, member-elect to the new board of Arlington County, which replaces the present three members of the county board of supervisors speaking at the meeting of the Jefferson District Fire Department last night, declared that the excessive leakage in the county water system and the lack of adequate fire protection for outlying districts was a problem that should have immediate consideration.

Fellows declared he had been informed by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier that the leakage in the present county system amounts to approximately 20 per cent of the total water consumed by the water users. A large part of the leakage, Fellows believes, is due to loose joints in the lines.

eral months, ever since last winter in fact, backers of his candidacy have been carrying on these conferences, seeking to obtain pledged delegates to the Democratic national convention.

The friends have made it known they will spare no effort to have at least 100 to 150 pledged delegates on the first ballot, in a desire to raise the candidacy out of the "favorite son" class.

Gov. Ritchie has long been known to have presidential aspirations, but always has dodged a direct announcement. His invariable reply has been "It's too early yet." But his friends have gone right on working for the desired votes in the convention.

In 1924 Gov. Ritchie was mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination. In 1928 he held Maryland's sixteen delegates and had many others pledged before convention time. Shortly before the convention was called, however, Gov Ritchie withdrew from the race and in a public announcement threw his support to Smith.

TRIAL OF CONTEMPT CHARGE NEAR CLOSE

ported them apparently genuine, Mr. Lambert said.

Four typewriters, taken by internal revenue agents when they raided a vault belonging to Pitts in Florida, were introduced as evidence late yesterday, and were shown to be the ones on which the alleged false authorizations, which entitled Pitts to withdraw money from the F. H. Smith Co., were written. Government attorneys Neil Burkinshaw and Nugent Dodds showed Justice Letts that some of these typewriters were not made until a year or so after the dates on purported authorizations.

They did this by showing the date of manufacture of the machines and comparing that date with dates on authorizations.

Mr. Burkinshaw, for the Government, served notice in open court that, at the proper time, he will ask that the citation for contempt be modified to include Miss Schneider. There has been testimony stating that Miss Schneider typed some of the papers while a guest at the Pitts home in Palm Beach.

3 Philadelphia Boys Taken Off Freight Train

Three Philadelphia boys who "hopped" a Pennsylvania Railroad freight intending to take a short ride were taken from the train in Washington last night. They were sent to the Receiving Home and will be returned to their parents.

The boys, Edwin Crossley, 15; Fred Aruffo, 14, and William Twaddell, 14, told Lieut. King and Private Wilson, of the Fourth Precinct, that they clambered aboard the freight about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Philadelphia, intending to drop off after a few blocks.

2 Stills Are Captured In Prince Georges Raids

Two stills were captured last night by Prince George County police in a series of raids in the Oxon Hill district, but no operators were found.

At a 75-gallon still the police, led by Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, said they found 200 gallons of mash, while 300 more were found near a 100-gallon still. One of the distilleries had been operated within the last few days, but the other appeared to have been unused for some time, the officers said.

Travelers Aid Society Hears Acting Director

Urging a grouping together of all the social work facilities of the community for the handling of the transient dependent problem, Miss Bertha McCall, acting director of the National Association of Travelers' Aid Societies, spoke at a meeting of the District of Columbia Travelers' Aid Society at the Burlington Hotel yesterday.

Miss McCall told of surveys of the situation made by specialists at the request of the President's Organization for Relief of Unemployment and declared that the consensus reached so far is that, while one organization shall take the lead in handling transient people and families, it must have the assistance and cooperation of all other social work organizations in the city if the plan is to be a success.

EDITH RILEY PLACED UNDER BOARD'S CARE

Edith was getting. "She appears a great deal better than when I first saw her," the judge said.

Edith must remain in the hospital for some time before her condition will be such that she can be released. Studies of her mentality have not been completed and physicians wish to keep her under observation until she has recuperated from the long confinemnt and abuse which left her weak and emaciated.

Effects of the treatment the child has received are already evident. She weighs four pounds more than she did on Friday when she was released from her prison. The traits which her stepmother attributed to her have not been evident at the hospital.

Her smiles are more and more frequent as she learns to enjoy the new pleasures afforded her. Lips that were once mute, now utter words of approbation and call the names of relatives when they visit her. Her muscles gain strength and she walks short distances.

Meanwhile, the grand jury was proceeding with its study of evidence presented in indictment proceedings against Mr. and Mrs. Riley. The report probably will be made public tomorrow.

BARUCH ANNOUNCES PROSPERITY PLANS

Tells War Industries Board Defeatism Spirit Broken and Hits Dry Laws.

New York, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Calling attention to rising agricultural price levels which have added $500,000,000 to the wealth of the American farmers, Bernard M. Baruch, close adviser of President Wilson during the World War, said today that the "spirit of defeatism" in the United States, has been broken.

Before a meeting of the United States War Industries Board, including some of the Nation's leading Democrats, Baruch outlined this legislative program:

Repeal of prohibition; no cancellation of war debts; modification of the Sherman antitrust act; creation of a new type of tariff commission that would be international in viewpoint; assistance to Russia, and creation of a high court of commerce to regulate overproduction and adjust uneconomic business competition.

Baruch, who has been called "the shrewdest politician in Wall street," attacked the question of debts and reparations at the outset, prefacing his remarks with the declaration that they were his own personal views "not put forward as the platform of any party."

"Soon the end of the Hoover year of moratorium on governmental debts will be upon us. We will then again be faced with the debts and reparations question," he said. "There can be no settlement of those questions until the age-long struggle involving France, Germany and Poland is adjusted in a manner that will bring lasting peace in those three countries."

Baruch insisted that this peace "lies in the hollow of the hand of France" and that "it is for her to say if peace and happiness shall reign over Europe."

Baruch declared that "one thing is certain: That the United States of America will keep its dollars and its bonds sound beyond a question of a doubt." Prohibition repeal would be a great help, he said. "One fact is obvious: That the modification of the Volstead act and the legalization of beer and light wines would give us enormous tax receipts—to say nothing of the revivification of industries and the return to work of many thousands of the unemployed."

"We hear many cries that it is necessary to do away with the Sherman antitrust law," he said. "I am against its abolition, though I favor certain modifications." Baruch recalled the shortage of commodities of 1921 which was met by overproduction "with the resulting collapse from which we are just now emerging."

The disturbance that was over eastern Quebec Tuesday night is advancing northeastward toward Greenland and the southwestern disturbance has moved eastward and it now extends from Arizona and New Mexico northeastward to Minnesota, Flagstaff, Ariz., 29.70 inches, and Concordia, Kans., 29.72 inches. The latter disturbance has been attended by rains in southern California, the southern Plateau and southern Rocky Mountain regions, the Plains States, the Missouri and the Ohio and upper Mississippi Valleys, and portions of the Lake region. The rainfall was locally heavy at Springfield, Ill., and Keokuk, Iowa. Another disturbance is advancing eastward over the western Canadian Provinces, Fort Smith, District of Mackenzie, 29.66 inches, and still another has appeared off the southeastern coast of Alaska, Ketchikan, 29.54 inches. Pressure is high over the Eastern States, Ontario, and western Quebec, and from the North Pacific Coast eastward to Montana, Northfield, Vt., 30.28 inches, and Portland, Oreg., 30.26 inches. The temperature has fallen in New England, New York, Pennsylvania and the Plateau and Rocky Mountain regions and it has risen from Lake Michigan and Indiana southwestward to Oklahoma and northwestern Texas. The weather is unseasonably warm over most sections from the Plains States eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

Forecast for Thursday and Friday—General forecast for the Atlantic States, the lower Lake region, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee: The western disturbance will move northeastward and it will likely be attended by showers within the next 36 to 48 hours, except in the South Atlantic States, where the weather will continue fair until Friday night. The temperature will rise in the upper Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region, and the North Atlantic States Thursday and it will continue mild quite generally Friday, followed by cooler Friday afternoon or night in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the lower Lake region.

BANKER DIES

JOSEPH SCHIAVONE.

JOSEPH SCHIAVONE BANKER, SUCCUMBS

Founder of International Exchange Bank Expires Suddenly at Home.

Joseph Schiavone, founder and first president of the International Exchange Bank, died at his home in Chevy Chase, Md., after a brief illness. Death was due to a cold, which was at first believed to be slight.

Mr. Schiavone became slightly ill last Saturday and left his desk at the bank. As early as yesterday morning members of the family told officials of the institution that the banker was doing well and appeared to be on the road to recovery. His death last night was quite unexpected.

The banker was a native of Italy, but came to America in 1907. His entrance in business in his adopted country was far from the banking business, for he founded an Italian newspaper in Trenton, N. J.

He first came to Washington in 1913 with the late Senator Martine, and opened a foreign exchange during the World War. This beginning was later incorporated as the International Exchange Bank in 1921.

In 1917 he entered the diplomatic service of Italy as secretary attached to the bureau of information of the Italian Embassy.

Mr. Schiavone a short time later returned to the financial field and was associated with financial houses in New York and Washington. With the founding of the International Exchange Bank he became president and director.

In February, 1928, he disposed of his interests in the bank and opened the Citizens Mortgage Corporation, of which he was president.

Mr. Schiavone returned as a leading figure in the International Exchange Bank on March 4 of this year. The board of directors reelected him as a director and president on the resignation of Fernando Cuniberti as president.

He continued as active head of the organization until his sudden death.

Funeral arrangements for Mr. Schiavone will be announced later.

MRS. E. H. BROWN DIES.

Funeral Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon in Del Ray, Va.

Mrs. Ella H. Brown, 75 years old, wife of Arthur R. Brown, died yesterday morning at her home, 120 West Lloyd avenue, Del Ray, Va., after a long illness.

Besides her husband she is survived by five daughters and three sons: Mrs. Walter Dowden, Baileys Crossroads; Mrs. George West, Mrs. James White and Mrs. Fred Cook, Alexandria, and Mrs. William Burdette, Atlanta, Ga.; William M., Bernard B. and George Rush Brown. The funeral will be at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home, conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South, and burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery in Alexandria.

GRANT JARVIS OBSEQUIES.

Former Committee Clerk to Be Buried in Glenwood Cemetery.

Funeral services for Grant Jarvis, 69 years old, former committee clerk in the United States House of Representatives, who died Tuesday in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, will be held this afternoon at the undertaking establishment of W. W. Chambers, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers at the services will include Senator Hull and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, and Representatives Garner and Garrett, of Texas. Mr. Jarvis is survived by his wife and five children.

DR. E. C. BARSTOW FUNERAL

Interment Will Be Tomorrow in Arlington National Cemetery.

Funeral services for Dr. Edwin C. Barstow, 62 years old, of 718 Eleventh street southeast, who died Tuesday, will be held tomorrow from the Zurhorst undertaking establishment, 301 East Capitol street southeast, at 11 o'clock in the morning. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Dr. Barstow was widely known in Southeast Washington and had maintained an active practice up to the time of his death. He was connected with the Army Medical Corps as a contract surgeon during the Spanish-American War.

Baltimore Urologists Are Capital Visitors

Baltimore members of the American Urological Society last night were the guests of their Washington confreres at a dinner and scientific meeting held at the Mayflower Hotel. The meeting was preceded by a lecture on "Post-Operative Treatment," given by Dr. James Mitchell to the Society of Hospital Internes, which is also associated with the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

The remainder of the program was under the direction of the Baltimore branch of the Urological Society and included scientific discussions introduced by Drs. Gordon Dean, W. H. Toulson, Lloyd Lewis, A. E. Goldstein and Hugh H. Young.

Howard Henderson Succumbs at Work

Life-Long Resident Was Well Known in Fraternal Circles.

Howard T. Henderson, vice president and secretary of the George W. Wise undertaking establishment, died suddenly yesterday while at work in the company's offices, 2900 M street northwest. He was 49 years old.

Mr. Henderson was a lifelong resident of Washington, and made his home at 2412 Observatory place northwest. He had been connected with the undertaking concern for more than 15 years. Well known in fraternal circles, Mr. Henderson was a member of the New Jerusalem Lodge of Masons.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence M. Henderson, his father, Thomas Henderson; a daughter, Miss Mary A. Henderson, a teacher in the District Public Schools, and a son, James Henderson.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Father of Federal Officials Is Dead

Charles Schoeneman Dies in Brooklyn; Two Sons at Bedside.

Charles Schoeneman, father of Charles R. Schoeneman, assistant to the Undersecretary of the Treasury, and of George J. Schoeneman, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Welch, in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Schoeneman's two sons and his daughter were at his side when he died. He had suffered from a lingering illness.

Mr. Schoeneman was born in Columbia, Pa., 80 years ago. When a young man he moved to Newport, R. I., where he affiliated with the Masonic fraternity. He was a charter member of St. Paul Lodge No. 14, of Newport. He was well-known in Washington.

The body will be taken this morning to Newport, where funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon.

Chain Pharmacist Gives Drugs to Needy Free

Cleveland, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Any Cleveland citizen out of funds who needs medicine this winter will be able to get doctors' prescriptions filled free.

Adolph Weinberger, president of a chain of drug stores here, informed physicians today that any prescription with a note attached from the doctor, stating simply that "this patient is in need," will be filled without charge and without embarrassment.

Pilot and Passenger Die in Crash of Plane

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The pilot and passenger of a small monoplane were killed instantly here today as it fell 1,000 feet into a farm yard soon after participating in an aerial demonstration at an Armistice Day celebration. The dead are J. A. Smithson, about 35, the pilot, and Clarence Hawkins, both of Arkadelphia, Ark.

Capt. Frank Wells To Talk on Turks

Former Army Chaplain to Describe Jerusalem and Its Rulers.

Capt. Frank M. Wells, of Little Rock, Ark., who in the last 30 years has delivered his lecture, "Jerusalem Under the Turks," 4,893 times, arrived in Washington yesterday, with the announced intention of bettering what he claims is his own world's record.

Capt. Wells passed three months in Jerusalem in 1902, and what he saw has furnished him with material for lectures ever since. He plans to talk in the near future at the Wilson Memorial Methodist Church and from other local rostrums.

A former Army chaplain, Capt. Wells recalls serving in the Philippines with Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, when the general was the second lieutenant of a Utah battery. Later Capt. Wells came here to testify before a House committee on drinking in the Army shortly before the Army

YOUTH'S REBELLION BLAMED IN SLAYING

Father Says Debutante Was Betrayed by Victim of Brother's Gun.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Back of the fatal shooting of Francis Donaldson, 3d, killed Monday night in the apartment of his sweetheart's father, lies a moving drama of the new generation's revolt against the moral code held by its elders, it was revealed today.

Horace Allen, elderly retired wool manufacturer and a prominent figure in the social and financial life of Philadelphia for years, strove desperately today to aid his son, Edward H. B. Allen, 23, who is in jail charged with murdering young Donaldson.

Edward, said his father in a long and poignant statement, killed Donaldson because Donaldson had betrayed his sister, 18-year-old Rose Allen, one of last year's prettiest debutantes.

His statement was later answered by Mrs. Wharton Donaldson, aunt of the slain youth, who was acting as spokesman for the Donaldson family.

"Anything they can say about this dead boy can only reflect on those who say it," she said. "If any one cares to libel his daughter or sister, that is no concern of ours. Nothing they can say can hurt the boy's good character."

With his son in jail and his daughter still defiantly charging them both with responsibility for the shooting, the elder Allen told his version of the events leading up to the tragedy, revealed that he is now virtually impoverished, and that the entire affair "has nearly killed me."

Rose remained at the home of friends today, refusing to see her brother in jail, standing by her declaration that "they told me to get out so I got out and I'm going to stay out." It was her brother's demand that she leave home which led Monday night, to Donald's visit at the Allen home, and to his death.

The elder Allen said that his son is a "gentle, mild-mannered lad," and that he was frightened by Donaldson's "domineering attitude."

Young Allen is held without bail for action of the coroner's jury. He is widely known as a steeplechase rider and is considered one of the best in the country.

RETREATING CHINESE TROOPS ARE SHELLED BY JAPANESE aroused against Japanese by the clashes in Tientsin.

Streets were closed to traffic and patrols were put on duty.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Continued Anti-Japanese outbreaks resulted tonight in a declaration of martial law, effective at night, and Chinese military authorities stationed heavy patrols in the vicinity of the foreign settlements.

Anti-Japanese organizations looted Chinese shops of Japanese merchandise and Japan's Nationals were attacked in the streets. The commercial boycott is hitting all kinds of Japanese goods, especially cotton, sales of which have dropped 80 per cent.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tientsin, China, Nov. 11.—The Keen School for Girls, operated by American Methodist missionaries, and the Nankai School were evacuated today in fear of a renewal of the fighting that has kept Tientsin in uproar the last few days.

At the same time troops of the British and French concessions set up an international military patrol on the neutral zone adjacent to the Japanese concession.

Ultimatum Reported.

Reports were circulated that Japan had issued an ultimatum demanding that all Chinese defenders of Tientsin be withdrawn. These rumors could not be confirmed, but a reliable source was authority for the statement that negotiations opened tonight between the Chinese and Japanese and they were so successful in the initial stages that the Chinese authorities believed there no longer was danger of attack.

Although the nature of the negotiations was not divulged, it was assumed they involved the removal of the present Chinese administration and the substitution of a regime friendly to Japan.

The evacuation of the Keen School was accomplished under conditions that brought considerable hardship to the girl students.

They were taken to the French area by a roundabout route and many of them, suffering from nervous tension coupled with the fatigue of the long march, were in a state of collapse when they arrived.

All of the evacuated students, it is understood, will be taken to Peiping unless the possibility of further disorders is quickly removed. There was occasional rifle firing tonight, but for the most part the city was quiet.

Chinese authorities issued orders to their troops to take every precaution to prevent further clashes. Their instructions were to remain strictly on the defensive.

Both French and British troops exercised extreme care in protecting their concessions. In the vicinity to the French area boundary all pedestrians were searched and traffic was stopped after 8 p. m.

The Franco-British patrol was established after the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and other trade organizations renewed petitions asking that the French, British and American military authorities protect the area between the Japanese concession and the city.

International Guard Asked.

The Chinese had withdrawn from this "no man's land" in obedience to the terms of a Japanese ultimatum.

The same Chinese business men sent a message to Dr. Alfred Sze, China's League of Nation's spokesman, requesting that an international guard be posted.

"The situation is critical," the message said. "A business panic is threatened, communications are dislocated and urgent action is imperative."

Tokyo, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Emperor Hirohito ordered a fresh brigade of mixed troops and four naval destroyers to Manchuria today after Tokyo had received information of a battle between Japanese and Chinese troops on a new front.

The emperor dispatched the troops at the request of Gen. Hanzo Kanaya, chief of the general staff, who communicated with him at Kumamoto, where he is attending army maneuvers.

Admiral Baron Kiyotane, minister of marine, who was a member of the emperor's party at the war games, returned to Tokyo because of the increasing gravity of the conflict in Manchuria.

Dispatches received here told of an encounter between Japanese infantry and a party of wandering Chinese cavalry near Kuchengtzu yesterday, in which 300 Chinese and three Japanese were killed. Nine Japanese were wounded.

This is a new sector, 400 miles distant from the Nonni bridgehead, hitherto the center of operations for the two armies.

The war office announced that these new casualties bring Japan's total dead to 129, with 302 wounded. The number of Chinese casualties is not known here, but on the basis of newspaper dispatches, from 800 to 1,000 have been killed.

Japan has 13,000 men in Manchuria, against a Chinese force of about 250,000, according to war office figures, but many of the Chinese are said to have deserted and formed gypsy bands.

Officials announced that the fresh troops dispatched to Manchuria will replace a Korean brigade which has been on constant duty there since September 18.

The four destroyers were sent from Kure to Japanese-owned Port Arthur, on the southern tip of Manchuria and scene of the great conflict of the Russo-Japanese War. In addition the naval cruiser Yakuno was ordered from Yokosuka Tosasebo, within striking distance of Manchuria, to await further instructions.

Japan has intensified efforts to present her case to the world in a more favorable light. The government today furnished all ambassadors abroad with a statement of the Tokyo position and with a list of what Japan terms China's "misdeeds."

Charges of Japan.

This includes charges that the Nanking government has failed to respect Japan's treaty rights, that the Chinese have failed to maintain order and that they have systematically harassed the Japanese in an area where Japan's nationals have more than $1,000,000,000 invested.

Nanking, China, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Three thousand students paraded in a driving rain through Nanking tonight, demanding that the government declare war against Japan.

Both men and women took part in the frenzied demonstration. The voluntary military corps was among the marchers, and its members shouted demands that troops be put into the field to take the offensive.

Severance of all economic relations with Japan was another cry of the demonstrators. The parade was said to have resulted from feeling aroused by the disturbances in Tientsin.

U. S. Agrees to Patrol.

Peiping, China, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Reports to the American Legation today indicated that American troops were to join the French and British tonight in occupying defense positions at Tientsin.

Lieut. William G. Wyman, assistant military attache at the legation, was ordered to Tientsin to report on developments there.

American, British, French and Italian military authorities agreed to the formation of an international patrol in the neutral zone adjacent to the Tientsin Japanese concession provided Japan and China approve.

Word was received here that the Japanese forces along the Nonni River have been increased to 4,000 and that they have 40 field guns and two airplanes. The Chinese rebel force under Gen. Chang Hai-Peng, said by the Chinese to be assisting Japan, is estimated to total about 6,000.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Japan has resumed the offensive in the Nonni Bridge area in Manchuria, China declared tonight in an urgent communication to the League of Nations.

The message said Japan's troops had advanced their lines and were 20 kilometers on the road to Tsitsihar.

The Chinese were retiring, the communication continued, under bomb attacks and shell fire from the Japanese forces.

Navy Planes Join Caribbean Search

Airways Pilot Covers 20-Mile Circle in Hunt for Group Adrift.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—W. D. Culberson, Pan-American Airways pilot, failed today to find traces of a group of shipwrecked persons reported adrift in the Caribbean Sea approximately 80 miles west of Cartagena Monday.

He advised the flying company's Miami base by radio that he surveyed a 20 mile circle near the spot the group was reported to be drifting.

(Associated Press.)

Three Navy seaplanes left the air base at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, yesterday morning to aid the mine sweeper Swan in the search for thirteen castaways reported sighted off the coast of Colombia. The planes will land on Colombian territory if they have any difficulties on the long hop.

EARLY CLERK VOTING IS AGAINST A. F. OF L.

one local who could not be reached in time to have their votes recorded.

Although these first reports are not enough to be conclusive, they are taken by national leaders as indicative of sentiment among federation members.

There was no indication yesterday that the plea made by Mr. Green, Frank Morrison, secretary of the American federation, and others, at a meeting with officers of locals in Washington, met with any warm response.

The meeting was called through Frank J. Coleman, secretary of the District Central Labor Union, after an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Green and Mr. Steward and Miss McNally, in which the employes' leaders sharply criticized the kind of help and assistance which had been given them by Mr. Green and other American federation leaders. Mr. Green asked the locals not to withdraw and promised every assistance.

Whatever chance of reconciliation there might have been after the Vancouver convention action, however, is believed to have been completely dissipated by Mr. Green's indorsement of the Gifford employment committee scheme to compel Government workers to give up part of their jobs to unemployed persons, to dismiss married women and those who were found to have other members of their families on the Government pay roll.

This report was submitted by a committee headed by Harry A. Wheeler, millionaire Chicago banker, of which Mr. Green was a member. The report caused something like consternation among thousands of Government workers and it was suggested that Mr. Green should disapprove those parts of the report, but this he would not do.

Those familiar with the situation believe that the Wheeler-Green report was in the minds of Mr. Steward and Miss McNally when they wrote Mr. Green about the Vancouver convention repudiation of reclassification legislation. Mr. Green had protested that he had not known of the executive council recommendation against reclassification until after it had been made.

"The members of the executive council," the employes' leaders replied, "are responsible for statements contained in the report signed by them, irrespective of the fact that they might not have known of the content."

So far as the Government employes are concerned Mr. Green could have won much ground by refusing to concur in the discharge recommendations of his employment committee and probably would have lost no ground with the administration, inasmuch as President Hoover himself rejected the scheme as impracticable and ineffective.

Announcement of the President's decision relieved a growing tension among Government employes, who had been fearful that President Hoover, having appointed his employment committee, would feel bound to accept its recommendations or, at least, not to reject them specifically.

Session Discusses Urban-Rural Fight

Formation of City-States Urged at Conference on Government.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The widely discussed "Urban-Rural Conflict in Government" claimed the attention of the majority of delegates today as the National Conference on Government entered its third and final day.

Discussion of this subject by the American Legislators Association, National Association of Civic Secretaries and National Municipal League was introduced by brief addresses by C. E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago, and Malcolm McDermott, of Duke University Law School.

Prof. McDermott urged elimination of duplications and conflict by establishment of only one local governmental unit in each subdivision of the State. Prof. Merriam advocated establishment of "city-States" by New York, Chicago, Detroit and other metropolitan cities.

Murdered Woman Is Found in Grave

Chicago Gang Warfare Is Blamed by Sheriff for Crime.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The body of a woman and shreds of blood-stained clothing were found sealed in oilcloth today in a shallow grave on a lonely tract of land northwest of the city.

Sheriff Lester Edinger, of McHenry County, first to reach the grave after it was discovered by two boys, said he believed the woman had been killed by gangsters. Vengeance or fear that she might inform police concerning crimes were advanced by the sheriff as possible reasons for her death.

The first examination of the body disclosed no wounds, but Edinger said he was convinced she died a violent death. It was believed that identification of the body would be impossible, except by persons who knew her well. Quicklime had been packed into the container with the body.

ADM. FISKE DEFENDS LEAGUE IN NAVY ROW

Retired Officer Describes Gardiner as Sincere and Prodigious Student.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, chief of naval operations in the early part of the late war, today struck out in defense of William Howard Gardiner, president of the Navy League, and declared that organization was necessary to keep the public informed because politicians "Gag Navy officers and do all they can to discredit their intelligence and motives."

In a radio address he said:

"The Navy League is simply an organization of about 4,000 men and women who have become deeply impressed with the fact that the pacifistic conduct of our Government has already got us into three wars; the War of 1812, the Civil War, and the World War, and that it may get us into another war, in which we may be conquered on the sea and despoiled of all our wealth."

Lauding Mr. Gardiner as a sincere and prodigious student of his subject and calling him "a pupil of mine, in a sense, for three or four years," the speaker added:

Lauds Gardiner's Knowledge.

"I do not know of any navy officer who has more broad and accurate information in regard to the subject on which he writes, and I know of only two or three civilians who come anywhere near him in this respect. How is it humanly possible for any civilian to have any true concept of the Navy unless he has made a specialty of it as Mr. Gardiner has?

"The real reason for our failure to keep an adequate Army and Navy during all the years of our existence has not really been a faith in treaties. It has been simple cowardice. The talk about treaties has simply been an excuse.

"We have always been afraid of the dangers and inconveniences of war and have given treaties as our excuse for failure to prepare for it. This lack of preparedness, although it has saved us money and effort for a while, has in the end got us into a horrible expenditure of money and blood and effort that could have been avoided.

Cites Manchurian Crisis.

"To give a sharp point to this brief address, let me ask your attention to the fighting going on in Manchuria and its possible menace to our country. Remember that we have a very valuable possession, the Philippine Islands, not far from the scene of the fighting, and remember that wars are highly infectious.

"It is impossible for us, of course, to understand the situation very clearly, but certainly it is clear that the diplomatic machine broke down when faced with it.

"No matter whether we think Japan is in the wrong or not, the undeniable fact is that treaties have wholly failed to prevent the killing of soldiers in uniform that is going on right now.

"Please keep these facts in mind when forming your opinion about the Navy League."

Laval Flying Squadron Takes 70 in Corsica Raid

Ajjacio, Corsica, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Seventy persons have been arrested and two towns occupied to date as flying squadrons of French pushed their way into the interior of Napoleon's native isle to stamp out banditry.

The squadrons, comprising 1,500 men and equipped with machine guns, armored cars and police dogs, came from Marseille under direct orders from Premier Laval to rid the island of gangsters who have robbed and killed in recent weeks.

ruling, for he was a caustic figure who once described all critics as "ignoramuses" and threw up a government job here in 1855 to go to Europe and paint.

Whistler won his fame while abroad. Some consider his etchings superior even to Rembrandt's.

Whistler was born in Lowell, Mass., and studied at West Point. He left the military school to work for the Coast and Geodetic Survey. At 21 he went to France to study art.

He has been described as a man who was a master at "the gentle art of making enemies." At one time he sued Ruskin for slander and was awarded a farthing, which he thereafter wore on his watch charm. He died in London in 1903.

TAX RAISE TO CLEAR DEFICIT ADVOCATED

Banker Group Recommends Special Sales Levies for Emergency.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Moderate tax increases to liquidate the Federal Government's estimated budget deficit of $2,000,000,000, were advocated at the closing session of the Investment Bankers Association today.

The funds probably would be raised partly through special, not general, sales taxes, to be considered as emergency assessments and abandoned as economic conditions improve.

the association indorsed the National Credit Corporation as having "brought not only hope, but the organizing of tangible and practical aid to our domestic economy which bids fair measurably and promptly to correct a difficult credit situation."

The resolution praised President Hoover and the Nation's bankers for their promptness in making quickly effective the corporation, which is to help loosen the frozen assets of the banks.

Estimating that the Government faces a probable $2,000,000,000 deficit in this fiscal year, and further deficits in the next few years, until economic conditions improve, the association urged immediate congressional action to raise funds.

It urged the abolition of the capital gains and losses tax, which assesses, for instance, profits made in stock transactions, but stressed that such abolishments should be deferred for a year so that the tax might include losses in bad business times, just as they were assessed for gains in prosperity.

Abandonment immediately of the estate tax, which was characterized as an emergency war measure that has outlived its usefulness, was urged to prevent it from becoming "a permanent part of the Federal tax structure."

Panama Canal Reopens To Light-Draft Vessels

Balboa, Canal Zone, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The Panama Canal was opened to ships of light draft today and the first vessel, S. S. Incalite, started through since a landslide blocked the Gaillard Cut on Saturday.

Seventy-eight ships remaining at both ends of the canal will be permitted to pass through as quickly as possible, but must proceed cautiously and will use tugs instead of their own power.

Dollar Liner Ends Run.

Honolulu, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The new Dollar liner President Coolidge, on the first leg of its maiden voyage across the Pacific, arrived here last night to complete the 2,400-mile run from San Francisco in four days and four hours. The time did not constitute a record.

DAWES CHOSEN TO ATTEND SESSIONS OF LEAGUE IN PARIS

precedent of previous membership on the council.

It is believed his instructions envisage his presence on the council itself, but it is the desire of Secretary Stimson that Ambassador Dawes confine himself, insofar as he is able, to informal meetings with the various delegates and discussions outside the council sessions, where the influence of the United States would be exerted without any fear of criticism of too much league influence later on in senatorial circles opposed to the league and all its works and pomps.

The United States will not take any further steps between now and the convocation of the council next Monday to adjust the tangled Manchurian situation. Quiet diplomatic exchanges between Washington and Tokyo will continue, but so far as decisive action is concerned, it is believed the United States has rested its case.

Envoy Recall Abandoned.

The State Department has persistently endeavored to maintain its independence of diplomatic action in the settlement of the Manchurian difficulties between China and Tokyo. At one moment this independence went so far as to consider recalling American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes from Tokyo as an indication of "diplomatic displeasure." The tenor of the Japanese reply to the Stimson "aide-memoire," however, was of such a nature as to preclude the necessity of any move so drastic as ambassadorial recall. The league council will have before it several courses of action, ranging from the invocation of article 16 of the league covenant, which provides for economic sanctions, to the comparatively more moderate step of invoking the Nine-Power Treaty or the Kellogg-Briand pact.

The council, it is believed from authoritative circles here, does not envision the necessity of any sanctions, either economic or political. The full results of the Chinese boycott have accomplished in fact what the league council could only do in theory.

Significance of Move.

The presence of Gen. Dawes in Paris at the time the council is meeting will assure the Chinese and Japanese, as well as the other nations members of the council, that the United States is determined to bring every effort to the solution of the Manchurian conflict. Ambassador Dawes will be able to act a great deal more on his own initiative than could Mr. Gilbert, whose talents and whose striking success at Geneva have been the subject of much favorable comment in the Department of State.

Secretary Stimson's formal announcement of Ambassador Dawes' appointment to the council meeting was as follows:

"I have asked Gen. Dawes, the ambassador in London, to go to Paris during the coming meeting of the statesmen who compose the Council of the League of Nations. Inasmuch as this meeting will consider the present situation in Manchuria and questions may arise which will affect the interests or treaty obligations of the United States, I desire to have at hand in Paris a man of Gen. Dawes' standing, particularly as the American ambassador to Paris is at home on leave. It is not anticipated that Gen. Dawes will find it necessary to take part in the meetings of the league council, but he will be in a position to confer with the representatives of the other nations present in Paris in case such conference should seem desirable."

Simon to Attend Council.

London, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Sir John Simon, the new foreign secretary, is going to Paris next Monday for the League of Nations meeting on Manchuria. In London the opinion is that the issue will be brought down to earth at this session and some sort of definite plan for dealing with the situation in Manchuria may be evolved.

One way out, it is suggested, would be for the league to appoint an international investigating commission whose work, in the Far East, would require several months during which the belligerents might cool off and the dispute might be settled by peaceful negotiations.

Failing this, an alternative would be an attempt to force Japanese obedience to the league's dictates, but no authoritative commentator would say he thought the league was likely to adopt such a course.

The weapon of economic pressure will remain in its sheath, it is thought. One observer pointed out that the United States sells $300,000,000 worth of cotton to Japan every year and that in these times of lean markets probably would not be willing to sacrifice so important an item.

In the same way Great Britain is trying to take every possible advantage of increasing its trade in the Far East with the spur to British exports which resulted from abandonment of the gold standard. Likewise every nation in Europe probably would be disinclined to take any step which might reduce its exports.

MISCONDUCT CHARGE DENIED BY DREISER

Accuses Judge in Kentucky of Blinding Minds of Citizens.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Theodore Dreiser today gave out for publication a signed statement in which he flatly denied the charge of adultery brought against him in Bell County, Ky.

The novelist, who was visiting the Yorktown battlefield area, first took occasion to "get the American mind off of sex for a moment," by his denial and then proceeded to "use said moment to discuss the Harlan situation and other matters."

"The first thing," he said, "before attempting to discuss any important economic or social matter in America, is to assure, or rather convince everybody—church and state alike—of your complete and unabridged personal sex morality. Otherwise they will not be able to get their minds off the matter and they can not bring themselves to any serious mental attention."

He then offered "reassurance" that he was "incapable" of committing the offense with which he has been charged and that the fact that he might be seen "talking, walking or dining with an attractive girl or woman means nothing more than that a friendly and quite moral conversation is being indulged in."

Termed as Groundless.

His statement, he said, showed "how obviously groundless is the sullied and quite malicious charge" brought against him and added "there was no misconduct on my part with any young woman there or elsewhere."

Mr. Dreiser's statement charged that Judge Jones, who instructed the grand jury which returned the indictment against him, "is merely blinding the minds of citizens to the really dreadfully cruel and evil crimes that are being committed against the poorest and most underpaid and most long-suffering type of laborer, his wife and child that I have ever seen. In fact, I was deeply moved and made angry not only by what I heard but by what I saw."

Visit of Committee.

Telling of the three-day visit of his committee to the mining districts in Kentucky and of the evidence taken from witnesses, he said that testimony of the sheriff of Harlan County and of the district attorney had been obtained but not that of Judge Jones despite the fact, he said, that the latter had offered to appear if called upon.

"When," he continued, "after the committee had already begun to take the testimony of many—those who had been shot at—or shot—including the wives and relatives of those who had been killed, also of men who had been present when soup kitchens, seeking to fed hungry miners, their wives and children, were dynamited, as well as of men who had been arrested and jailed for collecting food or money for starving miners, we sought to question him, he had disappeared."

"Gigolo Lover" Is Given 30 Years to Life Term

New York, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—James Depew, called the "gigolo lover," was sentenced to a prison term of from 30 years to life today after he had pleaded guilty to a second degree murder charge in the killing of John T. Conlin. The plea came during the third day of his and Mrs. Amy Conlin's trial on first degree murder charges.

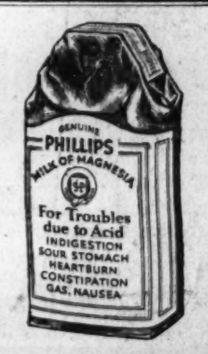
Mrs. Conlin was acquitted when the court ordered a verdict of not guilty in her case. She was rearrested immediately on a charge of conspiring to rob her husband and was held in $7,500 bail.

Old Man Winter Sweeps Into Colorado With Snow

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Old man winter chose Armistice Day for a new offensive in the Rocky Mountain West today and a chill wind heralded the arrival of snow and cold weather.

The storm was held indirectly responsible for the death of one person and the injury of five others in an automobile accident at Springville, Utah. Philip C. Luna, 19, was killed when his automobile collided with a westbound Denver & Rio Grande passenger train. Both the driver of the car and the engineer were blinded by a snowstorm.

Real relief from CONSTIPATION



WHENEVER digestive distress follows mealtime, you can suspect an acid condition.

Acidity affects the appetite. What food you do eat sours in the stomach. The tongue becomes coated. The breath is bad. Sick headaches become frequent. You are constipated.

These are danger signals which should never go unheeded. Your system is fairly shouting its need of help; something to help remove the acid waste and restore alkaline balance. An anti-acid to offset the effect of too rich a diet, nervousness, excitement, &c.

Men and women who meet this need promptly with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia do not suffer. They eat well, and their food doesn't ferment in the stomach. Every trace of over acidity soon disappears. All sour gas is dispelled. Stomach, liver and bowels have a better chance to function.

If there is the least hint of too much acid, just take a spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia today, and for several days. Feel this sweeten your stomach. Note how appetite improves. And elimination. You will wonder how anything so pleasant tasting can be so promptly effective. 25c and 50c bottles at drug stores everywhere.

Phillips' Dental Magnesia Tooth-paste guards against acid-mouth; keeps gums firm and teeth pearly white.

WAR DEBTS AND COLONIES.

Current discussion of war debts and the plight of Europe has led to a revival of the suggestion first made by Lord Rothermere in 1919—that the chief debtor nations cede to the United States their West Indian possessions in part payment of the obligations which they find difficult to meet. If European nations press for cancellation or a further scaling down of their debts this proposal will be inevitably thrust forward.

Before the war came to a close the allied powers of Europe had already negotiated secret treaties for dividing Germany's colonies among themselves. Each of the participants had been promised a slice of territory in return for its aid. The German colonies were to be appropriated without reference to any rights of self-determination on the part of the inhabitants and without any thought of preventing exploitation. In the negotiations at Versailles, however, President Wilson insisted that the colonies taken from Germany and territory acquired from Turkey should not be annexed by the allied powers, but should be held under mandates. The system adopted for control of this territory was a compromise between the two points of view.

Three classes of mandates were established. Class A mandates, including the three Arab countries of Syria, Mesopotamia and Palestine, occupy somewhat the same position as the Philippine Islands under the United States. After a provisional tutelage they are promised independence. But there are no prospects of independence for the mandates under Classes B and C. To all intent and purposes they are territory acquired by the allied nations as the spoils of war. The Class C mandates in the South Seas and South Africa are being absorbed as integral parts of the British Empire and Dominions and the Japanese Empire.

There is no exact method of measuring the value of these new colonies acquired chiefly by Great Britain and France as the result of the war. The British mandates, excluding those of Class A, extend over 820,860 square miles and have 5,528,000 inhabitants. France's share of the spoils amounted to 295,000 square miles, with 3,518,000 inhabitants. Since both France and Britain are colonial nations that count heavily upon trade with their colonies, it may be assumed that they value these acquisitions highly.

The fact that the allied powers of Europe despoiled Germany of its colonies makes it embarrassing for them to ask the American people to pay the cost of the war. These territories were not ceded to the League of Nations, as many erroneously supposed, but to the allied and associated powers, including the United States. This Government refused to claim any of the spoils of war, so the European nations divided Germany's colonies among themselves. Having thus enriched themselves from the war, they look to the United States to assume their war debts.

America would not, of course, consider taking over any African colonies as partial payment of the war debts. But Great Britain and France have considerable territory in the West Indies and South America that might be turned over to this country if they are unable to meet their obligations. The British holdings include the Bermudas, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Dominica, Grenada, Barbados, Trinidad and British Guiana. France also has considerable territory in American waters, including the island of Martinique and French Guiana. Why should the two countries which enriched their colonial empires at Germany's expense be opposed to transferring these possessions to the United States as part payment on their war debts?

There are several painless ways in which European governments could relieve themselves of a part of their burdens. An alternative to transfer of West Indian possessions to the United States is disarmament. But Europe is not willing to give up either territory or arms. It will be difficult to convince the American people and their representatives that Europe is in need of charity so long as the debtor nations insist on holding all their war gains and wasting billions of tax money in armaments.

The question of transferring British and French possessions in the West Indies to the United States should not be overlooked if this Government is again asked to consider the capacity of the debtor nations to pay. They are quite able to pay in the same coin as they exacted from Germany.

A BID TO RADICALS.

Just as the Democratic party begins to reach out to grasp its "golden opportunity" along comes Senator Wheeler with threats of a third party. The senator is convinced that a Democratic candidate who does not meet with his approval would have no chance of defeating President Hoover. Hence, the party must accept his dictation or suffer another schism that would make a Republican victory easy.

Senator Wheeler is that loyal son of Montana who deserted his party in 1924 to run for the Vice Presidency on a third party ticket with the late Senator La Follette. At present he is supporting Gov. Roosevelt for the nomination because he thinks the New Yorker is the most radical candidate in the Democratic line-up of possibilities. The senator does not insist that the nomination must go to Gov. Roosevelt, but that the nominee be equally as "liberal" as the governor. Who else could meet those qualifications, except the Montana senator himself? Perhaps Mr. Wheeler is taking this means of precipitating his own hat into the ring.

It is absurd to suppose that Gov. Roosevelt would run as a third party candidate if he should be defeated in the convention. Who then would carry the "liberal" banner as a protest against the "Eastern bosses" of the Democratic party? For such an undertaking there is no instrument of half the worth of Senator Wheeler.

Senator Wheeler's little sortie is important because it reminds the Democratic leaders that they, no less than the Republicans, are bedeviled by an insurgent clique that is ready to throw the party to the wolves at any time to further its own ends. There is one significant difference between the Democratic and Republican insurgents, however. The former have a habit of running out, while the latter nearly always run in on election day.

RECOVERY FROM PANICS.

History shows that depressions have not only repeated themselves with considerable regularity in the United States, but that the reactions of the people, both in good times and bad, have been remarkably uniform. Succeeding generations have continued to plunge into booming markets regardless of evident inflation of values, and again many have felt with each ebb tide of business that prosperity would never return. Every depression doubtless has its variations, but every one has disappeared and invariably has been followed by another period of profitable activity.

Thirteen major depressions and half a dozen minor ones have afflicted this country during the last 100 years. Beginning with the collapse of 1837 there was recorded a wave of unreasoning pessimism, a feeling that the Nation's budding industries would never recover. It was not called mob psychology in those days, but the widespread loss of confidence had the same effect as was evident in the panics of 1857 and 1873 and in the disordered retreat toward common sense following the mad gamble of 1929.

In the panic of 1873 at least 72 railroad corporations were in default; rents fell 30 per cent; there were nearly 50,000 business failures; industry came to a standstill and laborers by the thousands were out of work. Twenty years later the hard times of 1893 caused equal loss and hardship. No less than 156 railways went into the hands of receivers, including the Erie, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific. Unemployment was general and securities fell to one-fourth of their former values. Dangers unknown today threatened. President Cleveland was obliged to call upon a group of bankers to avert disaster to the Federal Treasury.

The more recent panic years of 1907 and 1923 brought difficulties that are keenly remembered by many still in business today. Each resulted in closed factories, bread lines and sudden losses in all securities.

The average duration of these numerous depressions is nearly two years. The present one slightly exceeded that period before the upturn of recent weeks was noticeable. Hard times during the last two years have probably been less severe than in other depressions; certainly 1930 and 1931 are not comparable to the prolonged and desperate hardships following the panic of 1873.

Overproduction, overexpansion, too much speculation and too much easy credit brought about the crash. Now, after two years of retrenchment all along the line, enforced economies and consumption of accumulated stocks, the country is once more at a point where its demands require the wheels of industry to resume production. Never at the end of a depression has the United States been so well prepared to resume normal activity. With good crops and better prices for commodities, with banks full of money seeking safe investment, all that has been needed for some time was a return of general confidence. Throughout the Nation an awakening appreciation of the boundless nature of the country's resources and the solidity of its institutions has taken possession of the people. The results are already seen in improving conditions reported from every section of the land.

PARKING IN WASHINGTON.

Washingtonians will find it difficult to understand the attitude of righteous wrath which is assumed by the Fine Arts Commission in demanding more stringent parking regulations. Since Washington is the National Capital the commission takes the view that its streets and parks belong to the people of the entire country and that residents of the District ought to make themselves and their automobiles scarce so that visitors may enjoy to the full the beauty of the Federal City. Otherwise, the commission fears, the invitation to citizens "to visit their Capital would seem but a mockery."

Has the commission stopped to consider that the taxpayers of Washington furnish most of the money that is spent for construction and maintenance of streets and parks? It complains as if residents of the District were intruders. Why should Washingtonians be allowed to park their automobiles on the streets when visitors from the Far West may drop in upon the city some day and find it inconvenient to park in the congested area? In the eyes of the commission this amounts to "robbing the people of the United States of their heritage." Yet the commission does not hesitate to recommend that residents of the District be denied rights that are extended to residents of all other American cities.

The commission's attitude toward the National Capital takes on an extremely fanciful aspect. Washington is considered as a "work of art," which is being desecrated by parked automobiles. It might be suggested to the commission that automobiles moving on the streets and people on the sidewalks also disfigure the fine buildings and parks. Would it have the Capital deserted so that tourists might visit the seat of Government and find it undefiled by any taint of commerce or human habitation?

Stringent parking restrictions are already in effect. Angle parking has been abolished. Throughout the congested area the one-hour limit is in effect. As traffic in the city increases it will doubtless be necessary to make more drastic regulations. But the intimation of the Fine Arts Commission that parking on the streets ought to be prohibited is too impractical to be worthy of serious consideration. The commission's proposal would have been more effective if it had been accompanied by some plan for the parking of cars. If cars are to be prevented from parking along streets and parkways, where would the Fine Arts Commission park them? Let it be specific.

"A man like me, under our system," says Senator Norris, "is prohibited from being elected President of the United States just as much as though he had been born in Canada or some European nation." This is the first time that the Nebraskan has praised the American electoral system.

Americans are becoming good fishermen, says a noted sportsman. Yes, every family has learned that the best time to throw out the hooks is when the Yuletide is coming in.

A three-billion-dollar bond issue for roads is proposed, but we may have to use the money on the road to Mandalay.

The flower of American youth is being turned back to the farms because the plants in the cities are dead.

ASTRONOMY'S GOLDEN AGE

From the New York Times.

To the 100-inch Hooker telescope of Mount Wilson we owe new means of determining stellar distances, the discovery of galaxies that dwarf our own, a new conception of the scale of the universe, the first measures of the diameters of stars, valuable information on the constitution of matter, experimental proof of the theory of relativity. What may not, then, be expected of still more powerful instruments, of more refined methods of studying the heavens? Prof. Shapley, of Harvard, unfolded the possibilities in his stimulating article in yesterday's New York Times. The universe may be finite, but the opportunities are infinite.

Prof. Shapley deplores the brevity of man's life. His few years of study and observation are but the ticking of a second as time is measured by the cosmic clock. But the limitation is a test of ingenuity. The processes of the stars can not be accelerated; yet the methods of the mathematician make it possible to retrace the past and to predict the future. Each new discovery is a key that opens doors to new rooms filled with treasures of knowledge. The theories of the relativists have raised more questions than they have answered, but they have also acted as a stimulus. It may be, as Prof. Shapley says, that the human intellect is too feeble and inexperienced ever to comprehend the universe in its entirety. Certainly the panorama that has been unfolded during the last generation crushes by its vastness. And yet the more that is to be discovered the more hopeful and buoyant does the astronomer seem to become.

Time was when Oriental sultans and Western monarchs provided the means for constructing the instruments with which the heavens were explored. Like art, astronomy can advance only when patronized by wealth. It is therefore but natural that the major work of exploration should have fallen to the lot of the United States, richest of nations. It speaks well for our philanthropists that they have generously made it possible to build and equip the finest observatories the world has ever seen, and that leadership in astronomy has consequently passed to the United States. It is to these men of romantic imagination that we must look to carry out the program that Prof. Shapley has outlined to make the period from 1930 to 1940 especially glorious in the annals of astronomy.

"Yes, sire," replied the jester wise,
"Sneer at them, pity, and despise
When they in fortune's favoring hour
Grow arrogantly drunk on power.
They, too, at last themselves destroy
By the one thing they most enjoy.
"Money and power are deadly stuff;
Few men know when they've had enough.
By them the noblest minds are dulled;
The voice of conscience strangely lulled,
The finer instincts put to rout.
Yes, sire, beyond the slightest doubt
The thirst for power makes even kings
Do many savage, senseless things."

He Was the Greatest Among Us, for He Was the Servant of All.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

HE who would save his life shall lose it.

It is easier to understand that truth if you will study the life and death of Edison.

As Edison drew near the end of life, he drifted into the state of coma that so frequently makes the way easy for old people and those who have suffered long.

It is a state more like death than life. All of the faculties have gone, leaving no sign of life except the faint pulsations of the heart. The body is like a mill at night, when executives and workmen have gone home, leaving only the watchman and the banked fires under the boilers. The heart is almost still. Death sits at the bedside, waiting.

From that state Edison aroused for one brief moment and spoke aloud. It was as though his spirit, standing on the threshold of another world, had turned back to render one last service to mankind.

The words he spoke will bring comfort to countless millions. He said: "It is very beautiful over there."

If religion had been one of his chief interests, or if he had developed a firm belief in a blessed life after death, skeptics might say that his slowly-weakening mind drifted into accustomed channels and caused him to dream the thing he so firmly believed and hoped for.

But he had no faith in eternal life. His scientist's mind, trained to accept conclusions only when experiment demonstrated their truth, neither believed nor disbelieved. He was resigned to endless death or endless life. Neither prospect caused him anxiety. He had done his best and was ready for what might come.

And thus his very lack of conviction is evidence that something he saw as his spirit hovered between two worlds so surprised and astonished him that the shock of discovery aroused his waning faculties and brought him back for a moment to the world he was quitting.

He saw a beautiful land awaiting him.

He had not labored selfishly to win immortal life. He had not withdrawn from the world to save his soul. He had never been "good" in hope of reward.

He had served mankind as no other mortal man ever served it, and had found the privilege of service a sufficient reward.

In losing his life he saved it. In serving man he served God, and death brought him assurance of continued life over there where it is very beautiful.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

The Narrow Margin.

Los Angeles Times.

Technically, it may be said that the Democratic party will control the next House of Representatives, a responsibility the party may well accept with considerable hesitation and which it perhaps does not welcome. The control, in fact, is only technical, since the decline of the caucus system makes it impossible for either party really to control with so narrow a margin. The Democrats, therefore, are in the uncomfortable position of a man with responsibility but no authority. The situation will deprive them of some of their favorite sport of stone-throwing, with no compensating advantages. They will, to all appearances, organize the House of Representatives, but they will be unable to line up the solid party strength on any important measure, and thus will be impotent to carry out anything resembling a party program.

This is not said in derogation of the Democrats, since the Republicans, with a nominal margin of only one or two, would be in precisely the same predicament. There are always a few men in Congress who regard themselves as completely free agents and others upon whom party ties pull lightly. No party can be said to control with a majority of less than 30 or 40, as a practical matter.

Their Victory Is Loaded.

Indianapolis Star.

Now that Democratic control of the House seems assured, the party can begin shouldering the responsibility of wiping out the deficit.

It May Come to That.

Indianapolis Star.

It is time somebody began worrying about what will happen to House control if the Republicans can't get it and the Democrats won't have it.

Our Useless Extravagances.

Springfield Republican.

That about Mr. Garner which has perhaps registered most widely on the public mind is the fact that he and the late Speaker Longworth, although of opposite political faith and rivals for the Speakership at the coming Congress, were boon companions and that they used to chaff each other about the future ownership of the automobile assigned to the Speaker's use. It is a fact not without significance. It fits the description of Mr. Garner, accepted by the more intimate observers of the Washington scene, as "energetic, boisterous and generally enthusiastic," a wit and a story teller and an unusually effective figure in the less responsible role of minority leader.

When he first came to Congress in 1903—his service since then being unbroken—the leaders of his own party, according to Mr. Garner's picturesque version, thought he was "just another cow thief from Texas."

Political Pendulum in Kentucky.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

In the course of three years the political pendulum in Kentucky has swung through an arc of more than 90 degrees—a spread of 250,000 in a total of considerably less than a million votes between Hoover's majority in 1928 and Laffoon's in 1931. Few States can equal this record for unstable equilibrium.

For 36 years the governorship has alternated. Bradley, Republican, was elected in 1895, followed by the contested Goebel-Taylor election; then Beckham, Democrat; Willson, Republican; McCreary, Democrat; Stanley, Democrat, by a few hundred majority; Morrow, Republican, by a big majority; Fields, Democrat, by a big majority; Sampson, Republican, but losing the rest of his ticket; and Laffoon, Democrat, by a big majority. National and senatorial elections till ten years ago indicated that Kentucky was Democratic by a gradually diminishing margin, but Coolidge and Hoover each carried the State.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Franchise for Public Garage Should Be Given to Private Parties Under Government Regulation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following suggestion is offered as a basis for the solution of the "parking problem" in Washington.

Philadelphia successfully financed a bridge on a charge to the user. The States of New York and New Jersey have built a tunnel and bridge on the same financial setup. It seems that everybody is satisfied. Bridges and roads in various parts of the country have been built on this basis. In fact, it is only a return to "toll bridge" and "toll road" financing and operation of our forefathers, but somewhat modified.

Here is a suggestion which modifies the above plans to be used for financing and operation of "public garages." The idea would be to give or sell a franchise to private interests for building and operating "public garages," the municipality to limit the size and number of garages which may be built, and where and when. The municipality should also control the charge for services. The chief objective should be "parking cars." Such other service as might be rendered under the franchise should be a separate charge. The latter might be termed "speculative velvet" for the operating company.

To keep the financing, building and operating costs as low as may be, the municipality should superintend every step. The supervision should be as close as that of the Treasury Department over banks, that of the Federal Trade Commission over general business and that of the Interstate Commerce Commission over transportation. Under this plan, the advantage would be the low cost to the user, yet leave a fair return to the investor. This return ought not to be more than 5 per cent.

Again such a plan of financing and operation would keep the Government out of business. There is no special reason why the District government or Federal Government should build garages for their employes, since the clerk in the store pays as much toward the costs of government as the municipal or Federal employe; and certainly his position is more uncertain. The skilled laborer in private employment has no advantages not enjoyed by the skilled laborer employed by either of the governments. And it does not occur to me that the one should be taxed to support the other. GROVER W. AYERS.

What Would Happen if Either France or the United States Should Abolish the Gold Standard?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos your editorial, "Financial Leadership," in which you quote Prof. E. W. Kemmerer's assertion that "the gold standard in the United States is impregnable," might I raise the question, "What would happen if, by deliberate act, either the United States or France (the holders of all the gold) should abrogate the gold standard?"

To answer this, consider the primary reason why the gold is in the United States and France. It is in these countries to safeguard it. Why to safeguard it? Merely to safeguard its price! Those who own gold are interested in only one thing—that the price of that gold shall be maintained and enhanced if possible.

Now, as we all know, gold is not only a commodity with a price like all other commodities; it is also at times money. Consequently arises the basic principle that the price of gold can only be maintained at the sacrifice of the prices of all other commodities. The collapse of world commodity prices, with its disastrous effect on nation after nation, was caused by the ability of those who owned gold to maneuver to maintain its price.

When the price of gold can be broken, naturally world commodity prices will recover. The quickest way to break the price of gold is to make gold unsafe here and in France! The "gold standard" is pegging the price of gold here and in France.

President Hoover Is Applying Strong Medicine to a Very Sick World. Praised for His Work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I rejoice to see Premier Laval's statement that President Hoover "looks upon the world's problems with deep concern for humanity and with the lucidity of a great statesman." President Hoover will go down in history as a great President. Lord Rosebery during the World War is reported to have said that he did not want to live into the war's aftermath, for mighty nations were literally bleeding to death. President Hoover is a physician trying to put red blood back into exhausted nations—the moratorium, disarmament, the Navy cut, the National Credit Corporation, the railway plan, these are all strong medicines applied to a very sick world. Could any other man do better before such superhuman problems?

I was glad to hear today an Italian workman say: "I'm not a Hoover man, but they are treating him bad, and he's doing noble." E. TILTON.

Suggests a Worldwide Boycott of Japanese Goods for the Purpose of Dethroning the War Lords of Japan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let all the peace-loving people of the world, from importers to parcel-post customers, immediately stop buying Japanese goods, without waiting for governmental action. Diplomatic proceedings are slow. The friends of peace can make their will known immediately and effectively. A worldwide boycott of Japanese goods will tumble the militarists of Japan from their seat of power when the people of Japan see what their imperialistic designs upon Manchuria must cost them. Another world war must be prevented. EVANS FORD.

WORLD OPIUM BAN DEMANDED BY U. S.

Delegate to Bangkok Parley Opposes Monopoly Policy of Other Nations.

(Associated Press.)

World-wide prohibition of the traffic in smoking opium was called for yesterday by the United States through John K. Caldwell, its representative at an international conference at Bangkok, Siam.

In the statement made there by the American delegate, which was made public at the State Department, other governments were urged to follow the example of the United States in placing an absolute ban on the traffic rather than attempting restriction through a government monopoly.

Caldwell, the department's narcotic expert who holds the rank of consul general, asserted this government believed the time had come when concerted action on the part of all governments "should lead more immediately toward absolute proscription" of the traffic.

Complete Enforcement Here.

The conference at Bangkok was called by the League of Nations. The United States was invited to attend, although a nonmember of the league, because it is a party to The Hague convention of 1912 on the same subject, to which most of the other countries also are signatories.

Caldwell pointed out that under The Hague convention, this Government has imposed complete statutory prohibition on prepared opium, coupled with thorough enforcement of antinarcotic laws while for many years the system of monopoly has been in effect in most Far Eastern jurisdictions.

Opposes Monopoly System.

"While prepared to lend all practicable aid to measures directed toward suppression of this destructive vice," he said, "the Government of the United States is not prepared to follow a line similar and concurrent with that followed by other governments so long as those other governments elect to retain the monopoly system and are not willing to attempt prohibition.

"There can be no question of my Government's adopting a monopoly system or joining in measures to strengthen or continue the system of legalizing the traffic in smoking opium."

Caldwell said enforcement, now deemed satisfactory in the Philippine Islands, would be made easier if a similar proscription were in force in all Far Eastern territories.

Honduras to Effect Monetary Conversion

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Immediate monetary conversion from the silver to the gold standard with a new gold backed "lempira" as the unit was decided at a conference of bankers, merchants and industrialists held under government auspices yesterday.

The new coin—to the number of 1,100,000—already has been minted in the United States and will be brought here immediately to redeem the present silver currency. For redeeming the balance now in circulation, the conference agreed to issue $1,000,000 in 7 per cent government bonds.

Akron Abandons Trip In Fog to Pittsburgh

(Associated Press.)

The U. S. S. Akron yesterday abandoned her trip to Pittsburgh because of ground fog and poor visibility, which made flying in that section inadvisible.

After visiting Akron, Ohio, shortly before noon, the airship's commander radioed the Navy Department he would return to Lakehurst via Lake Erie and Buffalo, thence across New York State.

Madrid, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The death sentence and sentence to life imprisonment would be abolished under a new penal code submitted today for study by the cabinet.

Hunter Avers Squirrel Pilfered His License

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 11 (U.P.). Roy Perviance used to be a good hunter. Now he's a candidate for presidency of the "Tall Story" Club.

Perviance lost his hunting license and he says a squirrel stole it.

"I lay down beneath a tree to sleep," he said. "When I awoke I was attracted by a noise in the tree above and, looking up, saw a squirrel trying to pull something over the entrance to a hole in the tree. It was my own hunting license, which the squirrel had picked from my coat. He was trying to fasten it over the hole, presumably as a 'house number.'"

GIFT TAX IS PLANNED TO PREVENT EVASION

Representative Ramseyer to Spnosor Law as Curb on Inheritance Abuses.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Ramseyer, of Iowa, said yesterday he would sponsor legislation in the next Congress to levy a gift tax as a bar to evasion of estate and inheritance taxes.

Representative Ramseyer, a Republican member of the last ways and means committee, said the object of estate and inheritance taxes was to prevent the accumulation of wealth "in the hands of those who contributed nothing or little to its creation, and lighten the burden of taxation weighing so heavily on the backs of the masses."

He added that in recent years many wealthy persons had assigned large portions of their estates to beneficiaries before their deaths in order to evade the taxes.

"The productiveness of our estate and inheritance taxes is greatly reduced by the wholesale avoidance of those taxes by the rich," Ramseyer asserted. "By gifts and trusts their estates escape the inheritance and estate taxes. This is a loophole in our laws that can only be closed by the imposition of a gift tax."

Representative Ramseyer said that in 1919 John D. Rockefeller was reputed to be the largest income taxpayer, but added "public records disclosed that since the war he pays as little as $12,000 annual income tax."

"It is duly understood Edsel Ford is a larger income taxpayer than his father, Henry Ford," Ramseyer continued. "Why either a Rockefeller or a Ford should pay no tax on the transfer of hundreds of millions of dollars to his son, and a Whitney should pay $20,000,000 on the transfer of little more than $100,000,000 to his son is not apparent. In the one case the transfer was before death, while in the other transfer was made after death."

Political Moratorium Asked by Grange Head

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A moratorium on party politics was asked in the interest of agriculture by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, at the opening session of its sixty-fifth annual convention today.

Pointing to the need for tax revision, means to stabilize prices, unemployment relief and monetary stabilization, the Grange head said each political party should set aside prejudices and ambitions to cooperate in meeting the emergency.

James F. Hopkins, 63, Artist, Dies Suddenly

Monterey, Cal., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—James Frederick Hopkins, 63, nationally known artist, died unexpectedly today at his Pacific Grove home near here, presumably of heart disease. He had resided here for five years and formerly lived in Boston, Mass.

Mr. Hopkins was a descendant of Stephen Hopkins, of Mayflower fame. He was born in Newton, Mass., February 26, 1868.

Waiters Can't Read Latin But They Buy Real Estate

By JOHN J. DALY

MEMBERS of the Harvard Classical Club, on the eve of the annual banquet, searched all Boston—in the suburbs and the heart of the Hub—for a waiter who could speak the mother tongue of Ovid and Virgil. Nowhere, in the City of Culture could be found one who could take orders in Latin.

Saddened men, the clasicists of the classroom, clad in their soup and piscis, gathered about the banquet board and went through the several courses, trusting to luck. So far as the servitor was concerned, the linguists sat in silence. There is a rigid rule that no tongue other than Latin be spoken at the banquet.

Only once was a dish served after a Latin pronouncement, and that by mistake. Like all good Christian gentlemen, the sons of old John Harvard started the festivities with the formal saying of grace. Intoning the invocation, his hards clasped in prayer, his head bowed, the toastmaster—magister ceremoniarum—rapped for order, and said: "Oremus ——"

"Thereupon, the waiter passed the celery. Thus, "Let us pray" was mistaken by the stupid waiter as "Lettuce, pray"—which shows just why the Latin scholars wanted one well versed in the idioms.

• • • •

AWAY to a bad beginning, there was no great enjoyment of the banquet—even to the singing of the ancient hymn, "Semper Fidelis." A dumb waiter cast a pall on the party by not being able to speak Latin.

In their search for the services of a waiter who could converse in the dead language—rather out of place in such a lively country as America—the boys discovered many useful bits of information, if not knowledge. Though they found no waiter who spoke Latin, they did come across waiters who could speak out of turn, and waiters who spoke of their extensive real estate holdings in the Back Bay district. There were waiters also who could speak with authority on the various rackets engaging the elite of the underworld, a region not unlike the catacombs of old. One knight errant, in search of the learned tray bearer, found a waiter who spoke constantly of his operation, and another waiter who spoke disparagingly of the younger generation. There were waiters who were heard and not seen, and the boys found that trying to get the attention of a waiter is like searching for the pot of gold at the end of a rainbow.

BOSTON is not to be blamed because Harvard men could not find in the entire city one waiter who spoke the pure dulcet tones of old Latin. Other cities, undoubtedly, are in the same sad fix. New York, Philadelphia, even Baltimore, a sea-port town, and Washington—the most cosmopolitan center of them all—probably could not furnish a waiter with even a scant knowledge of the classic tongue. There is a reason for this, of course—the invasion of the Greeks.

In his postprandial remarks, the president of the club, who spoke to the guests in the language they love, could have told them that the only waiter who ever spoke Latin in this country went abroad some years ago and became a dictator. No man with this ability would waste his time spilling soup down the backs of Harvard undergraduates—not while Europe is looking for leadership.

Women's City Club To Fete Birthday.

The Women's City Club will celebrate its twelfth birthday with a reception this evening. The president, Mrs. William Lee Corbin, with Mrs. L. B. Swormstedt, Mrs. William E. Chamberlin, Dr. A. Frances Foye, Dean Grace Hays Riley and Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, former presidents of the club, and Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, Miss Janet Richards and Miss Elizabeth Eastman, will receive the members.

The reception committee, headed by Mrs. Gladys Ball Middlemiss, includes Mrs. Appleton P. Clark, Mrs. T. H. Dawson, Mrs. J. K. Freiot, Mrs. Virgil C. Miller, Mrs. William W. Spaid, Mrs. Caroline B. Stephen, Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Mrs. Sidney Ulfelder, Miss Myrtle L. Bunn, Mrs. George J. Adams, Miss Catherine M. Etter, Mrs. John D. Fitzgerald, Miss Elva McNamara, Miss Edna E. Mitchell, Miss Thelma Schmitt and Miss Rose Votova. Mrs. Grattan Kerans and Mrs. James F. Callbreath will preside at the coffee tables.

The ceremony of the cutting of the birthday cake, and the opening of the birthday box, in which members have put their anniversary gifts, has become traditional with the club and will take place toward the end of the evening. Guest privileges are suspended for the occasion, but applicants for membership may use their privilege cards for admission.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Morgan, of New York City, are at the Shoreham for a week. They will motor to Wyoming before returning to their home.

An interesting event in college circles of this city will be the reception to be given by the faculty women of George Washington University tomorrow evening, at 8:30 o'clock at the Hay Adams House. In the receiving line with Mrs. John Bonaldson, chairman, will be Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, wife of the president of the university and honorary chairman of the group; Mrs. Earl W. Barnhart, chairman of the newcomers' group, and Mrs. Robert H. Harmon, wife of Dr. Harmon, leader of the George Washington University Glee Club.

Mrs. W. Hayes Yeager, vice chairman of the faculty women, and Mrs. George B. Ross, wife of Prof. Ross, of the school of pharmacy, and chairman of the entertainment committee, will alternate at the punch bowl. Assisting will be Mrs. Charles S. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the organization, and committee chairmen, including Mrs. DeWitt C. Croissant, chairman of hospitality; Mrs. Daniel C. Chace, chairman of publicity, and two special committee chairmen, Mrs. Robert L. Griggs and Miss Anna P. Cooper.

Selections by the Glee Club will be given during the reception, and guests of honor will be women newly connected with the faculty this fall and the husbands and escorts of members of the faculty women.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davis West entertained at the dinner dance at the Shoreham last night. Among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. John C. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey L. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. L. Perry West, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, Mrs. Lucien A. Clarke and Mrs. May B. Lipscomb.

Mrs. John Wood Harry, of Norristown, Pa., is passing a few days at the Dodge accompanied by her daughters, Miss Ida Wood Harry and Miss Bertha S. Harry.

Mrs. Grace H. Lewis Will Lecture Here.

Mrs. Grace Hegger Lewis, authoress, will give a talk on "Those British Authors," at the Woman's National Democratic Club on Sunday afternoon, November 22, at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Lewis, formerly Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, is doing this for the club House Fund. She is a brilliant young authoress whose personal reminiscences of contemporary British writers such as Galsworthy, Wells, &c., are unusually interesting and entertaining.

Tea will be served after the talk and an opportunity provided to meet and chat with Mrs. Lewis. Mrs. Reeve Lewis is chairman of the committee in charge of this benefit lecture.

Col. and Mrs. Albert E. Truby, have moved from their former residence at 3701 Thirty-third place northwest, to the Army Medical Center, where Col. Truby is in command. They are now at home at the Army Medical Center here.

ALTHOUGH nothing official has been given out at the Federal Radio Commission, it is currently reported that the commissioners have already voted on the question of whether or not the Columbia Broadcasting System should be allowed to erect a "booster" station in Washington, and tentatively decided to deny the Columbia application.

The vote is said to stand 3 to 2. According to our advices, the commissioners favoring the project were Judge Robinson and Mr. Lafount. It is understood, however, that this decision is not final and that one commissioner may change his vote before tomorrow, when it is expected the official report will be made.

Whether or not WMAL will be leased by N. B. C. for distribution of the WJZ chain programs here is believed to be contingent upon whether the commission grants Columbia this booster station. If Columbia is not allowed to install the booster, it will continue to use WMAL for the time being at least.

ONE of the duplicate arc transmitters in the high power radio station at Annapolis, Md., is to be removed to make room for the new 25,000-watt high-frequency transmitter which is to go in service in January, 1932, using directional beam antenna, on the Washington-San Francisco circuit.

The Annapolis arc was installed in 1918 to work with FYL, the Navy-built Lafayette station at Croix d'hins, France. While cable communication with France was used during the war, these two radio stations were to relieve the cables of some of their heavy load and to fill the gap in case the cables were cut. The war ended, however, before the circuit was established. The remaining arc transmitter at Annapolis will be replaced in about eighteen months with a 300,000-watt tube transmitter.

An hour has been set aside, beginning at 12:30 o'clock today, over WRC for the third annual award of the American Academy of Arts and Letters' gold medal to the announcer adjudged to have the best diction. This gold medal was received in previous years by Milton J. Cross and Alwyn Bach.

The first broadcast will then be given over to discussion of the lives and works of the late Brander Matthews, novelist; Edwin Anderson Alderman, late president of the University of Virginia, and Edward Channing, late Harvard historian.

There will be a second broadcast at 2:30 o'clock, when tribute will be paid Timothy Cole, wood engraver, and George Whitefield Chadwick, Boston conductor and composer.

THE late President Taft, speaking of Elihu Root, once remarked that Senator Root's value as a lawyer was in telling his clients what they should not do. This seems to be the role of Roy S. Durstine as advertising adviser of General Electric in its production of the Sunday Twilight Hour.

Mr. Durstine, who evidently has had his ear to the ground on the protest against too much advertising in radio programs, advised cutting the sales talk down to the irreducible minimum in this Sunday program, permitting the General Electric to be mentioned only as the sponsor of the program.

"Radio is chiefly recognized by advertising authorities as a good-will medium and not a force that can sell and specify sales points without losing its audience," Orrin E. Dunlap, jr., radio editor of the New York Times, said in commending this policy. "When the radio sponsor tries to accomplish by radio what he can do successfully by print, then the program loses its effectiveness. Listeners are irritated by overcommercialism and they tune to a station that is more polite as it enters the home."

Authorities on industrial personnel and vocational guidance will speak from the opening session of the tenth annual conference of the Personal Research Federation (WRC, 3:45 o'clock this afternoon).

THE Mexican tenor, Tito Guizar, who will be heard tonight in folk songs of Mexico and South America, is only 23 years old * * * Kathleen Norris, novelist, will speak on the United States Chamber of Commerce program this morning * * * Sir Wilfred Grenfel, famed for his medical and social relief work among the fishermen of North Labrador, will speak tonight, WJZ, 8:30 o'clock. * * * Fielding H ("Hurry-Up") Yost, athletic director of the University of Michigan, will speak in the Famous Coaches program, WMAL, tomorrow night * * * Irene Rich will be RKO's guest star tomorrow night, WRC * * * The second act of "What Price Racketeers?" by Ronald Dawson and C. M. Roach, will be given over WOL tomorrow night * * * The March of Time will dramatize an incident involving Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, tomorrow night.

IT IS rumored that Henry Ford may select Phillips H. Lord (Seth Parker) for the talent in his forthcoming series of national broadcasts.

Although they would not dare be seen attending each other's concerts, conductors of rival symphony orchestras keep close tab on each other by listening to their radio broadcasts.

"When one of the large orchestras is on the air, you may depend upon it that the conductors of rival organizations are listening in most intensely," one who is in close touch with these conductors observed recently. "No matter how important their engagements are, everything stops when a rival orchestra goes on the air. The conductors listening in frequently lock themselves up in a room and have in front of them the complete scores of the compositions which are being played. They follow them note by note and observe most carefully exactly how their colleague interprets the numbers.

"Heretofore it would have been impossible for them to do this without attending the performance, but the radio broadcasts make strict surveillance an easy matter."

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 11.

THE humble ribbon has rested quietly on its laurels for many seasons now, 'n' it was only the other day, when it sneezed loudly enough to be heard by a passing fashion expert, that it was dragged forth into the light! I wonder if it's glad or sorry? For straightway, all the Haute Couture fell on it with loud cries of welcome and made use of it in divers and interesting ways!

For instance, lame (lah-may) ribbon is shirred into interesting puffs and attached in a wide and gleaming border about the hem of one of Augustabernard's loveliest evening gowns. On another evening gown from this house was a sort of bracelet-puff, fitting tightly on the upper arm, covered with wee roses of multi-colored lame (lah-may) ribbon!

Then the velvet ribbons, my deahs! Narrow ones in groups and clusters form the very latest thing in girdles for the innocent jeune fille type of frock. Wider colored velvet ribbons are sewed fast to satin foundations to make adorably quaint and perky little cape and scarf trifles—the sort of million-franc trifles that make or break the costume with great ease! And very wide, chiffon velvet ribbon is one of the most popular choices for bustle-material, because of the subtle way it drapes without giving too much bulk.

And, for daytime, cire ribbon is one of the last murmurs from Paris! You know that cire ribbon is—a rather stiff but light weight ribbon that looks just exactly like patent leather? Well, it's being combined with felt in all the latest tailored hats, and it is the trimming for our smartest wool frocks.

Hum, hum, in a very extravagant designing mood today! Yes, the lovely lady sketched is wearing million dollah pyjamas, evening pyjamas if you wish, or just those that you wear when you are hostess in your own home to very important guests. Black satin—never make pyjamas in velvet if you value your nerves—and lined with supple, spensive gold lame. And the trousers are arranged that way in the back so that they look like a skirt with a train effect—isn't that graceful? Then, braided gold lame (lah-may) for a girdle, a back-of-the-neck trimming, and the top of separate sleeves which fasten on with one button right above the elbow. Pyjamas or not, you could achieve the same effect in a lovely evening gown, no?

* * * *

And here's the real thrill—in the circle is the same negligee, or evening gown or evening pyjamas, with the two sleeves buttoned together and forming a capelet! Yes, I told you I felt designish today!

* * * *

Would you like a raise? Would you try for six months a sure fire system for getting one—if we absolutely guaranteed it? But all fooling aside, there is a decided psychology to business success, and for the women, at least, a whole lot of it is told you in this week's leaflet! Yes, just a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and Dare promises you an easier position, more money, and the thrill of being successful in your career if you follow her suggestions in this leaflet.

Au revoir!

"SCORPIO."

IF November 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 6:50 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m.; from 2:45 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m.

Positive astrological influences indicate November 12 as a time to do things, and few negative warnings need be given. Assert yourself, and demand full measure—a little courage will go a long way on this date. Ask for concessions, they will probably be granted.

The child born on this November 12 will be headstrong, and while it will listen to reason or respond to affection, it will rebel against nagging or tyrannical discipline. It will have its own high sense of honor, and good sportsmanship, and will be sensitive to criticisms.

If you were born on November 12, you do not strike the world as being anything other than an ordinary human being, and one of the countless masses. There are no spectacular traits about you, and one would seek in vain for any vital sparks of genius. Your close associates, however, find much in you to appreciate, love and envy. You are never found "extreme" in any respect, and in all things you are temperate. You are keen, without being temperamentally enthusiastic. You are placid, without being vegetable-like. You can "hold your own" without raising a row about it. You are intelligent, without being an intellectual snob. You have no decided negative or positive complexes.

Your guiding power is common sense—you were born a well-balanced person and you have less to overcome, in order to make yourself a likable, efficient being, than nine-tenths of your fellow associates. You were born with a high moral sense, and you do not need to resist many of man's so-called temptations, because they make no appeal to you. You never appoint yourself judge over other people's actions, and you are good at minding your own business. If advice is sought, you are glad to give assistance, if it be within your power to do so. You greatly enjoy clean, harmless fun, and you are capable of doing your share of entertaining. Successful people born November 12: Joseph Hopkinson, jurist.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

WHAT SHOULD SHE DO?

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I read your column almost daily and think you can help me with my problem.

I am 22 years old and have been going with a boy who is 24 for five years. He asked me to marry him about two years ago, and I asked him if he would wait until I was 21, as I knew my folks would object. Not letting him know it, I was a little in debt, as I had just started to work, and wanted to get out of debt before marrying. He said all right, he would wait. I got out of debt and have saved about $400. He knew I was saving my money for a nest egg when we got married, but he bought a car and I don't think saved much himself.

But the main part I am trying to get to is that he hasn't said anything about marrying for quite a while, as he said he wanted to get his car paid for before, but I learned about two weeks ago that he was going to see another girl who is just crazy about him. Since then I have seen for myself and know that it is true, as he owned up to it. The girl has called my house for him and has also been by my house and yelled to him twice. He won't promise me that he isn't going there again. His only reason for going there is that he doesn't want to get married just yet and wants to have a good time. Still he wants to come to see me and go to see her, too, and I have told him I won't stand for it as I have been told by several that she isn't the kind of a girl a girl should be. She is a divorced girl and has two children. He tells me that he loves me and that I am the only one he loves. Still he won't stop going there.

Should I wait and see if he will stop and come back with me altogether or should I go places, such as parties, dances, having other dates, of course, and have a good time. Do you think he loves her or is he just going there as a place to go? I have always been a lady in his presence and he has told me so. Do you think he is tired of me? I asked him if he was and he said no. I am going to let him hang on until I hear from you, but I expect to go to a dance tonight. He broke a date with me Wednesday night, as I told him if he went to see her not to come to see me, but he came last night and said he didn't go either place and couldn't get me over the phone as his phone was out of order, but I have my doubts about the phone business. I am very much upset over it all, as I was true to him and thought he was true to me.

I had given up every one else for him, as I liked him best and would refuse every one that would ask me for a date. So nobody has asked me for some time, knowing I didn't go with any one except him.

I will take him back if he will stop, but if he doesn't what should I do to get the boys interested in me? Or would you take him back? Sincerely,

"FANNY."

Well, well, what next? He repudiates his engagement to you, goes with someone else, and you ask what you should do? Buy some flit! And as to other men. Be yourself and not what you imagine some man wants you to be, and the dates will come. If a girl attracts one man she can attract others. The trouble with the average girl is that having attracted a man, she proceeds to spoil everything by becoming an echo of him, instead of remaining herself. Do not try to please men. Let them please you. Hope the flit works.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DANGER, BEWARE.

THOSE who have read my views on Bridge are well aware that I always prefer opening with a suit bid when the hand contains a possible sound suit bid. The primary reason for this purpose is that through these Approach bids suit distributions can be felt out and the best declaration decided upon through the exchange of information between partners. Of course, there are many hands containing sufficient honor strength to justify an opening bid which do not contain a biddable trump suit and in such cases an Opening notrump bid is made as a choice of evils. The other choice would be to pass, which with the requisite honor-trick strength ordinarily would mislead partner and prove a losing course. However, Opening bids of notrump, especially when vulnerable, should be carefully considered, taking into consideration the possibility that partner's hand may be trickless. In such cases, as an original notrump bid implies the lack of a biddable suit, the losses may be more severe, even if not doubled. If doubled and the remaining honor strength is massed against the bidder, the losses are quite apt to be staggering.

Today's hand is a case in point. Both sides vulnerable. South—Dealer.

	♠ 10 9 8 ♡ 6 5 3 ◇ 5 4 3 2 ♣ J 9 8
♠ K Q J 4 ♡ A Q 10 4 ◇ K Q J 10 ♣ 2	N W E S	♠ 7 5 2 ♡ 9 8 7 ◇ 8 ♣ A K Q 7 6 5
	♠ A 6 3 ♡ K J 2 ◇ A 9 7 6 ♣ 10 4 3

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
INT (1)	Dbl. (2)	Pass	Pass (3)
Pass (4).

1. Due to the absence of high intermediates, South's hand is probably a better pass than a bid vulnerable. The hand offers no escape if North's hand is a bust.

2. With three strong four-card suits and 4½ honor-tricks, West's Takeout Double is absolutely sound. His hand is so strong that there is a probability of game or a serious penalty against opponents if they go on.

3. A very fine pass, as East feels sure he can contribute 3 or more tricks, but is quite confident that his holding will not be complemented by club strength in West's hand.

4. South has no escape. The even distribution of his hand makes it unwise to increase the contract as there would seem to be no opportunity to utilize his fourth diamond for ruffing purposes with his distribution.

West opened the diamond King and when, on the second round of it, East discarded the spade deuce, West knew that East's penalty pass of his Double must be based upon strength in clubs. When East showed out of diamonds, South took the trick as there was no purpose in holding off. His hand was hopeless and the best he could expect was to make 3 to 4 tricks with it. He, therefore, led a small spade which was won by West. He would have been well advised to have taken the Ace before relinquishing the lead. West, after cashing his two diamonds, led the deuce of clubs. On East's remaining five clubs West discarded first the Ten of hearts, then his remaining spades and finally the four of hearts, completing the echo. When the clubs were run, East led a heart and West took the remaining tricks.

Thus, South made only 1 trick on his contract to take seven, although, of course, he could have made his spade Ace had he anticipated the extent of the impending disaster.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question—What three variations of hand values must the player learn to estimate?

Answer—(a) Its value at own bid. (b) Its value in support of partner's bid. (c) Its value against opponents' bid.

IRRITATING THE NAILS.

MANY people are interested in white spots on the finger nails. Some people profess to be alarmed by them. This appears to be one condition with which familiarity does not breed contempt, at least, not universal contempt.

Dr. Paul L. Singer found that nearly two-thirds of a group of people had white spots on one or more nails, at the time he looked for them, and he ventured the opinion that if the other third would keep on the lookout for them for several years, they would be able to report one or more. Practically every one has them at some time or other, though some have many more than others. Those who have them vary in their degree of indulgence. Some have but few, and those small and inconspicuous; others indulge in large blotches or long streaks. When the condition appears in the twentieth century twisted nails it may occupy much as half the nail.

Some months ago we reported the opinion of a physician who attributed the condition to too much manicuring. He is right, for no other cause approaches that one in importance. Anything that irritates and very mildly inflames the nail bed, the edge of the nail, and especially the root region, may act as a cause. Pushing back the cuticle, trimming away the skin around the nail, and polishing and painting the nails far outweigh all other causes. Women have white spots on the nails much more frequently than men, and they likewise pay far more attention to beautifying the nails.

There are other causes and these should not be overlooked. Among them are exposure of the nail beds to chemicals such as soaps, ointments, greases, dyes, photograph chemicals, and other substances that might irritate slightly. Among the causes are fevers, goiter, exposure to X-rays, and arsenic poisoning. Various forms of disease may cause it. Infection with ringworm is prominent as a cause of the manifestation on the toe nails.

Dr. Singer's investigation showed just what happened that caused the area to appear white. The nail is composed of skin cells that have been changed chemically, as well as physically. As these skin cells lose their vitality and are pushed away from the field of active multiplying cells, they undergo a chemical change that is called keratinization.

If the cells in a given area are unduly irritated, this process of keratinization is delayed and otherwise interfered with. In these changed cells there are granules which refract the light so as to make it appear white. What has happened is that the changed cells make it impossible to look through the transparent nail and see the pink of the tissues below it. That is the explanation of the white spot and that is all there is to it. A better name would be opaque spots.

Prevention consists in avoiding irritation to the nail bed.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

ARE tuberose bulbs hardy?

MRS. MARY W.

No, they must be lifted and brought indoors before frost.

I planted some Madonna lilies in early September, setting them barely 2 inches deep. Will these bulbs increase normally if left alone, or must I take them up each season and separate any bulblets that may form?

MRS. S. S.

Madonna lilies require a rich but not recently manured spot in full sunlight. As they do not like to be changed, they must be left undisturbed. They will increase abundantly from year to year without being lifted. You planted your bulbs at the proper depth. Should they start to grow before frost it will not injure them.

Please tell me how to bury rambler rose cuttings so that when spring comes they will have developed roots.

CHARLES F. T.

Rambler roses may be propagated by cutting the long stems into 6 or 8 inch lengths. During the early fall these may be buried in moist sand in a cool cellar or cold frame. Some authorities even advocate a well-drained place out of doors; personally I do not think they are apt to root well in the open. In the early spring when the time comes to plant these shoots in the open they should have a root system sufficient to enable them to take hold at once and develop some growth the first summer.

I am about to transplant some house plants. What kind of soil shall I use?

MARIE D. S.

Make a mixture of sand, good loam and well-rotted manure. Florists use about equal parts of these materials. Any reasonable good soil to which has been added some decayed manure will do; however, where the soil is heavy some sand or leafmold must be added to lighten it. Keep in mind that large-leaved and heavy-rooting plants prefer heavy soils. Juicy-leaved plants such as cacti or succulents do best in a sandy soil. Begonias do best in a soil where leafmold predominates.

Please tell me how to give proper protection to my roses. They are all hybrid teas or hybrid perpetuals.

MRS. HOWARD V.

All roses of these classes require some protection. The best protection is afforded by hilling the soil up about the main stems of the bushes to a height of 10 or 12 inches. This eliminates the danger of water collecting about the hearts of the plants, which is a large factor in the winter killing of all roses. After the soil is drawn up about the plants the surface of the soil should be mulched with well-rotted manure to the depth of several inches. This covering will aid in the conservation of moisture, but it will add to the fertility of the soil. Late in February or March when the sun causes the plants to spring into growth, the nights are still cold. This freezing and thawing is very injurious to rose plants irrespective of the variety. To guard against this it is necessary to tie the branches of the plants with burlap or cover the bed with evergreen boughs.

My honeysuckle has been a tangled mass this season. I have pruned it twice, but it is still a disgrace. Could I cut off the seemingly dead branches at this time without injuring the vine?

MRS. JAMES H. L.

Yes. In the future prune your honeysuckle every time you mow your grass. It is only by constant cutting that the vine can be kept within bounds.

Some Figures the U. S. Radio Census Omitted.

1. THERE are 356,865 musicians on the air every night, all playing "Sweet and Lovely."

2. There are 6,786 radio program tenors, all of whom think Morton Downey simply got a break.

3. There are 17,523 industrial leaders in the United States who think the marketing of their products is immeasurably increased through blue-eyed crooners with a lisp.

4. There are 76,901 program directors and studio experts who don't quite know what it's all about, but who never admit it.

5. There are 4,387 advertising mangers spending the company's money like sailors on programs that are so bad they're hurting business.

6. There are 43,768 station announcers who sincerely believe they combine the voice of Abraham Lincoln with the oratorical flow of Patrick Henry and the personality of John Barrymore.

7. East of the Alleghenies alone are to be found 165 masters of ceremonies whose voices and personalities are so offensive whole families are wiped out nightly in the rush to tune them out.

8. There are 8,934 congenital idiots doing one-man (with stooge) comedy skits.

9. There 1,567,895 men on the air every night singing hillbilly songs.

10. There are 367 football announcers on the air every Saturday afternoon, only three of whom are emotionally gaited to describe a tortoise race in a quiet room.

11. There are 789 radio skits on the air every night in the United States so terrible that even the foreign language members of the audience wince visibly.

12. There are 8,654 imitators of Morton Downey, Rudy Vallee, Will Osborn and Bing Crosby.

13. There are, West of the Mississippi, more than 11,000 women radio speakers on the air whose voices fill the Nation's psychopathic wards to overflowing.

14. There are in the United States, exclusive of Ohio and Louisiana, 479 orchestra leaders working 16 hours a day to rearrange popular musical numbers so nobody who hears them on the air will recognize them.

15. There are 1,468,903 people in New York State alone who insist they have ideas for a radio act better than Amos 'n' Andy.

16. There are 9,308 orchestra leaders trying to get their program over so that it will seem as soothing as Guy Lombardo's.

17. There are, believe it or not, 7,-895,555 national advertisers in the United States and Canada who really think the radio audience listens to long dissertations on canned soups, hair oils, tobacco products, indigestion tablets and antiseptic gargles.

18. There are 695 radio singers of cowboy ballads who would never be missed.

19. There are 45,000,000 radio listeners who, admitting that "Dancing in the Dark" is a lovely number, wish a radio orchestra would occasionally omit it.

20. Four out of every five people on the receiving end of the radio have reached the conclusion that a theme song gets tiresome after the first three years.

ALEXANDRIA SEES REVIEW OF CADETS

Former High School Boys Who Died Overseas Are Honored.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria held one of the most outstanding celebrations of Armistice Day ever staged yesterday on the Alexandria High School grounds. The program was arranged jointly by the Americanism committee of Alexandria Post, No. 24, of the American Legion, and the high school authorities. Col. Clarence Deems, jr., professor of military science and tactics, and Henry T. Moncure, principal of the high school.

The Alexandria High School Cadet Corps was reviewed by the American War Mothers, represented by Mrs. John Leadbeater, Mrs. T. Clifton Howard and Mrs. George Petitt, of the Alexandria chapter, and Mrs. L. L. Pofford, State president of the organization.

Those invited to be in the reviewing group were Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair, regent, Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. D. Mauchlin Niven, chairman, Alexandria committee of Colonial Dames of Virginia; Mrs. Rathbone Smith, regent, Kate Waller Barrett Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, president of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Charles W. Howell, president of the Daughters of the Confederacy; Brig. Gen. Edgar Wardell, commander of the Confederate veterans in Virginia.

Also Capt. John S. Arnold, commander Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion; Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, of the Alexandria Light Infantry; Lieut. A. C. Slaymaker, commander of the Alexandria Volunteer Marines; R. Samuel Luckett, commander R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, and Earl Posey, counselor, Junior Order United American Mechanics.

The observance of Armistice Day was held in recognition of its patriotic meaning and also to honor especially the former cadets from the Alexandria High School who entered the service and in memory of the three who were killed in action.

After the review introductory remarks were made by Principal Moncure; address of welcome by Supt. C. C. Bowton; "The Present Cadet Corps," by Col. Deems; "America," sung by the assemblage, and the principal address by Sergt. Marc Freeman, of Fort Humphreys, third vice commander of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion.

Francis H. Fannon, of the Legion Post, conducted an Armistice Day program at George Mason High School later in the afternoon.

The Legion held the usual ritual service in observance of the day in Radsby's Tavern at 8 o'clock last night, followed by a reception to all service men by the local American Legion Auxiliary. The welcome was given by Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, president. The address of the evening was by Col. Edward H. Schulz, commandant at Fort Humphreys. After the short program dancing completed the evening with music by the Cadettes Orchestra, composed of four girls, Miss Margaret F. Ogden, of Alexandria, one of the group.

COUNTY GETS WORLD WAR FLAG

Some of the persons who took part in the Armistice Day celebration in Marlboro, Md., yesterday when Harry Harvey, of Bladensburg, presented to the county an American flag which he carried through the World War. The flag was given to him by Miss May Mullikin when he went to France in 1917. Front row, left to right—State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, chief speaker; Mr. Harvey, Miss Millikin, Judge T. Van Clagett, another speaker; Robert W. McCullough, master of ceremonies, and Walter M. Grimes, president of the board of county commissioners, who accepted the flag for the county.

ARLINGTON UNVEILS WAR DEAD TABLET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

While 2,000 persons stood with bared heads as the bugle notes of taps sounded, Katherine Bruce, 13-year-old daughter of Robert J. Bruce, unveiled Arlington County's memorial to the World War dead upon the tablet, on which her father's name appears.

Opening the county's most impressive Armistice Day celebration, the Fort Myer Band played "America, the Beautiful." The Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church, delivered the invocation.

"I have no word to express the veneration and affection we all must feel for those who by their courage and sacrifice brought a glorious conclusion to the greatest and costliest of all the mighty conflicts," Representative Howard W. Smith, the dedicatory speaker, said.

The monument must not only commemorate the dead, but must serve to admonish the living, that in peace as well as war the Nation must cherish the fundamentals of democratic government, he said.

The exercises at the monument were concluded with the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the Band of the Washington and Lee High School.

In a recess in the granite structure is the tablet upon which the names of those who gave their lives appear. They are John Lyon, John G. Smallwood, Robert J. Bruce, Harry A. Stone, Irving T. C. Newman, Harry E. Vermillion, Edward J. Smith, Archie W. Williams, Frederick W. Schutt, Frank Dunkin, Oscar L. Housel, Arthur Morgan and Ralph Lowe.

After the dedication there was a parade, headed by the Fort Myer Band, in which Victory Post, of Washington; Alexandria Post, Washington and Lee cadets and girls auxiliary, cadet band, and Arlington County Post, American Legion, marched.

The memorial was erected by the legionnaires and citizens of the county from granite quarried in Arlington Cemetery.

CHAMBER IN FAIRFAX FIGHTS NEW GAS TAX

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed a resolution opposing any further increase in the State gas tax under any circumstance. It was pointed out by several speakers that such tax would work a great hardship on the people of this section of Virginia, more especially on individual gasoline dealers, because of its proximity to Washington, where a lower tax prevails.

It was suggested that some form of taxation should be evolved to reach the motor buses carrying passengers and freight over the roads for hire in proportion to the taxes levied on the railroads.

The chamber voted almost unanimously to support the educational program of Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of education, under which the State would appropriate an additional $2,000,000 during the next two years to insure a uniform school year of nine months. The State board of education has not suggested how such money should be raised, but the joint committee of school trustees and divisional superintendents has suggested that various luxury taxes, such as tobaccos, soft drinks and cosmetics, would more than raise the necessary amount.

Another resolution adopted requested that both the United States senators from Virginia and Representative Howard W. Smith cooperate with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in obtaining the necessary legislation which would permit the Federal Government to take over the Georgetown-Leesburg pike from Langley to Great Falls under the provisions of the Cramton act. This road, which is owned by a private company, is the only toll road existing in northern Virginia.

Delegate-elect Edmund H. Allen requested the chamber to appoint a legislative committee to keep in touch with the county's representatives in the State Legislature so as to give them advice on local questions and needs.

It was decided to suspend the Fairfax body's membership in the State Chamber of Commerce for a period of one year, as all funds will be needed locally during the bicentennial celebration next year to finance the local activities.

FIREFIGHTING UNITS ATTAIN STANDARDS

Prince Georges Association Discusses Plans for Field Day.

All Prince Georges County fire apparatus conforms to the standard set up by the County Firemen's Association, the group was told last night at its meeting in Mount Rainier by Chief Noble F. Rushe, of Hyattsville, chairman of the standards committee.

An application for membership was received from the new Forestville department, but will not be acted upon until its engine is reported by the standards committee to conform with other county apparatus. The Mount Rainier department reported that the insurance rate in its business section had been lowered 3 cents because of the protection it affords.

The question of holding a field day similar to that held in Montgomery County was referred back to member companies for discussion, and T. Weston Scott was appointed chairman of the banquet committee. Chief Karl Young, of the Mount Rainier department, reported on the fire college at College Park, and the new method of reporting fires was explained by L. V. Moxley, chairman of the statistics committee. Each company represented at the meeting was given postcards to fill out and mail to a central office for each fire.

The next meeting of the association will be held at College Park on December 9.

Fugitive in Shooting Caught at Ballston

Smashing through a trapdoor with an ax, Arlington County policemen yesterday captured Lawrence Miller, 18 years old, in an attic at the home of his brother-in-law, Ruben Raines, in Ballston. The youth was taken to Manassas, Va., where he will face a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

Miller is accused of shooting Oakley Taylor, of Greenwich, Prince William County, Va., three times when Taylor returned home to find the youth in company of his wife. The shooting took place November 2. Miller disappeared and eluded a search for him until yesterday.

road work be done by hand so as to provide more employment.

The Senate independents will get together soon to shape their program. Nearly all of them are back in town now and already they have started informal talks. Some of their legislative plans are outgrowths of the progressive conference held here last spring.

One Democratic senator at Boston discussed what some believe will figure largely in his party's intentions this winter. Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, already has said that if the opportunity offers the Democrats will take charge of the Senate, too. His speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the Massachusetts city was based on a belief in the necessity for tariff readjustment and an opposition to a sales tax.

It developed in the House yesterday that the Republican Speakership nomination contest is centering definitely on Tilson and Snell. Campaigns for compromise candidates virtually have been abandoned.

Although Tilson was chosen at the February caucus of Republicans to succeed himself as floor leader, Snell's friends claim that if the New Yorker receives the Speakership nomination and they fail to organize, he will take the minority leadership, as customary.

Tilson's adherents hold, however, that the action of the February caucus will stand.

With Democrats united behind Garner for Speaker, their important problems are the selection of a floor leader and making a satisfactory division of committee chairmanships between the Northern and Southern memberships.

Active campaigns are being made for the various candidates. Strong support from the Midwest is reported for Representative Rainey, of Illinois. The Alabama delegation is sponsoring Representative McDuffy, Democratic whip in the last Congress.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee is understood to have the support of the New York delegation, but he has not indicated definitely whether he would accept the post in preference to the appropriations committee chairmanship to which he is automatically entitled. Representative Crisp, of Georgia, is a potential contender, while an active campaign is being made in behalf of Representative Rankin, of Mississippi.

Representative Greenwood, of Indiana, has been suggested as Democratic whip.

The Democrats are confident they can work out a satisfactory division of the committee chairmanships although the Tammany delegation is demanding more recognition. It is understood the New York group would be content with chairmanship of the rules committee but this would mean personal sacrifice by two Southern members.

A forerunner of the conflicts that may become routine between the President and a House controlled by his political opponents was seen in a statement by Representative Collins.

The Mississippian, who would head the appropriations subcommittee on the War Department if his party controlled the House, said Mr. Hoover, in announcing budget estimates, would be $280,000,000 below last year, "employed a boy's hatchet, and a dull one at that * * * instead of using an ax."

"Approximately one-half of the 1932 budget was devoted to interest on the public debt, sinking fund and expenses incident to veterans," Collins said.

"We are to infer that out of the remaining $3,250,000,000, using round figures, the President's hatchet could chop off only 9 cents from every dollar, and a large part of the 9 cents minus is, no doubt, made up of so-called nonrecurring items, which eliminate themselves, as well as items in the 1932 budget which the Congress refused to approve."

Collins said last year's budget estimates did not take into account reduced commodity prices but were built on predepression costs. In Army food costs alone, he said, Congress made an overallowance of $2,500,000, while some public works contracts are showing savings of from 25 to 30 per cent.

Collins said cuts that have been made in the Army and Navy could be more than justified. He urged that the Nevy dispense with Northern navy yards and devote more attention to aviation. The officer strength of the Army, he said, should be reduced from 12,000 to 8,000.

"The Army is overofficered," he said. "I should say ultimately, directly and indirectly, the saving would be not less than $25,000,000 or $30,000,000."

Byrd Visits Capital Today For Political Conference

(Associated Press.)

The visit of former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, to Washington today will be watched for whatever political significance it may have.

Byrd, who is vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, has appointments with Senators Swanson and Glass and is expected to visit others of the Old Dominion delegation.

In view of the short time before the preconvention meeting of the national committee, it was possible the Byrd conferences might relate to the national political situation.

Byrd has been mentioned as a presidential nominee.

Children Tell Jury Of Mother's Death

Father Held on Charge of Manslaughter in Fatal Battle for Gun.

Five children of John F. Remitt, 50 years old, who lives near Burdette, Md., yesterday appeared before the Montgomery County grand jury to tell the story of the fatal shooting of their mother, Mrs. Beulah Remitt, 35 years old, May 26, by their father in a scuffle for possession of a pistol.

The children—Lloyd, 16; Margaret, 14; John Floyd, 14; Harold, 11, and Paul, 7—were brought to the courthouse by their father, who is at liberty on bond. He was held for action of the grand jury by Judge Charles E. Woodward, of the county police court, on a charge of manslaughter.

The children told police officers at Rockville that their father had threatened suicide and that the mother grabbed for the weapon, which exploded, fatally wounding her. Boyd Remitt then prevented his father from shooting himself.

Mrs. Remitt had filed suit for divorce in February, naming Delaney F. Brown, a neighbor, as corespondent. He asked $50,000 damages for alienation of affection. But the quarrel had been patched up, it was said.

Rockville Family Rescued in Blaze

Harry Thomas Leaps From Second Floor, Then Saves Wife and Children.

Awakening to find the stairway of his home in flames about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, Harry Thomas, tenant on the A. Gude Sons, wholesale florists, farm near Rockville, jumped from the second story window and procured a ladder to carry his wife and two children to safety.

Mr. Thomas ran to the Gude home nearby and called the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department. The firemen managed to extinguish the flames before extensive damage was done. Damage was estimated at about $200. The fire started on the first floor.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The house is a five-room, two-story frame house, which has been weatherboarded and is one of the Rockville landmarks.

Bomb Wrecks Booth Near Fascist Offices

Naples Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A small bomb exploded tonight in a ticket-selling booth a few feet from the door of the headquarters of the Provincial Fascist Federation.

The booth, which was privately owned, was destroyed, but there was no further damage.

Kiwanis to Honor A. E. F. Head.

The Kiwanis Club today at a meeting at 12:30 o'clock, in the George Mason Hotel, in Alexandria, will observe National Education Week. Superintendent R. C. Bowton will be the speaker. An observance of Armistice Day will also be held.

W. H. Martin's Will Filed for Probate

Takoma Park, Md., Man Leaves $200,000 to Be Distributed.

The will of William H. Martin, of Takoma Park, Md., filed yesterday in the Orphan's Court at Rockville, disposes of an estate valued at more than $200,000. William H. Martin, jr., and the District National Bank of Washington are named executors in the will, which was executed July 31, 1923, with a codicil dated August 4, 1924.

The following bequests are made in the will, William H. Martin, jr., the son, the country home at 130 Willow avenue, Takoma Park; Annie Elizabeth Martin, daughter, $10,500; Mrs. Rena Patterson, sister, $6,000; in trust for the benefit of Agnes Martin, granddaughter, $30,000, she to receive the entire bequest at the age of 25 years; Thomas J. Martin, brother, $5,000; Grandon B. Martin, brother, $2,000; William H. Martin 3d, grandson, $5,000; Pauline Hoover, granddaughter, $5,000; Pauline Hoover, sister-in-law, $5,000; trustees of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church, $2,000, and to the same trustees $500 to be applied to Women's Home Missions, and $500 and $250, respectively, for foreign and Chinese missions; Westminster Old People's Home, Westminster, Md., $250.

The residue of the estate is to be divided between the two children, William H. Martin, jr., and Annie Elizabeth Martin.

C. A. Stewart Is Elected.

Charles A. Stewart was elected president of the East Falls Church Citizens Association at its meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. R. C. L. Moncure. Other officers are: Phillip Talbott, first vice president; Mrs. Henry Knowles, second vice president; Mrs. Harry E. Moran, secretary, and Mrs. Harry A. Fellows, treasurer.

Shouse To Be Speaker.

Jouett Shouse, Democratic national chairman, will be the principal speaker at the regular communication of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons, tonight in the Masonic Temple in Cameron street, Alexandria. Alexandria-Washington Lodge will entertain the officers and members of Andrew Jackson Lodge, No. 120.

CIVIC OPERA FORMS ORGANIZATION HERE

R. R. Edwards Will Manage Company; To Offer Light Works First.

Organization of the Washington Civic Opera Company was announced yesterday by R. R. Edwards, founder of the Syracuse Community Opera, who will serve as manager of the new company here.

At first, it is stated, the company will confine its offerings to light opera, later expanding to present more serious works. It is pointed out that the new company does not plan in any way to conflict with the Washington Symphony Orchestra, but instead will seek to work with that organization.

The opera plan includes not only exploitation of the voice, but also is intended to interest instructors and students of dancing, drama, languages, costuming and scenic art, Mr Edwards states. It is also planned to make the company self-supporting, and no underwriting fund will be solicited.

Many musical institutions, studios of voice, dance, decorative art, and private instructors have cooperated to found the opera company, Mr. Edwards continued, and present indications are that the membership soon will number 500.

Among those named in the list of founders are Leon Brusiloff, Marjorie Lowe, Estelle Wentworth, Jessie E. Veitch, William T. Pierson, Dorothy Sherman Pierson, William Rodon, Celia Fioravanti, Edith Wallack, Arsenio Ralon, Nathan N. Wallack, Mme. Marie Zalipsky, Henrietta le Menager, Myrtle Patschke, Elizabeth Scanland, James Dickinson, Mme. Rimsky-Korsakoff, Arnoldo Berenguer, Mme. Amelia Conti, Edna Bishop Daniel, Adolph Tolovsky, Myron Whitney, Anne Goodhue, Felix Mahoney, Thea W. Cable, Rosina Pollio Jarmon, Romeo F. Gueraldi, Jewell Downs, Meta M. Evans, Pearl Waugh, Elena de Sayn, George Cornwell, Lester Shafer, Marion Chase and Mary A. Cryder.

Many prominent civic and social leaders are becoming interested in the project and will meet soon to form the sponsorship and create an executive board, Mr. Edwards announced, adding that the business and executive staff will be formed entirely of experts in their lines and will be under contract so as to assure unhampered, unprejudiced and unbiased selection of artists for their casts.

Present plans call for three separate and distinct producing groups of chorus and principals. The first of these will be put into rehearsal as quickly as registrations permit, and it is stated that this should put to work a greater part of the artists now available and fitted for presentation.

U. S. PREPARES TO DEMAND LESS OIL PRODUCTION WASTE

two scattered fields of authority into focus upon the vexing national problem of oil stabilization.

"Our seven major oil-producing States bear a peculiar relationship to the Nation. If waste occurs the producing State must prevent it with a power which it is assumed the Federal Government does not have—the police power. There is a growing consciousness that the oil States hold their police power in trust for the Nation. * * * If the national interest is selfishly disregarded, and the American people ever become conscious that the mad waste of the past are being continued, you and I may live to see the oil industry in a legislative strait-jacket which it should not deserve."

Extent of Public's Concern.

In delineating the vital national interest in oil conservation, Secretary Lamont said that all but ten of the Navy's 291 seagoing vessels are oil burners. About 80 per cent of all the industrial horsepower in the country, fixed and automotive, is generated by oil products. The air defense provided in the 2,800 planes of the Army and Navy are dependent upon oil. Finally, some 26,000,000 automobile owners have an investment of $18,000,000,000 involved in the management of the country's 300,000 oil wells.

In 1926 the Federal Oil Conservation Board outlined its first plan for cooperation between the seven States which normally produce 97 per cent of American oil. At the Colorado Springs conference called by President Hoover in 1929 this plan was approved by four of the principal producing States. Last year the Federal board began a series of quarterly supply and demand forecasts, upon which the interstate conferences might base production quotas.

"The most significant development of this idea of correlated State action," Secretary Lamont went on, "has come in 1931, and it is solely because this tendency has gathered force that the oil industry today can face the future with more confidence than at any time during the last five years.

Advisory Group's Program.

"In April of this year the oil States' advisory committee, appointed by the governors of ten States, laid before the Federal Oil Conservation Board a program calling for an agreement among the oil-producing States under which each State, while retaining administration of its own resources, would enact uniform conservation laws, coordinate their enforcement with those of other States, and cooperate through an interstate advisory board, which would balance State production quotas and help in the correlation of such quotas with foreign production. The Federal Oil Conservation Board gave its formal approval; such a program was directly in line with its own efforts.

"In September of this year, the first practical step toward carrying out this program was taken. The Public Service Commission of Kansas, the Oklahoma Corporation Commission and the Railroad Commission of Texas met jointly and agreed upon a production quota for each oil State which would balance supply against indicated demand. California, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming have adhered. A schedule for foreign production was likewise recommended.

"Thus, after five years' evolution, we have the beginning of a solution."

What amounted practically to an invitation to the industry to move forward along the lines of unit-pool operation was contained in Secretary Lamont's statement that "there is good legal opinion to the effect that agreements for unit development do not violate these State (antitrust) laws."

Import Restriction Plan.

Similarly, he issued a veiled invitation to the States to seek agreements affecting import restrictions.

"While a Federal statute prohibits agreements between individuals looking toward import restrictions, I know of nothing to prohibit a State from such discussions, conducted formally by its regulatory body, for the purpose of acquiring information on which to base its own proration program."

Only the project for Federal participation on the joint board to equate imports and domestic production would require new authority from Congress. Otherwise, the broad three-point program "can be accomplished just as quickly as necessity demands," Secretary Lamont emphasized.

Beaty Heads Institute.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The American Petroleum Institute, at its annual meeting here today, elected Amos L. Beaty, of New York, former president of the Texas Company to the presidency of the institute to succeed E. B. Reeser, of Tulsa.

H. R. Gallagher, of San Francisco, vice president of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, was elected vice president at large.

The three divisional vice presidents who will direct the activities of the oil men's organization are:

Don I. Moran, Ponca City, Okla., president of Continental Oil Co., vice president for refining.

W. T. Holliday, Cleveland, president of Standard Oil of Ohio, vice president for marketing.

Axtell I. Byles, of New York, was made treasurer. He is president of the Tidewater Oil Association.

Federal Proration of Oil Is Predicted by Wilbur

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, declared here today he favored Federal regulation of all oil production in the United States and suggested creation of a Federal board to supervise such a program.

He said whether such a plan would be adopted by the next Congress depended entirely upon the oil men of America. He predicted Federal proration would be authorized by Congress, "if oil men quit acting foolishly and get together."

The Secretary said American oil men had been dealing with their problems much in the manner of "cutting a sick man's toenails to cure his illness."

The Secretary praised Gov. R. S. Sterling's martial law program of proration in the east Texas oil field.

"I practiced medicine for years and I never criticized a fellow doctor if he got results," he said.

Secretary Wilbur was in San Antonio as guest of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations.

SMOKE PALL COVERS SOUTHEAST STATES

Forest Fires Interfere With Passenger Flights With No Relief in Sight.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The Southeast today spent Armistice Day under a smoke pall of much density from thousands of acres of smoldering forest lands.

The weahter bureau at Candler Field here said poor visibility from the smoke covered territory from Virginia to Florida and westward to the Mississippi River, with parts of Kentucky also affected. There were no immediate prospects of enough rain to quench the fires, or enough wind to blow the smoke away.

So dense was the smoke, even over areas not on fire, that air lines canceled many passenger flights. Within the fire areas and for miles on each side automobile traffic was hampered by smoke.

No official estimates of the total area damages by the widely scattered fires was available, but several days ago it was estimated that in the single area around Valdosta, in southern Georgia, 15,000 or more acres had been burned over.

Mail flights over Southeastern Air Lines were generally about on time, though pilots reported that over most of their runs the earth was invisible except from very low altitude. A few thousand feet up, they said, flying conditions were normal and visibility good, except for the billowing smoke close to the surface.

American Airways canceled its passenger flights over the line through Alabama southward to New Orleans, but the mail planes went through. Eastern Air Transport canceled passenger flights through Georgia to Jacksonville, Fla., but carried the mail. No passengers were carried on the coastal line from Jacksonville to Florence, S. C., but north of Florence flying conditions improved. Planes flying from Atlanta to Richmond operated on schedule.

Charleston, S. C., sent 100 emergency fighters into the woods to combat fires. The chief game warden, A. A. Richardson, blamed the fires on careless hunters and asked power to prohibit night hunting until after Thanksgiving.

Board Approves County Bond Issue

Prince Georges Securities Will Go on Sale December 8.

The school bond issue authorized by the last Maryland Legislature has been approved by the Prince Georges County board of commissioners, and the securities will go on sale December 8 if they can be disposed of at par or better.

While the board did not say definitely that the issue would not be marketed at less than par, it was understood that a low price would cause the issue to be held up. The proceeds of the sale, amounting to $275,000, will be used to build eight new schools or additions in the county. They will be at Marlboro, Surrattsville, Laurel, Ammendale, Aquasco, Bowie and Fairmont Heights. At a joint conference between the school board and the commissioners, the rate of interest was set at 4½ per cent.

Rockville Police Court To Be Held Saturdays

Montgomery County Police Court, at Rockville, Md., will not hold sessions during the week, except on Saturdays, while the county circuit court is in session, Judge Charles W. Woodward announced yesterday.

The members of the local bar will be too busy with circuit court to give proper attention to cases in police court, the judge believes.

Boy Drowns at Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Tragedy ended a boat outing for five boys this afternoon about 5 o'clock when one of the group, Willis Marvin Scarborough, jr., 14 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Scarborough, fell from the boat and drowned

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE seems to be no end to the number of guessing contests Mr. Harry W. Crull, managing director of the Fox Theater, finds it possible to pull out of that old plug hat.

Having only recently had more fun than a barrel of monkeys with his bale of cotton out in the lobby of the F street cathedral, he has now thought up the perplexing device of a jarful of pennies, each penny representing something or other in the way of commerce and the radio, the exact number to be guessed by patrons filing in or out of the theater.

Radio sets will be awarded the five contestants coming nearest the actual number of pennies in the jar. This business, as I understand it, begins tomorrow. Ballots will be handed each cash customer and after that it is strictly up to the individual's judgment, horseshoe, rabbit's foot, or whatever lucky talisman it is in which he places his faith.

There seems also to be no end to the number of entertainments that may be enjoyed during the ensuing week and what remains of the present.

The second of the Theater Guild's offerings, Rachel Crothers' new comedy of Iowa wives astray in Europe, "As Husbands Go," presented by John Golden, will be the attraction at the National Theater for the week beginning next Monday night. This sprightly piece is said to rank with "Reunion in Vienna," the current guild production in the same theater, as a brilliantly written and flawlessly acted play.

The New York cast has been preserved intact, including Catherine Doucet, Jay Fasett, Gloria Holden, Geoffrey Wardwell, Marjorie Lytell, Roman Bohnen and Robert Foulk.

On next Monday evening, the Belasco will be reconverted into a popular Viennese night club and cabaret to welcome Al Jolson, the psuedonative son, back to the scene of his premiere in "Vonder Bar," in which he is still appearing. This continental novelty permits its star wide play for his versatile talents and enables him to remain on stage the greater part of the time. He is not, however, by any means the whole show.

A long list of supporting artists appear in "Wonder Bar," which has to do with an affair between the cabaret's principal entertainer and a prominent banker's wife, among them Claire Windsor, Patsy Kelly and Clarence Harvey.

Not to be outdone in the matter of superlative pastiming, Mr. Jimmy Lake, panjandrum of burlesque in the Capital, announces for the week beginning Sunday afternoon, Irving Selig's "Tango Girls," one of the new attractions of the Columbia wheel, for his Gayety Theater. Rose Lee is the featured member of the cast—a comedienne of the May Irwin-Marie Dressler type, so I am told—and Tangara, an exotic choreographic artiste, the imported dancer.

Lest you may have forgotten, let this serve as a reminder that this afternoon at 4 o'clock, Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony Orchestra in the first of a series of eight concerts for children and young people in the Central High School Auditorium, Thirteenth and Clifton streets. The program to be played, of course, has been selected with especial care in order that it may fulfill the purposes for which it is intended.

On Sunday afternoon at Constitution Hall the National Symphony, with Mr. Kindler again conducting, will be heard in the first of a series of Sunday afternoon programs, with Lucrezia Bori, of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, the guest soloist of the afternoon.

John Martin, critic of the New York Times, and an authority on the dance, will deliver the first of a series of four intimate talks on the dance and drama of the present day, this evening at the Caroline McKinley Studio, 1731 I street. His talks will be given on Thursday evenings, one each month during November, December, January and Febuary. The first subject will be "The Dance Forms Change."

To which might be added a ribald, but expressive, "And how!"

Mrs. Wilson-Greene's artists' course of concerts will be inaugurated Monday afternoon in Constitution Hall, when, at 4:30 o'clock, Lily Pons, sensational new coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, will make her concert debut in Washington. A program of scrupulous selection will be concluded by the "mad scene" from Donizetti's opera of "Lucia Di Lammermoor," in which she achieved the remarkable tribute of 30 curtain calls last January.

Vachel Lindsay, Troubadour, will make his initial appearance before a Washington audience next Tuesday evening, November 17, at 8:15, at the Central High School Auditorium, under the auspices of the Community Institute. His appearance in a chanted recital of his own poems, to his own tunes, will be the second event in the literature group of this season's institute course of twelve events.

Mr. Lindsay's program will include many of his most famous works, among them "The Congo," "John Brown," "Jenny Lind in Chicago," "General William Booth Enters Into Heaven," "The Virginians Are Coming Again" and "The Chinese Nightingale."

Now then, if in the face of all this you discover that you are still more movie-minded than not, the attractions in the downtown, first-run salons of the celluloids will be somewhat more than approximately thus: Palace, William Haines, supported by Leila Hyams, Ernest Torrence and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, in "The New Advantures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," and on the stage in person, in addition to Loew's "Great Guns" revue; Earle, double anniversary celebration of the establishment of the present vaudeville policy and the conclusion of a full year of acting as mistress of ceremonies by Miss Maxine Doyle, with Ruth Chatterton in "Once a Lady" on the screen, Louise Groody and Neville Fleeson headlining seven acts of vaudeville and Miss Doyle offering a special surprise bit; Rialto, Bessie Love, John Holland, Conway Tearle and star cast in "Morals for Women;" Columbia, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "The Guardsman;" Fox, Madge Evans and Charles Farrell in "Heartbreak," and Fanchon & Marco's "Exotique" Idea; Metropolitan, Doris Kenyon, Walter Huston and Loretta Young in "The Ruling Voice;" RKO-Keith's, Phillips Lord as Seth Parker in "Way Back Home," second week.

It might interest you to know that, true to all predictions, "Way Back Home" is doing a land office business on Fifteenth street. Box office receipts are running neck and neck with "Cimarron" and far in excess of the richly remunerative engagements of "The Common Law," "Devotion" and other outstanding money-getters.

Following his appearance at the Armistice jubilee in the Auditorium last night, James Cagney, Mrs. Cagney and party were guests at the Club Chantecler.

And when that V. F. W. band paraded up the Avenue to the jubilee, the millions of starlings once more residing on the facade of the Dist Building and in the surrounding t had them spotted a couple of bl away!

O'Dea Goes to Hearing In New York on Bedell

Detective Sergt. Larry O'Dea left for New York last night to attend a hearing on a fugitive warrant he filed about two weeks ago against William E. Bedell, who is wanted in the Capital for questioning in connection with an attack on Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, of the Legation of El Salvador.

The hearing will be held this morning before a United States commissioner. If the commissioner decides the District's claim to Bedell is justified, Sergt. O'Dea will return with the man tonight, he said.

War Mothers to Install Officers Tomorrow

The District of Columbia chapter of the American War Mothers will hold its usual meeting at the Hamilton Hotel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting will be the installation of the officers recently elected for the coming year.

The dinner, scheduled to follow the installation exercises, has been postponed until November 27.

Mayor of Baltimore Takes $1,500 Pay Cut

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Mayor Howard W. Jackson today took a $1,500 cut in his $12,000 year salary as one move to avoid a tax rate boost, threatened by a $100,000,000 assessment decline. Other high salaried officials also suffered pay slashes.

Teachers were cut 6½ per cent.

BRIDEGROOM PRINCE IGNORES CAROL, ILL

King's Condition Blamed in Part on Vows Which May Be Declared Illegal.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—King Carol of Roumania lay on a sick bed in Bucharest today while his errant brother, Prince Nicholas, and the latter's bride, continued to ignore the royal summons.

The king's condition—a combination of tonsilitis and bronchitis—was attributed in reports from Bucharest partly to shock from the prince's elopement and marriage to a commoner last Sunday. He caught a slight cold while leading a parade several days ago, but the marital development aggravated his state, physicians believe.

Meanwhile, legal minds here speculated on the matrimonial status of Nicholas. It would be easy under Roumanian law to declare the marriage illegal, it was pointed out, for no member of the royal family may marry without the consent of the king, and banns must be read two Sundays prior to the ceremony.

But the prince's stubborn attitude led some to believe he would take his own view of the ceremony's legality. It is no secret he previously offered to give up his royal prerogatives in order to marry and he can cite a precedent in the fact that King Carol himself renounced his rights to the throne six years ago rather than drop his romance with Magda Lupescue.

At least one person was resting easy and he is the village mayor who married the couple. His court-martial was immediately demanded in high quarters in Bucharest, but the minister of the interior handed down an opinion that the mayor could not refuse a command of the prince and that he had cleared himself of blame when he reported the event to the authorities.

The Roumanian legation last night issued the following statement:

Mrs. McLean Set To Fight Divorce

Publisher's Suit in Latvia, Likely to Be Heard in February.

Special to The Washington Post.

Riga, Latvia, Nov. 11.—The petition for divorce filed in the Riga District Court by Edward B. McLean, publisher of The Washington Post, is expected to come before the court in February. He is asking for a decree on the grounds of incompatibility.

(Associated Press.)

Counsel for Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of The Washington Post publisher, announced yesterday an injunction would be sought from District of Columbia courts to prevent Mr. McLean from obtaining a divorce in Latvia.

Albert M. Fox, Mrs. McLean's attorney, said he had been advised that Mr. McLean arrived at Riga, Latvia, yesterday and had employed counsel for the purpose of claiming residence in Latvia and obtaining a divorce.

Mrs. McLean already has prevented her husband from obtaining a divorce in Mexico by an injunction granted by District of Columbia Supreme Court, on July 20.

Since then, Mrs. McLean has sued for his removal as trustee of the estate of his father, the late John R. McLean. She charged him with neglecting the estate and paying attention to another woman.

Roadhouses Barred By Prince Georges

Colmar Manor Application Is Refused by County Commissioners.

Following the precedent set by earlier boards of county commissioners, the present board for Prince Georges County has refused to permit a roadhouse to be operated.

The most recent request, which is the only one presented to this board so far, was filed by Attorney Bird H. Dolby for Peter Katsaros, Sam Revis and William A. Revis. These three, who operate a restaurant in Colmar Manor, asked permission to give more than one dance a week in the place.

New Orleans Chief Resigns After Attack

New Orleans, Nov. 11. (A.P.).—Col. Hu B. Myers resigned today as superintendent of the New Orleans police department. Myers' resignation came after an attack from politicians who claimed he was not eligible to hold the office as he had not resided in New Orleans the legally required ten years.

In recent weeks, Col. Myers had directed raids against race horse handbooks, lottery shops, and other gambling establishments.

Victim of Pittsburgh Train Identified as Resident of Richland, Va.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—In the dead hand of William H. Smith, 23, of Richland, Va., a messsage of love was laid today by Eva Dean Shepherd, 19, of Akron, Ohio, as Smith's body lay unclaimed in the county morgue.

Smith was killed in yards of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad here Friday. Miss Shepherd identified him as a son of Rufus Smith, of Richland.

She asked if she might place a note in the dead man's hand. She wrote: "My darling Bill: I'll die still loving you. Your Eva."

NOW YOU CAN OWN A PETRO-NOKOL OIL BURNER

Copyrighted 1931, Petroleum Heat & Power Co. All rights reserved.

NO INSTALLATION CHARGE

Out of 28 years' experience in oil heating comes this welcome plan . . . sponsored by the Petroleum Heat & Power Company . . . originators of automatic oil heat . . . together with one of the oldest, largest and strongest banking groups in this country and a major oil company of unlimited resources.

for as little as $9.65 A MONTH

Nothing else to pay. We guarantee to assume the cost of service, repairs, new parts and labor on a Petro or Nokol Oil Burner for as long as five years.

Here's how this Public Service Plan works:

The latest model Petro or Nokol Oil Burner, fully automatic, of the exact type and size best suited to your own heating plant, is installed with tank complete ready to heat your house at a new low cost. We take care of all service, repairs, new parts and labor for you, for as long as five years. Without the least inconvenience to you, or cooling off your house, the change-over from coal to oil can be made even in mid-winter. Our method of installation is such that you will be enjoying automatic oil heat two hours after our experts put out your coal fire.

Thirty days after your burner is installed and running you make the first of your monthly payments . . . as little as $9.65 . . . nothing else to pay. You may take one, two, three or five years to complete your payments . . . then the burner is yours. That's all there is to it!

This plan . . . so sweeping in character . . . is merely the natural result of our nation-wide experience as a public service enterprise providing oil heat to more than a half million people. It has been made possible by the good-will and patronage of our customers, who have purchased over a hundred million dollars' worth of our products.

This same plan also applies to our new Petro Automatic Boiler, which gives you the boiler and the burner built as one, beautiful, automatic, self-contained unit . . . for as little as $13.68 a month.

Well Known Buildings Heated by Petroleum Heat & Power Co.

Our equipment is now heating hundreds of such large buildings as John Wanamakers; Standard Oil Building, 26 Broadway, New York City; Harvard Medical Group, Boston; Balaban & Katz Theatres, Chicago; Hearst Building, San Francisco; Ritz Carlton Hotels in New York, Boston and Montreal, Canada; as well as leading schools, churches, apartment buildings, laundries, bakeries, etc., etc.

As a public service enterprise, we make good oil burners to operate on low price fuel oil in every state in the Union, and we sell low price fuel oil to operate in good oil burners in Boston, Providence, Stamford, Westchester County, Metropolitan New York, Long Island, Newark and northern New Jersey, Camden, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Chicago. In this way, you are assured of the right burner for your home and the right oil for your burner.

With our special heating element you can also enjoy an abundance of hot water for kitchen and bath . . . winter and summer . . . at a lower cost than with any other automatic system.

So many thrifty home owners this year have been impressed by the actual savings in fuel bills and by the utter quietness of Petro-Nokol operation that our house heating business alone has increased 57% over last year.

It will pay you too, to get all the facts. Call today on our local representative or mail the coupon below.

CAGLE TO HEAD D. C. TEAM NEXT SEASON IN NATIONAL CIRCUIT

President of League Announces Plan of Franchise Here.

10 Teams in League Boast All-American College Stars.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH.
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

A WASHINGTON team captained by Chris Cagle, former West Point all-American back field star, probably will be given a franchise in the National Professional Football League next year, it has been learned by The Post.

Joe F. Carr, of Columbus, Ohio, president of the league for several years, yesterday sent the following telegram to The Post: "We are laying plans to install a National Professional League franchise at Washington next year. We will have fine backing and will install a team Washington can well be proud of."

Installation of a franchise in Washington will provide the Capital with games between the Nation's outstanding professional teams, featuring scores of former college football stars, including Red Grange, Chris Cagle, Ernie Nevers, Benny Friedman, Ken Strong and scores of lesser lights, who entered professional ranks at the close of their college careers.

Home games here would be played on Sundays at Griffith Stadium under present plans. Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington Ball Club, said last night that he would give serious consideration to the plan for installing a team in the league here.

League Comprised Of 10 Teams.

Ten teams now comprise the National Professional League. They are: Green Bay, Wis., Packers; Portsmouth, New York Giants, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Providence Steam Rollers, Cleveland, Staten Island Stapletons, Brooklyn, and the Philadelphia Yellowjackets.

Under present plans, Washington would displace the Philadelphia team in the league. The Philadelphia park was recently confiscated by the city for highway construction and the Yellowjackets' status in the league next year is uncertain.

The Green Bay Packers are the present leaders of the league, with nine victories and no defeats. The Packers have been unbeaten in two years of league play, winning the title last year.

All-American names are plentiful in the league. Besides Cagle, who is now captaining the New York Giants, the New York team features Benny Friedman, former All-American quarter back at Michigan and acclaimed the greatest forward passer in football history.

Former Georgetown Men in League.

The Stapletons, of Staten Island, N. Y., feature as their star Ken Strong, of New York University fame. Jim Mooney, former Georgetown tackle and long-distance punter, is a teammate of Strong. Other former Georgetown players in the league are Tomasini, end, and Jack Haggarty and Johnny Scalzi, who starred on Hilltop backfields.

Red Grange and Ernie Nevers are the rival attractions on the Chicago Bears and Chicago Cardinals, respectively.

The financial backing of the Washington team is expected to be provided by the league, although it is probable that local interests may be permitted to share.

The assignment of Cagle to the Washington team is believed to be influenced by the fact that his feats at West Point have made him a popular figure with Washington military circles.

Lawson, Bike King, In 6-Day Race Here

Winters, McNamara, Walthour Among Stars to Enter Dec. 27 Event.

Larry Lawson, world champion endurance bicycle rider, will head a troupe of six sprocket grinders into the Washington Auditorium for a six-day bike race, beginning December 27, it was learned yesterday. Besides Lawson, such international performers as Harold Winters, English speedster; Reggie McNamara, America's leading rider for nearly twenty years; Jack Sheenan, Joe DeVito, Dave Landis and Jim Walthour, all known in cycling circles, will compete.

The teams will be named later. As is customary, two men will make up a team and will pedal, by turns, for a week. One sleeps while the other grinds away.

Lawson yesterday offered 25 per cent of the first day's receipts to the District of Columbia committee for Employment. George Adams, executive secretary of the body, accepted the offer on behalf of his organization.

Spain Votes $40,000 For Olympic Expenses

Madrid, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The Spanish cabinet today voted $40,000 toward the expenses of the Spanish team in the ninth Olympiad in the United States next year, a larger sum than the National Athletic Federation had counted on.

The action assured Spain sending a strong team.

Navy Plans to Enter Team in Olympics

(Associated Press.)

The Navy will enter a team next year in the tenth revival of the Olympic games at Los Angeles.

Secretary Adams has approved naval participation and requested commanders to select candidates for the team.

All officers and enlisted men of both Navy and Marine Corps, but only candidates whose records indicate they are of championship caliber, will be appointed.

The candidates will be assembled at Annapolis early next year for training.

Princeton Sports Chief To Resign His Post

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the Princeton University Board of Athletic control, announced today his resignation effective in June, 1932.

Dr. Kennedy, who took over the leadership of the Princeton Athletic destinies eight years ago, will resume his chair as a professor of English at Princeton.

Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of the university, in accepting the resignation expressed regret that the head of the athletic department had not changed a desire expressed over a year ago to devote all his time in the future to the teaching of English.

Dr. Kennedy instituted a new program for control and direction of athletics and finances under closer supervision of the university during his service as chairman of the Athletic board. He also revised completely the constitution of the Princeton Athletic Association.

No successor has yet been chosen.

G. U. Hopeful As Alenty Returns

Shimmins' Improvement, Recovery of Back Cheering.

Squad Is Given Hard Workout for West Virginia Game.

FOR the first time in a long and arduous period, a note of optimism is creeping into football matters at Georgetown. With the return of Alenty yesterday to the lists of the well-being, and the noted improvement of Shimmins, another back, Coach Tom Mills is looking forward to sending the most up and coming Hoya team in some moons on the field Saturday when West Virginia is met at Griffith Stadium in the Hilltop's annual homecoming game.

One of the stiffest workouts of the year was held yesterday, and as a possible portend that things are looking up at the school, not one player suffered an injury, something of a record for the squad this year.

Mills Predicts Real Battle.

Mills is making no unfounded boasts about Saturday's game. West Virginia, according to the coach, is every bit as strong as Bucknell, but he gives the present Georgetown team an even chance, and predicts that win, lose or draw, the fur will fly in one of the most hotly contested games of the year.

Shimmins has come along so well, since Mills plucked him from the ranks of the reserves to help out the ailing back field regulars that he may supplant Roy Bordeau at full back Saturday. Mills will not work Alenty too much, sharing the half back's responsibility with Stanley.

Georgetown is stressing no particular phase of its attack or defense in preparation for the game, but instead is prepared for anything the Mountaineers might unleash. The first team, bearing down on their running plays, had no trouble scoring against a scratch squad equipped with West Virginia plays yesterday. Shimmins, Dee and Kennedy stood out for the varsity.

More scrimmaging is the program for today, while a limbering-up exercise will suffice for the eve of the battle.

Early comers to Saturday's game can glimpse the Hoya Freshmen in action against the Western Maryland Yearlings. This game, which should be a first rate contest, begins at noon, just two hours and a half before the main event.

West Virginia Eleven Will Auto to Capital

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 11.—West Virginia University's Mountaineer football team will travel by automobile to Washington, D. C., for the game there Saturday with Georgetown University, according to plans made public by the athletic department today. Last year West Virginia sponsored a special train when the game was played at night.

The 25 players who will probably make the Washington trip include Sortet, Karr, Hamilton, Sprouse and Baker, ends; Schweitzer, Lewis, Forte and Lough, tackles; Brown, Anderson, Mazzei and Zirbs, guards; Schwartzwalder, C. White and Wright, centers; Capt. Doyle, Sebulsky, Dotson, Canich, Drobeck, Covey, Marker, Stone and H. White, backs.

Stribling in Knockout Victory Over Pat Fay

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Georgia, knocked out Pat Fay, of Milwaukee, in the third round of their ten-round bout on an American Legion boxing program here tonight.

Stribling outfought his opponent from the start, and landed a right to the jaw to end the bout. Stribling weighed 188 and Fay 192 pounds.

WILLIE HOPPE LEADS.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, challenger for the world's 18.1 balkline billiard title, was leading Welker Cochran, the champion, 1,800 to 1,093 at the end of the sixth block of their 3,600 point contest tonight.

Hoppe won in the afternoon match, 300 to 215, and defeated the defender this evening, 300 to 59. A high run of 179 marked the challenger's play tonight.

Leading Scorer of Capital Colleges

ace of the Catholic University back field, who has scored 60 points in six games this season against strong opposition and is leading all Washington players in total pointage. Whelan, a brilliant broken-field runner, with uncanny aptitude for intercepting forward passes, is hailed as the Capital's greatest back field man.

35,000 WATCH MARINES BOW, 14-0

Legion Eleven Takes Game on Passes; Wall Hero.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 11.—Brilliant passing and running by Eddie Wall, American Legion quarter back, proved too much for the Quantico Marines, and the Leathernecks were defeated, 14 to 0, in the second annual Armistice Day football game this afternoon before 35,000 on Franklin Field.

Wall, a former Grove City College star, not only scored the first touchdown in the second period, but his accurate pass to Jack Hutton was largely responsible for the second touchdown in the third period.

The victory this afternoon marked the second for the American Legion team, which is composed of former college stars, over the Sea Soldiers from Quantico, Va. Last year the Legion won, 13 to 7. The defeat was the first of the season for the Marines.

Pass Puts Ball Near Goal.

At the close of the first session, a successful pass and gain by Al Kreuz put the Legion in a scoring position. Cracks at the line netted little yardage, so Wall called for a pass at the start of the second quarter.

Maury McMains tossed it and Wall, who was standing in the end zone, plucked it out of the air. Kreuz, former Penn ace, made a placement kick for the extra point.

The second score came right after the Marines had threatened to score. Wall ran back and heaved a long pass and Jack Hutton, the former Purdue end, running with the speed of an

CENTRE BOWS TO BOSTON COLLEGE

Blocked Punt Beats 'Praying Colonels' by 7-0 Score.

BOSTON, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A stubborn Boston College eleven converted a blocked punt into a touchdown and gave the Praying Colonels from Centre College their first defeat of the season by a 7-to-0 margin today before a holiday crowd of 12,000.

It was a bruising conflict between two strong defensive teams until late in the closing period, when Joe Killilea, reserve Boston College end, broke through with several of his forwards and blocked the punt that Half Back Tenikat attempted on Centre's 20-yard line.

Killilea and Johnny De Vuniti, the other Boston College end, raced after the bouncing ball, swept Tenikat aside in their rush, and the former recovered for a touchdown deep in Centre's end zone. Johnny Freitas, quarter back replacement, dropkicked the extra point for the Eagles.

Only four minutes were unplayed when this break came. Until then the game promised to end in a scoreless tie, although Centre outrushed and outkicked the Eagles by a considerable margin, piling up ten first downs to five.

Hasara, Centre quarter back, was the only ball carrier in either back field able to gain consistently. His line smashes, however, were always stopped before he could steer his team far into Boston territory. With their running games halted, both teams tried make headway through the air. Boston College completed but one of its six passing attempts and Center worked six of its ten forwards for a total of but 18 yards. Each team made a practice of punting on third down.

Midwest Calling Rentner, Northwestern's Star Back, Football's Second Grange

By PAUL MICKELSON.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Another "galloping ghost" is streaking his way to fame over the Western football front.

Rentner's the name—Ernest "Pug" Rentner, the irresistible spark of Northwestern's mighty juggernaut of the greenswards.

There may never be another "Red" Grange, the original phantom of the gridiron, but coaches and critics are acclaiming the Northwestern half back as the first carbon copy of the immortal Illinois redhead.

In its unbeaten march toward a national and Big Ten football championship, the Wildcats of Northwestern have become sluggish now and then, but never Rentner. Time and again he has changed defeat to victory with his sweeping dashes over the enemy goal lines.

Fast, Shifty And Smart.

Fast, shifty and smart, he has clicked off the somewhat staggering total of 1,084 yards this season, his second in the Big Ten football wars, and has yet to meet a stone wall on a fast field.

Rentner's feats this season closely resemble those of a good football team instead of just one ball carrier. Statistics show that he has handled the ball 119 times in six games so far this fall and has gained 1,084 yards for an average of 9.10 yards a thrust. Since coming up from Joliet, Ill., three yeare ago, he has competed in 10 Big Ten games and scored in all but one.

If you don't think he owns a football record, just glance at the official statistics of his ground-gaining prowess:

Gains from scrimmage, 78 attempts, 473 yards.

Punts returned, 30 attempts, 345 yards.

Kickoffs returned, 7 attempts, 217 yards.

Intercepted passes, 2 attempts, 28 yards.

Passes caught, 2 attempts, 21 yards.

Quick Shift on Run His Chief Weapon.

Ability to shift quickly on the dead gallop is Rentner's big scoring weapon and marks him in every game as the man of danger. In six games this fall, he has broken loose for nine big runs, ranging from 24 to 95 yards. His longest dash was a 95-yard sprint for a touchdown after catching the kickoff at the opening of the second half in the Minnesota game last Saturday, a run that really broke the Minnesota defense and changed defeat into triumph. In the same game he returned a punt 80 yards for another score.

Rentner's favorite play has been a spread run to either side, a formation that saw him run 65 yards to score against Nebraska, 24 yards to score against the University of California, Los Angeles; 55 yards and another touchdown against Ohio State and a 66-yard touchdown gallop against Illinois. He has reeled off any number of gains from line smashes and lateral pass plays for 10 to 15 yards, while he has tossed virtually all of

Tulane or Tennessee Seen Choice for Rose Bowl Game

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The lure of the Rose Bowl the glamour and national excitement that go with the annual postseason classic in California, would furnish an added measure of sweetness to victory for five elevens in the South and East Saturday if it were not for precedent, faculties and previous arrangements.

Although Northwestern in the Big Ten, Cornell in the East, and Tulane, Tennessee and Georgia in the South have been designated as the list from which Southern California will pick an opponent for the New Year's Day extravaganza in Los Angeles, the field actually is smaller than that.

Cornell is a sturdy choice to beat Dartmouth in the Hanover hills Saturday, but nothing like a favorite to appear in uniform in California next January 1. The Ithacans, blessed with a powerful, balanced array after years of depression, will participate here December 9 in a "round robin" football tourney scheduled for the unemployed. This is a departure from a policy of opposition to postseason competition.

Similarly Northwestern, already certain of at least a tie for the Big Ten championship and a decided favorite to trim Indiana Saturday, is committed to a postseason charity game. The stringent regulations of the conference against matches outside the regular schedule probably could not be modified further.

Georgia and Trojans Already Listed.

The field thus narrows down to Georgia or Tulane, and Tennessee, facing the powerful Vanderbilt squad next Saturday, but here again precedent interferes. The Georgia Bulldogs visit Southern California December 12 anyway in a regularly scheduled intersectional match and there is little likelihood that a return engagement would provide a Rose Bowl attraction. As far as Tennessee is concerned, only Vanderbilt and later Kentucky, bar the way to the Festival of Roses.

The East has three other possibilities in unbeaten Syracuse, Fordham and Harvard, but none is on the Rose Bowl eligible list. Harvard is definitely opposed to all postseason matches. Syracuse tackles its first major Eastern rival, Colgate, Saturday. Fordham, tied by Holy Cross but conqueror of West Virginia, Drake, Boston College and Detroit, meets a powerful foe in New York University.

Mike Turnesa Winner at Pinehurst

Sensational 135 for 36 Holes Annexes Mid-South Open.

Pickard, Golden and Klein in Money in Tournament.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Cutting six strokes from par in the morning and another in the afternoon, Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., carded 65—70—135 today to capture the twelfth annual Midsouth individual championship.

The course has been revamped and retrapped to make it more difficult since Mike's brother, Joe, set the course record at 64 in 1927.

The new champion's game was amazingly consistent in the morning, when he garnered six birdies and an eagle, largely by brilliant putting. Henry Pickard, tall and youthful Charleston, S. C., pro, won second money with 70—69—139.

Golden Finishes Third.

Johnny Golden, of Paterson, N. J., turned in two 70's to take third place, and Willie Klein, of East Williston, Long Island, was fourth with 72—72—144.

Turnesa won $400, Pickard $200, Golden $150 and Klein $100.

Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., who yesterday paired with Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, to tie for first place in the best ball tournament, disgusted with the failure of his putts to drop, picked up his ball after five holes today and tore up his card.

Bears of Los Angeles Upset St. Mary's, 12-0

Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The University of California at Los Angeles football team, for years the doormat of stronger Pacific Coast elevens, "arrived" today, achieving a spectacular 12 to 0 victory over St. Mary's College before 16,000 spectators. Two passes scored for the Bruins in the first and second periods. Proceeds of the game went to charity.

South American Turf Champ Breaks Record

Buenos Aires, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Mineral, leading money winner among South American race horses, today galloped to a three-length victory in the Carlos Pellegrini Stakes to add 60,000 pesos (about $25,200) to his score.

Mineral finished the 3,000-meter journey (approximately a mile and 7 furlongs), in 3:4 3-5 for a new South American record for the distance.

Indians Prove Enigma to Marberry

Register Two of Four Defeats Charged to Nat Mound Ace.

Brown, Fischer Call Tribe Sluggers "Cousins."

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

BUT FOR the Cleveland Indians, Fred Marberry, ace of the Nats' mound staff, would have had a well-nigh perfect record last season, according to figures showing how the American League pitchers fared against each team in the circuit, which have just been released by league headquarters. The big Texan had a "nothing" average against the New York Yankees, but had quite an edge over every other team in the circuit except Peckinpaugh's Tribe.

Marberry was charged with but four defeats and half of these were credited the Clevelanders, whom Fred was unable to beat a single time. He won four games each from the Red Sox, Tigers and Browns, while losing but once to any of this trio, the Beaneaters trimming him once. His other loss was at the hands of the Mackmen.

Brown Star Against Three Clubs.

Lloyd Brown also had three clubs which made him look good, taking ten games from Boston, Chicago and Cleveland, but having his troubles with the other entrants in the league. Carl Fischer had but one "pet"—the Indians, whom he defeated four times.

Only five flingers in the league were able to get better than an even break with the Mackmen, Washington boasting two of this number, Crowder winning five of seven and Marberry two of three.

Cecil Pat Caraway, lean, lanky Chicago southpaw, was the league's hard-luck flinger. He was a "cousin" to every team in the league, dropping no less than 24 games. Against the three leading teams, he failed to turn in a single victory, losing six straight to the A's, five straight to the Nats and three in a row to the Yankees.

No Club Hard for Grove.

Bob Grove, the Mackmen's great southpaw, was, of course, the league's outstanding mound hero. No club gave him any particular trouble. He beat the Nats six out of seven, the Yankees three out of four and rang up thirteen victories without a defeat against Detroit, Cleveland and Boston.

In addition to Grove there were five other pitchers in the league who did not lose a series with any club. They were George Earnshaw, although he could do no better than split even in four decisions with the Nats; Roy Mahaffey, our own "General" Crowder and Vernon Gomez and Henry Johnson, of the Yankees.

Records of Washington pitchers against each team in the league, together with their 1930 showing, follow:

BROWN—Boston, 4-0 (1930, 2-1); Chicago, 2-0 (1930, 2-1); Cleveland, 4-0 (1930, 3-1); Detroit, 2-3 (1930, 1-3); New York, 2-5 (1930, 4-3); Philadelphia, 0-4 (1930, 1-2); St. Louis, 1-2 (1930, 3-1). Total, 15-14 (1930, 16-12).

BURKE—Boston, 1-0 (1930, 1-0); Chicago, 1-1 (1930, 1-2); Cleveland, 0-1 (no 1930 record); Detroit, 2-0 (1930, 0-1); New York, 1-1 (no 1930 record); St. Louis, 3-0 (1930, 1-2). Total, 8-3 (1930, 3-5).

CROWDER—Boston, 2-2 (1930, 3-0); Chicago, 3-3 (1930, 1-1); Cleveland, 2-1 (1930, 2-0); Detroit, 2-0 (1930, 2-2); New York, 1-1 (1930, 2-0); Philadelphia, 5-2 (1930, 2-2); St. Louis, 3-2 (1930, 2-3). Total, 18-11 (1930, 15-8).

FISCHER—Boston, 2-1 (1930, 1-0); Chicago, 2-1 (no 1930 record); Cleveland, 4-1 (1930, 0-1); Detroit, 3-2 (no 1930 record); New York, 2-3 (no 1930 record); St. Louis, 0-1 (no 1930 record). Total, 13-9 (1930, 1-1).

HADLEY—Boston, 2-1 (1930, 3-1); Chicago, 3-0 (1930, 2-2); Cleveland, 1-0 (1930, 1-1); Detroit, 0-2 (1930, 2-3); New York, 1-3 (1930, 4-1); Philadelphia, 1-2 (1930, 2-2); St. Louis, 2-2 (1930, 1-1). Total, 11-10 (1930, 15-11).

JONES—Boston, 0-1 (1930, 2-0); Chicago, 1-2 (1930, 1-1); Cleveland, 3-3 (1930, 2-2); Detroit, 1-1 (1930, 2-1); New York, 2-0 (1930, 3-1); Philadelphia, 2-2 (1930, 2-1); St. Louis, 0-1 (1930, 2-0). Total, 9-10 (1930, 14-6).

MARBERRY—Boston, 4-1 (1930, 3-0); Chicago, 2-0 (1930, 2-1); Cleveland, 0-2 (1930, 2-2); Detroit, 4-0 (1930, 3-0); New York, 0-0 (1930, 3-1); Philadelphia, 2-1 (1930, 1-1); St. Louis, 4-0 (1930, 1-0). Total, 16-4 (1930, 15-5).

LISKA—Boston, 0-1 (1930 total, 9-7).

TAUSCHER—Philadelphia, 1-0 (no 1930 record).

M. WEAVER—Chicago, 1-0 (no 1930 record).

OLYMPIA TEAM PREPS.

Ring Chiefs Await Arrival Of Schmeling's Manager

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Plans for heavyweight campaigns both indoors and out were pigeon-holed for the moment today, waiting the arrival here tomorrow of Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, with word of the heavyweight champion's future intentions.

Jacobs has been in Germany for several months with Max Schmeling while the champion recovered from an eye injury received in his title defense against Young Stribling in Cleveland last summer. Schmeling is due here in three weeks.

Some sort of decision is expected soon after Jacobs' arrival on the proposition that Schmeling defend his title against Mickey Walker in Los Angeles this winter. Both Walker and Jack Sharkey, who expects to battle either Schmeling or Jack Dempsey next summer, have withdrawn from the heavyweight lists temporarily while awaiting definite news of the champion's plans.

The most serious drawback to a California fight this winter is understood to be a State law there limiting championship matches to 10 rounds, although 12-round no-decision bouts are permitted. Schmeling in the past has insisted on 15-round title matches. A heavyweight champion has never participated in a no-decision affair.

If Schmeling decides against a winter bout in California and against a match with Sharkey in June, thereby forcing both Walker and the Boston sailor back into circulation, Madison Square Garden plans to match the winner of the Tommy Loughran-Paulino Uzcudun match here Friday night against either Walker or Sharkey on the annual Christmas fund card in the Garden, December 11.

If this fails to work out a lightweight championship match may be made for that date, between Tony Canzoneri and Bat Battalino, featherweight title holder. Canzoneri must defend his crown first against Kid Chocolate, spectacular Cuban Negro, in the Garden November 20.

Dead Heat Results In Race at St. Cloud

St. Cloud, France, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A dead heat resulted in the running of the Prix Thomas Bryon today, Andre Schwob's Formosan and A. R. Heyland's Pure Folie finishing so close together the judges could not separate them. The Prix Bryon carried a purse of $2,000.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IN the natural course of a string of defeats, the yelping for a football coach's head sets in perforce and the baying of the wolves is already heard in the case of Tom Mills, at Georgetown.

The authorities at the Hilltop could set at rest the rumors that Mills is to leave Georgetown either by affirming or denying the reports. The story was heard as early as three weeks ago on the eve of the Georgetown-Duquesne game at Pittsburgh and have persisted ever since. Mills has denied them, but the lone comment from Georgetown authorities is that they have no comment to make.

In the absence of a denial of the report by the Georgetown athletic office, it is presumed that the Hilltop is not ready to affirm the three-year contract which Mills is supposed to hold. This program of procrastination is not calculated to maintain the morale of the Georgetown squad.

If Mills' success is to be measured in victories and defeats, then it can not be denied that he has failed at Georgetown this year. Only two games have been won by the Hilltoppers this season, those with Western Maryland and Lebanon Valley. A scoreless tie was played by Duquesne. The team fell a victim to New York University, Michigan State, Boston College and Bucknell.

But Mills and Georgetown have no reason to be ashamed of this record. An epidemic of injuries riddled his regular back field almost since the start of the season. Five of his best backs are rendered hors de combat for the important games by the injury jinx. Mills has persevered in the recent games with a back field that at best could be called third-string.

Especially did the game at New York against New York U. take its toll. Against the bruising Violets, Georgetown took terrific punishment that crippled both line and back field for the remainder of the season. That the team held the strong Duquesne eleven to a scoreless tie the following Saturday and then lost by only a single touchdown to Michigan State is to its credit. The loss in strength suffered by Georgetown after the opening game with Western Maryland is illustrated convincingly by the comparative score method.

With the team at its peak against Western Maryland, Georgetown won, 25-7. Crippled by injuries two weeks ago, Georgetown lost to Boston College, 20-2. But Boston College was able to beat by only one touchdown the Western Maryland team that Georgetown routed when Mills' first-string backs were available.

Mills' team last year showed traces of potential greatness, especially in the victory over Michigan State here. Previously, Michigan State had been unbeaten and had to its credit a scoreless tie with Michigan and a victory over a Colgate team that had routed Lafayette, 41-0. Only one touchdown had been scored against Michigan State until Georgetown scored three to gain a 20-19 victory.

High hopes were held by Mills this season. Dashiell, the freshman star, was regarded as the triple threat man that had been lacked by Georgetown since the days of Jack Flavin and Tony Plansky. He failed to return to school. Mills uncovered in the sophomore, Bradley, an outstanding back calculated to be the spearhead of the team's attack. Bradley broke his collar bone in a dummy scrimmage the day before the New York game and was out for the season. That was a sample of Mills' misfortune, and Georgetown's.

Mills is an exponent of the Notre Dame system, which he taught in company with Rockne at South Bend for five years. The installation of the Notre Dame methods require at least two seasons. Mills himself has stated that he would be willing to quit if he failed in his third year.

The situation at Georgetown has been observed by the student body, according to reports. A petition urging Mills' retention will be presented to the athletic officials, it is heard. Student leaders taking cognizance of the squad's ill luck, hold Mills blameless for the defeats. They cite the record of Maj. Cavanaugh at Fordham, whose first two seasons were woefully poor. Last year Fordham lost one game. Thus far it is unbeaten in 1931.

The belief is not merely that Mills deserves another chance, but that Georgetown would be forced to look far to find a better coach.

Tackle Breaks Neck In Game in Florida

Deland, Fla., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—C. V. Smith, tackle on the Millsaps College Football Team, received a fractured vertebrae in his neck today in a game with Stetson University here.

An X-ray showed the extent of the injury, after it was reported earlier that Smith had suffered a broken back.

Coach T. L. Brady, of Millsaps, announced the result of the X-ray. He said it showed the third vertebrae in the neck was fractured. Doctors who previously had believed Smith had little chance to live, were greatly encouraged over his condition.

Smith was injured in a mass play in the second quarter of the game. He is 22 years old and a junior at Millsaps.

Gelding Wins Easily Over Annapolis

Takes Long Lead at Start and Scores in Easy Fashion.

Tote Shows Speedy Effort to Capture Fifth Straight.

By J. B. SNODGRASS,
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 11.—Augustus F. Goodwin's Land Boy, leading practically all the way in the Masters of Foxhounds Steeplechase over the brush and obstacle fences of 3 miles, presented a thrilling picture in winning by two lengths under restraint, well ridden by J. V. H. Davis, amateur jockey. Noel Laing, restraining Annapolis, Mrs. T. H. Somerville's candidate, for 2 miles, closed resolutely with the son of Man o' War, finishing second, but unable to overcome the tough, fleet hunter, which seldom has tasted defeat in his career in cross-country tests. He finished second, a half length in front of L. B. Luddington's Gaston.

Tony the Clown was fourth, ridden by Bowes Bond, carrying John Boseley, jr.'s colors. The winner paid $4.10 in the mutuels and won $1,500 of the purse.

The large crowd here had in its ranks many representatives of the hunts organizations from the Virginias, Maryland and the East. A luncheon for the Masters of Foxhounds from a wide territory given by the Maryland Jockey Club preceded the race.

Tony the Clown was the early leader, but when the field was straightened out, Land Boy went to the front and was never in danger.

Tote Wins His Third Race Of Meet.

Wheatley Stable's Tote won his third race at the meeting when he led all the way in the Pimlico Graded Handicap, Class A, which topped three classes of graded handicaps run today. Linton Farm's Flagstone was second throughout, and the two finished a length and a quarter apart. Glen Riddle Farm's Full Dress was third, Sidney Grant fourth. The race was run within one-fifth of a second of the record, the time of this race being 1:42 2-5, a mile and 70 yards. DeCamilles had Tote away from the gate just ahead of the bunch, and at the clubhouse he shot him into a safe lead which the horse maintained on his own courage. The winner paid $10.00.

Ormesby won Graded Handicap Class B, fifth race, leading all the way, with three lengths lead at the finish. Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane was second and Mrs. H. Starr's Whipper Cracker third. Ironsides delayed the start and was placed outside the gate. Ormesby carried the colors of Belair Stud, and T. Malley, who had ridden Tote, had the mount, scoring a double. The winner paid $7.30. Blind Lane was close to the leader on the back stretch, but was outrun after entering the home lane.

Mad Frump Easily Best In First.

Meeting some interference en route, C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump proved equal to overcoming it and easily winning the first race under a good ride by A. Robertson. John F. Schoor's Frederick, racing Senado into defeat, came into the stretch in the lead. Mad Frump, on the outside, passed the Schorr colt at the sixteenth and went on to victory by a length and a half. Charlton Clay's High Proof, paying $21 to show, was third. Twelve 2-year-olds started in this 6-furlong dash.

J. F. Adams' Annimessic won from a cheap field of maidens in the second race at a mile and a sixteenth, T. Malley up. Dark Ray was second and Brown Mary third. Tuscan Knight lost the show money through a weak finish on the part of Jockey J. Mann.

John Barton set the pace after the first turn, with Peter Ballot and Annimessic in the order named. Annimessic was drawing away at the end. Playbill again showed he is a poor race horse. The winner paid $5.90.

Live One, $24.20, Wins Finale.

J. Badana's Live One scored by a nose in the seventh race over Kilrane Stable's Westko, with Sun Thorn third and Swatter fourth. The winner paid $24.20 and was ridden by J. Guerra. Sun Thorn set the pace and was first to get around the stretch run. Live One was always in striking distance. Caplan, and early contender, dropped out of contention.

Westko appeared to be easily the best. Leaving the gates slowly, he was practically left at the post. After finally hitting his stride, he literally ran over horses at the finish to be beaten by a nose. He would have won in a few more strides.

Fair Jack, W. Nertney up, ran a fast race to win in the sixth number, the majority of those wagering being down on C. V. Whitney's Pennate, one of the closest of odds-on favorites of the meeting. But Pennate did not even get the place, which went to Mine Sweeper. Fair Jack, carrying the silks of H. G. Bedwell, set all the pace, and won by two lengths, while Mine Sweeper was second for the trip of 6 furlongs and Pennate was third. Fair Jack paid $17.30.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAD FRUMP, $3.50, $2.70, $2.80; FREDERICK, $4.30, $3.80; HIGH PROOF, $21.00.

MAD FRUMP, sent into early contention and racing on the inside, was in tight quarters when lapped with the leaders entering the home stretch, came to the outside when straightened away and came away under slight urging. FREDERICK, a stout factor from the start, raced SENADO into defeat and held on well for the closing drive. HIGH PROOF, hard ridden the entire trip, finished with good courage. HATTERAS lost ground for the entire journey. BIG AMERICA weakened after a fast half mile. HAPPY WARRIOR was unable to remain with the leaders. TULACH ARD broke slowly. SENADO stopped badly after five furlongs.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:50. Off at 1:51. Winner, J. F. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANNIMESSIC, $5.90, $3.70, $2.90; DARK RAY, $7.40, $5.10; BROWN MARY, $7.00.

ANNIMESSIC, securing a forward position in the early running, responded to punishment when moving into the home stretch, gained command midway of the home stretch and had to be hard ridden to stall off DARK RAY. Latter, shuffled back early and left out of contention for six furlongs, came with a belated rush for the final drive. BROWN MARY broke in a tangle, was hurried along when gaining full stride and showed a good effort. TUSCAN KNIGHT had a lot taken out of him racing JOHN BARTON and PETER BALLOT into defeat and hung badly in the final furlong. JOHN BARTON weakened badly in the final three-sixteenths mile. PLAYBILL was vigorously urged for the entire trip. BONNY BLINK was eased up when he went lame.

THIRD RACE—Three miles. Purse, $2,500; allowances. The Masters of Foxhounds Steeplechase. For hunters holding certificates from N. S. & H. A. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:17. Off at 2:17½. Winner, A. F. Goodwin's ch. g. (10), by Polyphonic—Landworker. Trained by N. Kennedy. Value to winner, $1,500; second, $500; third, $300; fourth, $200. Time, 6:06 (19 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAND BOY, $4.10, $2.90, $2.80; ANNAPOLIS, $3.00, $3.20; GASTON, $3.50.

LAND BOY, taking command after the third fence, galloped along stoutly while fencing boldly for the first two miles, withstood several bold efforts from GASTON in the final half mile, drew clear after the eighteenth fence and had speed in reserve at the end. ANNAPOLIS, restrained for two miles, responded gamely when put to pressure and came determinedly to outfinish GASTON through the final half mile. Latter put to a severe drive in the final six furlongs, was on practically even terms with LAND BOY going to the seventeenth fence, but was not good enough to stay with the winner thereafter. TONY THE CLOWN was done after two miles. He pulled up lame. JOE EDWARDS was taken far out of contention after the first half mile. He galloped around to complete the course and was beaten over a half mile.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap, Class A. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:53½. Off at 2:53½. Winner, Wheatley Stable's b. c. (3), by Dark Jest—Portage. Trained by J. Fitzsimmons. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12, 1:37 3-5, 1:42 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOTE, $10.00, $6.00, $4.70; FLAGSTONE, $6.10, $4.90; FULL DRESS, $7.30.

TOTE, sprinting into the lead at once, raced under slight restraint when settled on the back stretch, was shaken up when approaching the main stretch and, drawing clear at the final furlong pole, held his field safe thereafter. FLAGSTONE, in closest pursuit of the winner throughout, could not menace the winner after making a determined effort nearing the stretch run. FULL DRESS worked his way up gradually after being outrun in the first six furlongs and came stoutly for the final test. SIDNEY GRANT, a distant trailer early, finished with belated speed. HILLSBOROUGH raced evenly. MISSTEP weakened after entering contention at the far turn. MORSEL tired badly, as did SONNELLI.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap, Class B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:26½. Off at 3:33½. Winner, Belair Stud's b. c. (3), by Sir Gallahad III—Chewink. Trained by J. Fitzsimmons. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 2-5, 1:39, 1:43 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ORMESBY, $7.30, $4.30, $3.30; BLIND LANE, $4.50, $4.50; WHIPPER CRACKER, $4.50.

ORMESBY, rushed hard to take command at the first turn, raced along under restraint until nearing the home stretch, was shaken up and came away sharply in the closing drive. BLIND LANE, well placed from the start and going in her best form, finished willingly under strong urging. WHIPPER CRACKER improved his position gamely and, coming to the outside, closed full of run. TRICE was used up forcing the pace and tired when the real test came. IRONSIDES could not reach the leaders. SIR BYRON raced well. GOLDEN PRINCE was not good enough. BOUNDLESS DEEP made a threatening effort midway of the far turn, but faltered fast thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:08½. Off at 4:11. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's ch. g. (4), by Fair Gain or Thunderstorm—Rani. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR JACK, $17.30, $6.10, $2.70; MINE SWEEPER, $11.00, $3.30; PENNATE, $2.30.

FAIR JACK, having good speed, took a brief lead in the first three furlongs, was put to pressure for the final drive and had enough in reserve to withstand MINE SWEEPER. Latter, going resolutely from the beginning, held on well for the final test. PENNATE, in tight quarters early, secured racing room after the opening furlong, but was unable to threaten the leaders thereafter. ERIN QUEEN was outrun throughout. She was worked out a mile. PENNANT LASS showed a dull effort. ST. PRISCA tired.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:41. Off at 4:41½. Winner, J. Badame's b. g. (3), by Sweep On—Dead Indian. Trained by J. Badame. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40, 1:44 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIVE ONE, $24.30, $11.40, $7.80; WESTKO, $10.90, $6.30; SUN THORN, $10.30.

LIVE ONE, rated along in the first flight, responded gamely when wearing the pacemakers down, assumed command in the closing sixteenth and just lasted long enough to stall off WESTKO. Latter, slow to get into full stride, circled his field and, closing fast, would have been winner in a few more strides. SUN THORN, steadied in front, saved ground and continued stoutly nearing the finish. SWATTER, on the outside from the beginning, came with good courage when put to a drive. DAWDLE showed a good test. CAPLIN weakened after reaching the pacemaker. MAKE BELIEVE could never reach the leaders.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Pimlico Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 11.—Pimlico's card tomorrow is saved from being featureless by the third, a purse race for 2-year-olds, thirteen being named for the six furlongs. Mrs. Milton W. Holden's TRYANDAGAIN, to be ridden by Mack Garner, is the class of the field. She has had a rest of a fortnight and, if she runs back to her form at Laurel, should never be out of a pull.

FLAG TRICK has shown some brisk moves in workouts since appearing under colors. She probably is the contender. GLORIA MARIS, from the Jeffords Stable, should improve over her last race BOSCOBEL is another money possibility.

FIRST RACE—THE TROUT is selected to win on his good race last out when he was close to the winner in a better field than this one. TUSCAN KNIGHT, a mudder, would improve if the track should change. BROWN MARY has a chance.

SECOND RACE — HUFFY and PROWLER will fight it out in the Catonsville Steeplechase, second on the program. At even weights HUFFY appears a shade the better, but PROWLER'S last effort was a good one, and he challenged the winner to the last. The Bosley entry of ASTHROPE and SWANSEA should be in the money. HUFFY has been running in better form than ever before, but PROWLER is a horse of higher class, and if the distance was greater, the Widener horse would be the favorite.

FOURTH RACE—GENERAL LEJEUNE, which has not started since the Saratoga meeting, but which is entirely fit, and is coupled with HORATIA as the Trainer Burch entry, should show his heels to the lot in the gallop of a mile and 70 yards. He was entered several times this fall, but scratched each time, and evidently has found the spot in this event. The colt showed speed in the spring and towers over this field. HORATIA is a fast filly from the Jeffords stable. BLUE DAMSEL should be the contender, but is a doubtful starter, as she is far down on the eligible list. SANDWRACK looks better than any of the others and won two races at Laurel.

FIFTH RACE—MUD, making his first start of the Maryland fall season a few days ago, showed a good performance, leading to the stretch and needed that race to put him on edge. He should canter home. KADIAK has been well backed in every race in which he has started, but has failed to earn brackets here. He will be one of the choices. Second would be doing well for him in his present form. PAULA L. will be a contender, and FLYING MAX also is running in best form.

SIXTH RACE—JACKSTAFF is selected upon the strength of his lightning works. There is doubt about starting, as he is last on the eligible list. TRYSOME is next best, and doubtless will improve. STEPPING SISTER ran well at Laurel and has a chance for show.

SEVENTH RACE—CHICSU is much the best in the seventh and Fator will ride. TANTALIZING should be the contender. Was third in his last. POLYDORUS will be backed and has a chance for the front end of the money.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

NOWADAYS, when an Indian ruler dies it is against the law for his wives to commit suicide, but some of them still do. Tradition dies hard. For centuries when an Indian king died, and was burned, it was the custom for all of his wives to burn with him—alive!

Suttee, or widow-burning, was not forced, but voluntary. Not only have thousands upon thousands of Hindu women accompanied their husbands into the life beyond in this manner, but they entered the flames of the funeral pyres unshrinkingly, and with a gallant exaltation that is one of the most moving things in human nature. No wonder that the Hindus cherish such a memory.

When Ranjit, the Sikh ruler, burned in 1839, he was accompanied by his four queens and eleven slave girls. In front of each queen a native walked backward, holding a mirror so that she could watch her countenance as she entered the flames.

Muhammed Sharif Hanafi had 700 wives, and at his funeral pyre they all willingly died.

During the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries it was not uncommon for 2,000 or even 3,000 women to die when a king burned.

Devitt Golfers Bow To G. U. Preps, 6 to 0

Georgetown Prep's golf team vanquished Devitt Prep's representatives in a preseason match played at Garrett Park yesterday. The final score was 6-0. Baer was the only member of the losing team who threatened to win a match. It was the first taste of competition for either team this season.

Allan defeated Richards, 3 and 2; Finn defeated Baer, 2 and 1; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 4 and 3. Donohue defeated Childs, 3 and 1; Zubrodt defeated Hoffman, 8 and 7; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 9 and 7.

C. U. Hikers Beaten By Hopkins, 23-32

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 11.—The Johns Hopkins University cross country team today defeated the Catholic University team, 23 to 32, over the 4½-mile course at Homewood. Sneeringer, Hopkins, led the way at the finish, in 24 minutes 46 seconds.

McQuigan and McDonald, of the visitors, ran second and fourth, respectively.

PIMLICO NOTES

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 11.—A. C. Bostwick will send Mate, his Preakness and American Classic winner, to England on November 17 for a campaign on the English turf next year. Pete Bostwick, leading amateur rider, will accompany the horse across. Mate is eligible for the Riggs $25,000 Handicap Saturday.

Armistice Day exercises were conducted at 11 o'clock this morning. Officials of the Maryland Jockey Club, employes, owners and trainers participated.

Brandywine Stable's Pencader came out of his last race with injuries that may shelve the colt for the year. The colt was entered for the $10,000 Endurance at Bowie.

Walter J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland worked a mile and a quarter in 2:09 this morning in preparation for the $25,000 added Riggs Handicap Saturday. Greentree Stable's St. Brideaux worked a mile and an eighth in 1:59; Rocky News a mile and a half in 2:44 2-5.

Hygro has been retired for the season. He has had too much racing. Burning Blaze is another 2-year-old which raced himself off best form.

Belmont Park and Saratoga stakes close on December 1.

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, has designated officers for the meeting to begin Thanksgiving Day. They are: John C. Ireland and T. C. Bradley, stewards; Julius Reeder, racing secretary, and George Wingfield, starter.

the Wildcat passes, except in the Minnesota game, when a broken thumb on his throwing hand smeared that art.

Coach Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, calls his junior yardage maker—he still has another year to play—one of the best in football history.

"Rentner can do everything and do it surprisingly well," Coach Hanley said. "He has the weight, 185 pounds, and the height, over 6 feet, and he can run, block or smash the line with great power. He isn't our leading scorer, but is one of the deadliest backs the game ever saw because he can score from any part of the field any minute. When we get within easy scoring distance Rentner lets some one else push it over."

Rentner has been taken out for long periods in games against weaker teams.

G. U. Prep Juniors Triumph by 12 to 7

The Georgetown Prep Juniors hung a 12-7 defeat on the Episcopal Juniors in a well-played game at Garrett Park yesterday. The winners were obliged to come from behind to gain the verdict. Dwal scored for Episcopal near the end of the first half, but Georgetown came back strong in the third period to shove over a brace of markers. Peple and Pinden carried the oval over. Keating and Spaulding performed well in the Georgetown back field, while Hannon and McCann played best for Episcopal.

TECH ELEVEN HEAVY FAVORITE IN SERIES GAME TODAY

Boyd Returns To Eastern Line-up

Star Linemen Clash in 8th Game of School Race.

Tech Ends Not Outplayed in Past Two Seasons.

IN answer to Eastern's hope of checking Tech through the medium of a revamped line, the Manual Trainers will place their ranking No. 1 outfit on the field today at the start of the game, which is the eighth tussle in the high school series and which will be played in Central Bowl at 3:30 o'clock. The game was postponed from Tuesday because of the death of H. Dale Davis, assistant principal of Tech, last Saturday.

Tech has a virtually all-high combination on the field today and should win pretty much as it pleases, what with its limitless reserve strength, smooth running plays and always potent aerials. Eastern has a much less complex style of playing than Tech, and while it depends largely on sheer power plays to win, lacks any backs gifted with great drive.

Star Linemen To Clash.

The game will bring together two of the finest linemen of the series in Jack Rhodes, Tech guard, and Charley Mades, Eastern tackle. Mades will have a strong working partner in Bob Campbell, whose return to the line-up notably improves Eastern's front barrier.

Tech and Central are rated almost on a par from tackle to tackle, but on the wings the Manual Trainers have a decided advantage in Meikeljohn and Wohlfarth, a couple of hard-tackling ball hawks, who have not been outplayed in two years. Their treatment of the Central ends, in the Central-Tech game, was an exemplification of their merit.

Behind the line there is no comparison. Tech, with Sachs and Hatos carrying the ball; Edwards tossing the passes and kicking, and Gormley leading the interference, is irrepressible alongside of Eastern's primarily weak and subsequently injured quartet of ball luggers. Bus Boyd is the last of the original Eastern back field to see real service today.

Ray Bowen-Riley Bout Added to Alex. Card

Ray Bowen has been signed to meet "K. O." Riley in a preliminary bout on the card to be offered Monday night at Alexandria Day Nursery, it was announced last night. The fighters will go four rounds.

In announcing the closing of the bout, Matchmaker Frankie Mann made it known that Riley had agreed to come in at 145 pounds. "K. O." now weighs in the neighborhood of 147 but can drop the extra poundage between now and the weighing-in time Monday.

With their backs to the wall, the Marines resorted to long passes, some of them connecting for long gains, but with others grounding or being intercepted.

Bauer, Moret, O'Neill Play Well.

Bauer, Moret and O'Neill, former Naval Academy stars, played brilliantly for the Marines.

The Marines' Band of 101 pieces took the field between halves, and so did the Frankford American Legion Post championship bugle and drum corps. The Marines struck up an air, and so did the Frankford Legion, who also began a drill.

The Marines finally decided there was no use and marched off the field and joined the spectators in watching how the Frankford Legion won the title.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

Hitting the Head Pin

RENDEZVOUS stowed away two of its three games with the John Blick team in a match rolled at Arcadia last night. The winning scores were 491, 501 and 557. The Blick's games were 515, 492, 517. Lucy Owens, of the Blicks, had high set of 328, and Margaret Leaman, of Rendezvous, was credited with high game, 127. "Sammy" Fortney also had a high set, coming within two pins of tieing Mrs. Owens.

Ben Smith was the individual star of the Elite Laundry League matches rolled at Arcadia. He rolled a game of 124 and a set of 341. His team, Elite No. 2, also joined in the fun, rolling high team game and set with scores of 514 and 1,453.

The Federal American Bankers cleaned up in the Bankers' League on the same drives. The boys from Fourteenth and G streets tallied high game, 575, and also made off with the set honors with their score of 1,655. Meany, of the same team, and Bargfeld, of Riggs, counted high games of 133 each, but the latter beat out his rival for the set honors with his 379.

Colonial Ice Cream knocked Brodt's out of second place in the Business Men's League at Convention Hall last night by winning all three from the hatmen. S. Kann's Team, however, took all marbles with its 1,715. Joe Toomey, the old dynamite ball tosser, rolled up a set of 369. The department store crew bumped off Fitzpatrick's Service Station in all three. In the other matches rolled Call Carl defeated Convention Hall, the house's own team, 2 to 1, and Hecht Co. administered the same dose to C. & P. Telephone.

Central Armature, No. 1, bounced a 2-to-1 decision off the head of Creel Bros. at the same alleys. That old Electrical League custom of breaking records was adhered to, the winners adding a single pin to their set record of 1,630, which they established last week.

Hartley, bowling for the Tigers in the Packard League, nearly upset the old dope bucket at Rendezvous. His game of 158, new high for the season, enabled the Tigers to take one from the league-leading Eagles. Foley's games of 97, 119 and 126, however, kept the latter on top long enough to cop the odd game. Peacock, of the Bears, mainained his high average of 111. His 391 set has withstood all the efforts of the other members of the league thus far. Hartley's game was only ten pins short of the all-time league mark hung up by Hazell last year.

"Hokie" Smith's match with Henry Hiser may be the making or the breaking of another promising youngster, according to some of the sages attached to the duckpin game. Such a match is the acid test for a bowler. It corresponds to a rookie pitcher's first game in the big show. "Hokie's" debut as a head-liner is unusual inasmuch as he will oppose the No. 1 ranking bowler of the District. It will be a case of veteran against youth, experience in opposition to inexperience, but Smith's host of friends are pulling for him * * * and so are Henry's * * * pulling for Henry.

Peck No. 3 was swept off its feet by Mount Vernon M. E. at Arcadia last night, and dropped all three before it could regain its balance. Peck No. 2 partially redeemed the Peck honors by commiting assault and battery on West Washington Baptists for a 3-game win. Grace Episcopal concluded the evening's activities by pasting a swell 2-1 defeat on Calvary M. E. P. Hart, of Grace, was the individual star of the evening, scoring high game and set with his marks of 125 and 343. Peck No. 1 grabbed the team honors with its game of 538 and set of an even 1,600.

Two shutouts were recorded in the Bureau of Standards League matched at Columbia. Technical defeated Files and Engineers Ceramists in this manner. B. T. U. and Mimeos had to be satisfied with paltry 2-1 decisions over Chemists and Industrial, respectively.

Bill Wood's own team carried his colors to victory over the Recreation team by a 2-1 margin at Lucky Strike. Some of the stars of the match were Miss Cox, who rolled a game of 122 and 329; Billie Burke rolled a game of 108 and set of 304, and Sarah Updike stole their thunder with her prize-winning effort of 126.

Getting back to Arcadia for a moment, the Kiwanis aggregation was sitting on top of the perch last night by virtue of its game mark of 574 and set of 1,167, but it remained for two members of other teams to win the individual laurels. Baldwin, of Newcomers, walked in with his high game of 139, and Barnhart, of Civitans, captured high set with 365.

The Five Greeks sprang another upset in the King Pin Business Men's League by whipping the First Americans, 2-1, at King Pin No. 2 last night. No outstanding scores were recorded, but all three games were close.

At the same alleys, the Capital City Lawn Tennis League, comprised of racquet wielders hibernating at the bowling alleys during the winter months, got in a few whacks. The two matches rolled resulted in a 2-1 decision. The Pan-Americans downed Clairemont, and Rock Creek defeated Edgewood.

The Columbia alleys were the scene of the Nautical League's activities last night. The matches resulted in Potomac's 2-1 victory over Colonial, El Dorado took the odd one from Drifters No. 1, and Washington Canoe made off with all three of its games with Bonzai. Washington Canoe No. 2 didn't fare so well, losing the odd game to Anchor. Another Washington Canoe team—No. 3—also lost a one-game decision, this to Drifters No. 2. Gus Fredericks was head man for the evening with his 153 game and set of 375. Washington Canoe No. 1 rang up high team set, 1,666, and El Dorado captured team game honors with 586. Evans, of Washington Canoe No. 1, pulled one for the books. He clicked off four consecutive strikes, but finished with a game of 143.

A pair of ladies' District League matches rolled at the same drives, resulted in a 3-0 win for King Pin over Deal's Service, and a 2-1 decision for Convention Hall over Columbia. Mrs. Catherine Quigley led the Deal pinettes with her set of 345, and Margaret Brunelle led both teams with her set of 359. Convention Hall, after being held to a tie in its final game with the Columbians, finally eked out the victory.

Judd & Detweiler tacked a 2-1 defeat on Young & Simon in a National Capital League match at Lucky Strike last night. Sweeney, of the winners, cut a big hunk of cake for himself by running up a game of 131 and a set of 371. The Printers, as a team, rolled a game of 571, which was better than the Young & Simon cohorts could do.

Legionnaire Boxers Entertain at Hospital

Victory Post, American Legion, entertained more than 300 inmates of St. Elizabeths Hospital with a card of boxing bouts in the Red Cross hall at the hospital last night. All of the fights were well received by the audience.

Don Bridges, Ralph Smith, Julie Sobona, Johnny Ryan, Tommy Allen, and Paul Bogetes were the principals. Jack Whiteley, athletic officer of Victory Post, directed the program.

GRIDMAN IS INJURED.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Jim Nichols, freshman center at University of Alabama, was seriously, possibly critically injured in football scrimmage today. Exact extent of his injuries had not been determined.

CAPITAL HILL BOOKING.

The Capitol Hill 125-pound gridders are seeking a game with a strong team in their class for Sunday. Teams interested should call Manager Larsen at Atlantic 5458.

Hyattsville High Girls Beaten at Field Ball

Brandywine, Md., Nov. 11.—Lackey High School girls field ball team, of Indian Head, champion of Charles County, today eliminated Hyattsville High, Prince Georges County standard bearer, 9 to 0, in an opening game of the State championship tournament here.

Led by Miss Brown, center, who counted all nine points, Brandywine gained a 2-to-0 lead in the opening quarter and then after being held scoreless in the second period went on to add the remainder of its points in the second half.

Dennison Joins Forces With Northern A. C.

Carl Dennison, erstwhile manager of the Potomac Food Distributor baseball team and one of the leading members of the Palace Club, has cast his lot with the Northern Athletic Club and will aid Ted Otte in building up a strong organization for boys over 14 years of age. The club will sponsor baseball, football, basket ball and boxing teams.

Dennison was with the Palace organization for four years and Otte has been with the Northern Club since its inception eight years ago. The pair are well known in local sporting circles. An initiation fee of $1.00 and a like amount each month for dues is the only requirement for boys and young men wishing to join. A meeting is scheduled for Friday night at 8:30 o'clock at Otte's home, 5213 Georgia avenue northwest. Any prospective members are invited to attend.

ALCOVA DRILLS.

All members of the Alcova eleven are requested to report on the Arlington Fire Department Field tonight at 7:30 o'clock for an important drill. Sunday the team meets the Hopkins Furniture Co. on the same field at 2:30 p. m.

K. OF C. TO PLAY.

The Knights of Columbus unlimited team will meet the Bolling Field aviators on the latter's floor, Sunday at 2:30 p. m. It will be a practice game. The "Caseys" are to drill tonight at 8 o'clock on their home court. All players are requested to report promptly.

DIXIANAS SEEK GAMES.

The newly organized Dixiana basket ball team is seeking games with teams in the 145-pound class having gymns. The following players have signed with the club: King, Saphos, Fox, Murry, Freund, Gafney, Baker and Johnson.

Apaches Seek to Avenge Defeat at Hands of Celtics

THE Apache-Celtic game, the South Atlantic League's contest at Griffith Stadium Sunday afternoon, promises to be an even battle. The Celtics will regain the services of Lester McMenniman, who will supply the long punts. It was the lack of a kicker that forced the Celtics to bow to the Mohawks in their last appearance.

Buck Grier, Celtic manager, will also have W. Moore, the famed "No. 37" of the previous Apache game. It was Moore who ripped through the Indians.

With the eligibility lists filed and the surprise element (at least in the matter of new players) eliminated, the game promises to rival in thrills those battles of the past few weeks.

The new league has brought out some close competition. In the six games played to date, three have resulted in ties with a fourth game being decided by a safety, the Mohawks taking the game from the Celtics 8 to 6.

The only one-sided game was the last Apache-Celtic fray. The chance of a repetition of that contest has been eliminated, however.

Both teams have rested as far as games are concerned and have likewise benefited by practice.

Buck Grier has issued a call for all his players to be present tonight at a drill at Seventeenth and B streets northwest at 7:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow night the league will act on the protest of the Irvington Club, which charges the Mohawks with having played Leon Fouts, George Washington University player, in last Sunday's game.

G. W. U. CUBS EASILY ROUT EMERSON

Frosh Run Up 52-13 Score; Trilling Makes 3 Touchdowns.

ANNIHILATING the puerile armature of Emerson Institute's spindly outfit, the hard-bitten freshmen of George Washington University earned a 52-to-13 victory over the prep school boys yesterday afternoon, the score coming, for the greater part, as a result of three enormously industrious G. W. backs, and the practice of the losers to win the war by passive resistance.

Emerson was routed throughout, except for two stirring periods during the second and last quarters, when Ray Raum, the team's veteran quarter back, hurled his fireball passes into the arms of Mark Whalen or Joe Buscher for gains that carried the ball in quick, fast hops from midfield to scoring territory. Raum passed one over the line to Whalen for the first Emerson touchdown, and bucked the other across from the 1-yard line.

Sexton's Team Looks Good.

Jean Sexton, the portly gentleman who pulls the strings on George Washington Plebe outfit, has caught himself a rather pretty mess of footballers this year. The boys charge like fury itself, take out their men with a dispatch and recklessness not particularly visible in varsity games, and can run the ball as well as the next. Doty Trilling, who has seen a number of years' experience as a prep school player hereabouts, both at Devitt and Emerson, runs the team, and ran himself into three touchdowns yesterday.

Henry Strayer and Otts Neilson both accounted for two touchdowns while "Wooden" Knott, a big capable boy, gave G. W. its eighth and final touchdown just before Umpire O'Meara, his Christian heart touched by the scene, tooted the game into history, several minutes before it should have been.

Emerson Fumble Brings Score.

Only one G. W. touchdown was not attributable to straight rushes down the field. That came late in the second period when an Emerson fumble gave the Colonials the ball on Emerson's 20-yard line.

Washington's Shooters Seeking Doubles Title

The doubles championship of the Washington Gun Club will be determined Saturday afternoon with a splendid field in the running for the title now held by Julius Marcey, whose mark of 41 pigeons out of 50 was good enough to win last year.

Besides Marcey, such figures in local transhooting as C. C. Fawcett, F. P. Williams, W. F. Burrows and Dr. J. C. Wynkoop will compete. All have won the title at least once during the period, since 1923, that the meet has been in operation.

The public is invited to attend the doubles championship and the other features of Saturday's shoot. The traps of the Washington Gun Club are located near Benning.

Japanese Golf Pros Plan Invasion of U. S.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Japanese golf professionals will test their skill in the United States for the first time this winter when the Japan Golf Association will send three ranking Japanese players to compete in the winter tournament circuit which starts at San Francisco December 7.

The trio of professionals selected are K. Yasuda, Tokyo Golf Club; R. Asami, Hodogaya Golf Club, and T. Mitamoto, Ibaraki Country Club, Osaka. Word that these players would sail for California this month was received today by Robert E. Harlow, manager of the Tournament Bureau of the Professional Golfers Association, in a cable from the secretary of the Japan Golf Association.

While this will be the first time the Japanese professionals have competed in America, they have been in competition in exhibition matches against Walter Hagen, Joe Kirkwood, Bill Mehlhorn and Bobby Cruickshank, who have visited Japan. These American players state that Yasuda and Asami are capable for finishing among the leaders in open tournament played in America.

PREP ELEVEN BOOKING.

The Notre Dame Preps, entrants in The Post's Capital City League, are seeking games with out-of-town teams in the 135-pound division. Baltimore elevens are particularly challenged. Teams interested should call Manager Louis Evry at Lincoln 1329, or address him at 1385 F street northeast.

C. U. SECONDS WILL SEE ACTION

Cardinal Reserves to Get Chance Against St. Francis.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S reserve material, who have worn deep grooves in the benches while the few Cardinal iron-men have been bringing new fame to the institution all year, are expected to have their day, or their night, tomorrow after dusk when the undefeated Catholics tackle St. Francis, of Loretto, Pa., at 8:15 o'clock.

While Catholic University's board of grid experts are not underestimating the ability of the visitors, it will be the understudies of the team who will bear the brunt of the punishment tomorrow night. The team, however, will not be completed by reserves. Charley McVean and Johnny Oliver will attend to all quarter back matters, while Carl DeMello and the District's leading scorer, Tom Whalen, both will be called on by coach and C. U. supporters alike to show the home folks the way to do it.

A slight change was made in the first team yesterday, as a result of Tom Nally's illness. His place at left tackle has been taken by Phil Cross and Bingo Flynn has been moved over to right. Flynn's work has pleased the coaching staff in no small way. His 200-pound bulk and his drive give the Cardinals a real asset in him.

St. Francis' three teams will come to town late today, and work out under the lights tonight. Tomorrow night's game will be the team's second in three days, since they engaged St. Vincent's at Latrobe, Pa., yesterday, and came out of the fray a 20-0 loser. The Saints, two years ago held the unbeaten and irrepressible Western Marylanders to 7-0.

It will be C. U.'s only night game here.

AIDS GAME

JOSHUA EVANS, JR.,
president of the District National Bank, who has been appointed treasurer for the committee in charge of the big charity game scheduled here December 12.

Three Auto Records For Ernie Triplett

Oakland, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, exceeded three American dirt track automobile speed records here today.

In the main event at Oakland speedway, he broke his own record for 50 miles with a mark of 31 minutes, 53 2-10 seconds. The old mark was 33 minutes 48 8-10 seconds.

The Los Angeles speedster swept to victory over the 10-mile course with a record of 6 minutes 22½ seconds. His third record was established in the time trials, when he drove a mile in 36 8-10 seconds.

SZABO FACES ROEBUCK ON MAT

Power vs. Speed in Feature at Auditorium Tonight.

IT'S rassle night again tonight at the Auditorium, and Mr. Turner has fetched not a little class from the grunt and growl stockade for exhibition on the local mat. There is, for instance, Sandor Szabo, a very cagey foreigner, who will meet one of the original Americans in Tiny Roebuck. This is the feature event. Roebuck outweighs Szabo by a mere 47 pounds, but the issue is somewhat in doubt.

Rumors flew fast yesterday to the effect that Mr. Turner had sent emissaries to Jim Londos with a view to engaging Roebuck's chassis here some time later this month. The former all-American tackle is improving rapidly, in the opinion of the boys, and deserves a chance at the nimble Greek. Be that as it may, tonight's bout bears certain earmarks of being one of the best put on here for some time.

If sheer power is going to win tonight, there does not seem much use for Sandor to come over from Baltimore. Roebuck is one of the strongest men in the trade, as any one can testify who saw his match with Ray Steele some weeks back at the ball park. He seems to know all the holds, has cut out much of the hippodroming, and picked up gems of experience along wrestling's busy road.

Szabo has not a losing habit, however. He won 46 straight bouts before going down before Carl Pojello.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN DULLER MARKET

Traders Refuse to Follow Early Rally; Turnover 1,501,597 Shares.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Lacking an incentive to do otherwise, stocks eased slowly today.

American and Canadian grain exchanges were closed for the holiday, but in Liverpool wheat sold off more substantially than had been indicated by yesterday's declines on this side of the Atlantic. Trading in silver was still active, again at lower quotations. Bar metal dropped 1⅞ cents to 35¾ cents an ounce following a break at London.

Considerable activity appeared in rail stocks during the morning, when New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and Chesapeake Corporation, among others, rallied, but the general market refused to respond to this bait and the advance petered out. Several rails closed a point lower.

Position of Steels.

Steels failed to find inspiration from the Iron Age report of the third successive weekly increase in operations. Doubtless the industry's firmer tone had been discounted as a market factor. However, gains in sentiment are not being supported by a notable volume of specifications, although automobile tonnage is expected to pick up as the month wears along. Rail orders, it is now thought, may go over to the new year.

Final stock prices were again moderately above the lows, although the market was too indolent to support much of a late rally. United States Steel closed at 71, off 1⅜, after touching 70¾. American Can, American Telephone, General Electric, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of New Jersey and National Biscuit were off from ¾ to slightly more than a point. Western Union broke to a new minimum and finished 3¼ lower.

Metal shares seemed disconcerted by the decline in silver and the prolonged production curtailment negotiations. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol rallied. The turnover was only 1,501,597 shares.

Austrian Bank Rate.

Reduction in the Austrian National Bank rate was a favorable symptom, indicating more satisfactory conditions in that country whose difficulties early last summer preceded the troubles of Germany and England. Foreign exchanges generally eased against the dollar, sterling closing 2½ cents lower at $3.78 for cables. The Japanese yen, however, firmed to 49.15 against parity of 49.8.

The money markets continue dull and banking circles anticipate no noticeable strengthening or rates over the balance of the year despite holiday requirements. Relatively easy money would be an important help to the Treasury which faces a heavy December financing schedule.

Cotton trading was dull, in line with activity on the security exchange. Futures closed 35 to 50 cents a bale lower.

Pennsylvania Banks Announce Mergers

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Merger of the First National Bank of Turtle Creek with the Turtle Creek Savings & Trust Co., effective tomorrow, was announced today by F. M. Morrow, president of the new bank. The new institution will have resources of more than $3,000,000.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Consolidation of the Lincoln Bank of Erie and the Bank of Erie Trust Co. was announced today. Beginning tomorrow, all business will be handled from the quarters of the Bank of Erie Trust Co., under which name the merged institutions will operate.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum Plans Capital Changes

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A special meeting of stockholders of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation is expected to be called within the next few weeks to vote on a reorganization of the capital structure, which will involve the issuance of about $12,000,000 debentures. The proceeds of the financing will be used for working capital and for the repayment of bank loans.

Plans involve, it is understood, the reduction of the capital stock by about 75 per cent and the issuance to the subscribers of the debentures of new shares that will replace those canceled.

Three Banks in Passaic Complete Consolidation

Passaic, N. J., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The merger of three of this city's leading banks, forming one institution with total deposits of more than $20,000,000 was announced today.

The Peoples' Bank & Trust Co., the City Trust Co., and the Lincoln National Bank disclosed their merger had been passed by the State Board of Bankink and Insurance and their respective board of directors yesterday. Nicholas H. Dosker, who has been president of the Bankers Association of Kentucky and executive in several of the large banks in Louisville, his home for several years, is expected to be selected as president.

Lehigh Valley Railroad Orders 20 Locomotives

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The Lehigh Valley Railroad has placed an order for twenty high speed freight locomotives, divided equally between the American Locomotive Co., and the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

The order is the largest for railway locomotives placed this year. The new engines will be delivered to the Lehigh Railroad early next year.

Winchester Arms Plans To Terminate Company

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Directors of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. have called a special meeting of the stockholders for December 2 to act on a proposal to terminate the corporation's existence.

A foreclosure decree to sell the company December 15 to the Western Cartridge Co. was issued yesterday by Judge Carroll C. Hincks in United States District Court.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Call money, steady; 2½ per cent all day. Time loans, steady; 60 days, 3½; 90 days, 3¾@4; 4-6 months 4 per cent. Prime commercial paper, 4 per cent. Bankers' acceptances unchanged. Bar silver, weak and 1/8 lower at 35¾ on Chinese selling in London.

FOREIGN BONDS LEAD MARKETS IN DECLINE

Trading Is Lower in Volume; Federal Issues Record Gains at Close.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The bond market staged a narrow, irregular decline today as activity shrank. Sales on the Stock Exchange amounted to $8,022,000, compared with $13,580,000 on Tuesday. Today's total is the smallest for a full session since August 31, when the turnover was $6,635,000. Trading in the over-the-counter market dried up also.

Foreign loans scored many of the larger losses. The downward movement in domestic corporate bonds was principally a matter of minor fractions. The trend was more apparent in the rail and public utility loans than in the industrials. The average price of 60 corporate bonds was only two-tenths of a point lower at 84.5.

However, Argentine, German, Belgian, Brazilian and Chilean and Chilean loans showed varying degrees of weakness. The trading in almost all of these bonds was extremely dull. The German 5½s of 1965, the 7s of 1949 and German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of July and October, 1960, provided a large turnover. Japanese 5½s and 6½s sold off but recovered somewhat before the close. Other obligations of that nation were barely steady.

Another evidence of the lackadaisical nature of the market appears in the Liberty and Treasury issues. Aggregate sales of this group approximated $500,000, an unusually small total. They wavered, but gradually worked higher to close with general, if narrow, gains.

Trading in corporate obligations was limited to a few small sales in most instances and no sales of any sort were reported in a large number of issues. Armour 4½s and 5½s, New York Central new 4½s, Nickel Plate 6s of 1932, American & Foreign Power 5s, Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Rock Island refunding 4s, Goodrich 6s and International Match 5s made some of the larger losses.

POWER REGULATION OF U.S. QUESTIONED

Issue Is Raised in Letter by Gov. Roosevelt's Commission.

New York, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The extent of the Federal Government's right to regulate the development and disposal of electrical energy from water power in an individual State was questioned today by the head of Gov. Roosevelt's power commission.

The issue was raised in a letter Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the power authority of the State of New York, wrote to Secretary of State Stimson regarding the St. Lawrence River power development, which for months has been the subject of a controversy in which President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt have figured.

In the letter Walsh referred to "apparent inconsistencies" in a communication he had received from Secretary Stimson.

Several months ago Gov. Roosevelt asked President Hoover by letter if any secret negotiations were going on between the Federal Government and Canada over the St. Lawrence project and declared the State should be represented. Last week Secretary Stimson replied by letter. One paragraph of his answer read:

"Whatever the rights of the State of New York may be in respect to any electric power developed by the navigation project on the river along the international boundary, utilization of that electric power must in the end depend upon the authority and permission of the Federal Government."

To which Mr. Walsh replied in the letter dispatched today:

"This sentence seems to be open to the interpretation that the United States Government, after discharging its duty and exhausting its authority with respect to the improvement of navigation and commerce along the river, and the protection of traffic thereon, possesses additional authority or power over the development and disposal of the electric energy to be generated, and that the development and disposition of such power by the State of New York must depend upon the authority and permission of the Federal Government.

"The assumption of such authority by the Federal Government would amount to a denial of the sovereign and proprietary interest of the State in the waters of the St. Lawrence River, and the lands lying thereunder within its boundaries, and of its right to develop and dispose of the hydroelectric power derived therefrom, subject only to the condition that the plans for its development are in conformity with the plans of the United States Government for the promotion and protection of navigation and commerce.

"The power authority feels an unfavorable answer to this question might conceivably frustrate the desire for harmony and cooperation expressed in your communication, and to the achievement of which the power authority stands ready to give its earnest and conscientious effort."

Natalie C. Barney Inherits Estate

Capital Woman to Share Fortune of Mother, Noted Author.

Among the beneficiaries in the estate of the late Mrs. Alice Pike Barney, widely known author and playwright, who died October 12 in California, is a daughter, Miss Natalie C. Barney, of Washington. Mrs. Barney's will was filed for probate yesterday at Los Angeles, and is believed to involve approximately $100,000.

The Washington woman will receive one-third of the estate to be used in educational projects. Another third goes to Mrs. Laura A. Dreyfuss-Barney, another daughter, who will use the money to publish books and to produce plays written by her mother. The remainder of the estate is left in trust for both daughters to use in the promotion of artistic, educational and social work in America, England and France.

Mrs. Barney requested that no funeral service be held at her place of death, and that no publication of the death be made. Certain personal property now at the United States National Museum here is to be kept there by the heirs, the will directs.

2 SCHOOL ANNEXES ARE DEDICATED IN WAR ON PORTABLES

Park View Platoon and Whittier Additions Are Opened.

$7,500,000 PROGRAM DESCRIBED BY BALLOU

Gilligan Declares Character Education Without Religion Without Value.

Victories in long campaigns to replace portables with adequate buildings were realized by citizens in the Park View and Manor Park communities last night when additions to two schools—the Park View Platoon and the Whittier—were dedicated.

Both ceremonies brought forth interesting revelations and views on the public school system. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, informed the large audience of parents at the Park View School that $7,500,000 is being spent on the present school building program which will continue through next year. This sum is exclusive of the new Roosevelt High School.

The audience at the Whittier was given this same information by Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools. Despite this large expenditure, accommodations will continue to lag behind, both speakers pointed out.

New Member Speaks.

Speaking at the Whittier School dedication, Henry Gilligan, board of education member, declared that "character education, which is not based on religion, is not of much value." Mr. Gilligan recently asked the board of education to consider study of a plan to make religion a basis for character education. His proposal has brought a storm of objections from various quarters.

George M. Whitwell, the newly appointed member of the Board of Education, in the principal address at the Park View School, listed as three essentials for a proper school system, "faithful and loyal teachers, adequate physical equipment and cooperation between parents and teachers." Averring that parents are inclined to shoulder the responsibilities of the home on teachers, Mr. Whitwell declared that obedience and respect for authority are two attributes that should be instilled in the child at home and that parents have no right in leaving these duties to teachers.

"I know of no city that has a finer corps of faithful, loyal and efficient teachers than Washington," Mr. Whitwell said, "and it should be a matter of only a few years before the physical needs are brought up to the level of the mental and character fitness of the teachers. Then we shall have a school system second to none.

Park View Keys Presented.

Keys of the Park View addition were presented to Miss Emily Scrivener, the principal, by Lieut. Karl B. Schilling, assistant to the engineer commissioner whose work is principally concerned with school construction.

Seldon M. Ely, supervisor of the fifth division, declared that "there is no better system of elementary school education than the platoon" which is represented in Washington only by the Park View. John S. Cole, president of Park View Citizens Association; John G. McGrath, one of the early presidents of the association and George H. Russell, another former president, also spoke.

A bouquet was presented to the principal by Mrs. George A. Corbin, president of the Park View School Parent-Teacher Association. The speeches were interspersed with music from the Park View School Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Laura F. Ward, and vocal solos by Mrs. Nina Piozet, accompanied by Mrs. Jessie Blaisdell, and Miss Ethel Roddy, accompanied by Mrs. Fred S. Walker. The Rev. Walter F. Smith pronounced the invocation and benediction. Fred S. Walker, secretary of the Park View Citizens Association, presided.

The addition to the Park View School is composed of two wings including two gymnasiums, a library and dramatic and kindergarten departments.

Whittier Addition Dedicated.

Dedication of the eight-room Whittier School addition took place in the presence of the Manor Park Citizens Association, representatives of the board of education and school officials.

Dr. Julia L. Hahn, new supervising principal of the third division, spoke on "Our Educational Program at Whittier" and outlined the system and methods which will be followed at the school.

Charles E. McGrew, of the municipal architect's office, and Miss Elsie E. Green, principal of the Whittier School, also spoke.

Mr. Henry W. Seaquist, president of the Manor Park Citizens' Association, presided. Music was rendered by members of the Paul Junior High School Orchestra and the Whittier Glee Club led by Miss Lucy E. Hopkins. Mrs. David Gates, president of the Whittier Parent-Teacher Association, spoke briefly.

Melville Church to Talk To St. Thomas Chapter

The St. Thomas Chapter, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, will hold its third annual men's dinner in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, 1772 Church street northwest, to night at 7 o'clock.

Melville Church, senior warden of the parish, will speak on his personal acquaintance and relationship with the late Thomas A. Edison. H. Lawrence Choate, former president of the national brotherhood, will speak on the work of the organization.

QUIT PORTABLES

BETTY BALLOU.

BALLOU'S CHILDREN END PORTABLE DAYS

Bobbie Enters Real School for First Time; Sister; Goes to High.

To parents whose children have suffered, or are suffering, the inconvenience of portables, here is a word of consolation.

Bobbie Ballou, the 7-year-old son of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools, bids farewell to portables for the first time in his life through the completion of the new Horace Mann School in Wesley Heights, which his father helped to dedicate last night.

Betty Ballou, the 13-year-old daughter of the superintendent, has spent five of her eight school years in portables. She is now a student at the Gordon Junior High School, which she entered last year. She spent most of her elementary school days in portables.

Bobbie is as proud and excited over the spic and span new school, as if he owned it. After three years of portables, he can't quite understand going to school in a building "that looks like a hotel."

Dr. Ballou observes that the structures in which his children and other children have attended school are not so important as what they have learned in these buildings. "Our fine teachers have given these children as splendid a preparation for future education as they would have received in the best type of building," he said.

Row Over Arrest Lands Two in Jail

Former Capital Policeman, His Wife and Friend Held in Prince Georges.

Because he objected too strenuously when Constable Carl M. Blanchard arrested his wife for reckless driving, William F. Burke, former member of the Washington vice squad, is under arrest in Prince Georges County, charged with being drunk and disorderly.

According to Blanchard, he arrested Mrs. Edna May Burke, in Hyattsville when the car she was driving forced his automobile across the sidewalk. In the car with Mrs. Burke were her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hubbard, of Mount Rainier.

Blanchard took the four to the office of Judge John F. Fainter. Here, Blanchard says, Burke hit him and Hubbard joined in the fight. Hubbard, also, was charged with being drunk and disorderly. Blanchard said it took five policemen to force Burke into a cell. Burke's bond was set at $1,000, although his wife was released on collateral of $7.50.

Malone Is Transferred After Bristol Rebuke

Following his reprimand by the Police Trial Board for discourtesy to Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol in serving a traffic summons, Patrolman Sidney F. Malone was ordered transferred from the Second to the Fourth Precinct by acting Chief of Police Ernest W. Brown.

ACTUAL VALUATION OF GAS COMPANY'S PROPERTY STARTS

Utilities Engineer Will Assist Stone & Webster, Engaged for Job.

ELECTRIC RATE CHANGE DATE STILL IN DOUBT

Decision of Supreme Court on Appeal for Dismissal Expected Soon.

Actual proceedings to establish a valuation of the Washington Gas Light Co., in accordance with an order issued at the September hearing before the Public Utilities Commission, have been started, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, announced yesterday.

Ira L. Reynolds, chief engineer of the utilities body, was assigned to assist in the survey after officials of the gas company had notified the commission of the engagement of Stone & Webster, nationally known utility experts, to make the valuation.

As soon as the valuation of the street railways is completed, which is not expected now before March 1, the commission's valuation staff will be assigned to aid in the gas company's checkup. The work will require all of next year, it is expected, and consequently there will be no rate adjustments before 1933.

Telephone Plant to Be Valued.

A valuation of the properties of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. is also scheduled to be started upon completion of the report on the traction lines.

The question of when the annual rate adjustments of the Potomac Electric Power Co. will be ordered is conjectural, due to the litigation instituted by the power company over the adoption of a new sliding scale by the commission.

A decision is expected within a few days from the District Supreme Court, however, on the motion of the utilities body to dismiss the power company's appeal. If this motion is upheld the commission will be in a position to call a rate hearing probably next month. Even though the motion is denied the case may still be settled before the end of the year.

Lower Electric Rate Seen.

Electric rates are likely to be reduced considerably despite their present comparatively cheapness if the commission's new sliding scale is upheld in court. This new arrangement not only invalidates the old consent decree under which rates have been established for the past six years, but it also gives the consumers a larger share of the excess profits of the power company and cuts its original return from 7½ to 7 per cent.

All excess earnings up to 1 per cent shall be divided 50-50 between the public and the utility; if more than 1 and less than 2 per cent, consumers will get three-fourths; whereas, if the excess profits surpass 2 per cent, five-sixths will be used in reducing rates the following year.

Charities' Officials Pay Larner Honor

Resolution of Appreciation for Work as Treasurer Adopted.

The board of managers of the Associated Charities, at a meeting in Social Service House yesterday afternoon, voted resolutions of appreciation to the memory of the late John B. Larner, who had served for several years as the treasurer of the society, and appointed a committee of the board to attend the funeral of Mr. Larner.

The large part that unemployment has played in the current year's increased volume of relief work by the Associated Charities was indicated in the statement made by the secretary to the board that in the last ten months there have been 1,043 families under care in which unemployment was the chief factor of dependency. In these families were 1,267 persons unemployed and 3,712 dependent persons. For these families the society had given $44,474.99 in various forms of relief.

John S. Meaney was elected to fill a vacancy on the board. Arthur Hellen, chairman, presided.

Coroner to Probe Mechanic's Death

Driver of Coach Which Crushed Worker Will Testify Today.

Coroner Joseph D. Rogers will preside over an inquest today in the death of Aloysius T. O'Connor, 30-year-old mechanic of the Greyhound Bus Line, who was fatally injured when a bus temporarily got out of control of another employe Monday at the company's garage.

Dewey B. Futrell, 30, 17 L street northeast, was attempting to back the truck off a grease pit when it lurched forward and crushed O'Connor against the wall. He will testify at the hearing.

The body of O'Connor, who lived at 417 I street northeast, is at the W. W. Chambers undertaking establishment. Funeral arrangements are being held up pending the inquest verdict.

Skyviews of Washington, No. 12

Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.

FLYING low over Northeast Washington this is the view you would get of the new McKinley High School development.

McKinley, of course, is the V-shaped building in the center. The broad ellipse and the terraced seats in front of the colonial facade form the school's athletic stadium, and below, to the left, may be seen the McKinley swimming pool.

COURT DISMISSES SCHOOL SITE SUITS

Justice Joseph W. Cox Rules Residents' Property Is Not Damaged.

Damage suits totaling $150,000, brought by persons living in the vicinity of Thirty-ninth and Fessenden streets northwest, because the District would damage their property by building a school at that point, were dismissed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Joseph W. Cox.

Justice Cox said that the covenants of the District gave to individuals the right to sue for damages against other individuals when their property was lessened in value, but that there was no provision holding that the Government must meet damages which might thus arise against it.

Playgrounds, parks and schools were thus exempted from the rule that where property is damaged through an allegedly objectionable building, there could be no recourse to the District. The suits ranged from $5,000 to $25,000, and among those who filed claims were Oswald Bluege, third baseman on the Washington baseball club.

The contentions of owners of adjacent property was that the erection of a school on the site would be harmful to their property values. The way is now cleared for the District to go ahead with the school.

Karrick's Estate Totals $3,000,000

Fidelity Storage Company Head Leaves Property in Trust for Widow.

The estate left by James L. Karrick, president of the Fidelity Storage Co., when he died at Pittsfield, Mass., October 19, comprised $3,000,000, a petition for probate of the will disclosed yesterday. Mrs. Henrietta B. Karrick, his widow, and David Brewer Karrick and James L. Karrick, jr., sons, asked for the probate.

The will provides that the widow and the sons are to hold the estate in trust for the life of Mrs. Karrick. Upon her death the estate is to be divided between the sons. The estate is made up of real estate assessed at $2,787,680; cash of $26,393.20; dividends and salary from the storage company of $22,752.86; furniture worth $10,000, and securities valued at $141,150.

The realty holdings include the Monmouth Apartments, Portland Apartments, Fontanet Courts, Farnsboro Apartments, and the Merchandise Building. Attorney Charles H. Merillat represents the estate.

Civilization's Future Dark, Psychiatrist Tells Throng

Dr. Schmalhausen at Jewish National Forum Calls Present Generation Profoundest of All Neurotic Ages With Jazz Normal Outlet.

A dark picture of the future of civilization, with individuals, "trapped by a death psychosis," seeking an outlet in "amusement, drinks, money, power, fun," was sketched last night by Dr. Samuel D. Schmalhausen, New York psychiatrist and author, at the opening of the Jewish Community Center's national forum.

Dr. Schmalhausen portrayed the present generation, disillusioned by the war, as "the profoundest of all neurotic ages." Jazz, he said, has become the normal outlet. He declared the only alternatives are religion, impossible to many, or communism, described as "a brave attempt to overcome the psychology of death."

Dr. Schmalhausen was preceded on the rostrum by Mrs. George Hymen, president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, who defended the President's Navy reduction stand, asserting that "stern economic pressure is forcing the world to disarmament." Civilization, she declared, can not stand "another three-dimensional war."

Introduced by Chairman David Wiener, Dr. Schmalhausen, author of "Why We Misbehave," informed the forum group that "civilization is in its worst plight in history." There is a need, he said, of "rethinking" everything.

The family he defined as "a sort of interesting lunatic asylum," facing disintegrating forces so strong that it can not endure. Love, he said, has been reduced to "a contactual chumminess." He told the group that "the sissies of history" have given the world all that it has beautiful in art; that America's Edisons, Fords, Rockefellers and Presidents have all "lacked culture and a humane interest in life."

Return to Nation's First Tenets Urged

Bishop Hafey Tells Converts League Course Would End Slump.

A return to the principles upon which this republic was founded was urged as a remedy for economic depressions conditions last night by Bishop William J. Hafey, of Raleigh, N. C., at a large gathering arranged by the local chapter of the Converts League of the Catholic Daughters of America, of which Bishop Hafey is national director.

Those three tenets of the founders of the Nation—a virile religion, stability of the home and common honesty between men—if followed more rigidly would soon bring the Nation back to spiritual and material prosperity, Bishop Hafey told his audience.

A short address on "Spiritual Thought" was made by the Rev. F. X. Cavanaugh, and a program of vocal music was rendered by the Georgetown University Glee Club, under the direction of Dr. Edwin P. Donovan.

Legion Auxiliary to Ask National Recognition

With election of new officers scheduled for Saturday night at the Willard Hotel, the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion Auxiliary will again prepare for formal recognition by the national headquarters of the American Legion.

Cornwell Is Fined After Police Trial

Plea Wins Light Penalty for Sleeping on Guard at Legation.

Fatigue from carrying water to his drought-stricken family in Falls Church, Va., and extra duty caused Private Hugh F. Cornwell to fall asleep in an automobile on his detail from the Fourteenth Precinct to guard the Legation of El Salvador, he told the police trial board yesterday, during his hearing on a charge of neglect of duty to which he had pleaded guilty. The tribunal extended him the penalty of the loss of two days annual leave.

Sergt. William P. Barnes testified he found Cornwell asleep at his post outside the legation, which had been under police guard since the attack on the minister, Dr. Leiva. Sergt. Barnes also appeared in defense testimony, telling the board of Cornwell's good record.

Private Joseph Burns, of the Second Precinct, was recommended to the Commissioners for dismissal by the board, after Sergt. Joseph Harrington said he found Burns staggering under the influence of liquor while guarding a prisoner at Gallinger Hospital. Burns pleaded guilty.

Red Cross Finds West In Less Need Than East

Support for various regional relief campaigns to aid the unemployed was asked by James J. McClintock, vice chairman of the American Red Cross, at the weekly meeting of the Washington Lions Club in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. Mr. McClintock reported on conditions throughout the country, saying that he had found the West was less in need than many Eastern cities.

Plans for the annual ladies' day meeting of the club in the Mayflower next Wednesday were discussed. Arrangements are being handled by a committee of which Charles Hillegeist is chairman. President Edgar Brawner presided.

Man Writes to Landlady Of Intention to Kill Himself

Adjuring his landlady—a distant relative—to say nothing to police or the newspapers, Charles Houston, 46 years old, a native of Hapeville, Ga., sent her a special delivery letter yesterday announcing his intention of first taking a number of poison tablets and then casting his body into the Potomac River.

Mrs. Jesse Wendell, the landlady, reported the case to police. She said Houston had called her by telephone yesterday, as had become his custom, and talked of minor matters, and that a short time later the letter arrived. The letter stated that he had taken away a bottle of poison tablets she had around the house and that he intended to swallow them. Mrs. Wendell searched for the tablets and found them missing.

Houston was still missing at a late hour last night.

CATHOLIC HIERARCHY REVIEWS PLANS FOR RELIEF OF JOBLESS

Meeting of Bishops Is To Seven Conferences Will Study Unemployment.

WIDE RANGE OF CHURCH ACTIVITY IS DISCUSSED

Increase of Immigrant Work Caused by Restrictions Is Emphasized.

Four large industrial conferences were held last year and seven more are scheduled for this year as part of the widespread service the department of social action is giving in the matter of unemployment, the Right Rev. Thomas F. Lillis, Bishop of Kansas City, reported yesterday at the annual meeting of Catholic Bishops of the United States, at Catholic University.

The Bureau of Civic Education of the department has aided the foreign-born and presented to the American people the Catholic principle that religion supplies the highest and noblest motives for the discharge of civic obligations, he said. The bureau has also conducted research for the White House Conference on Child Health, and assisted in instructing the rural population through its Rural Life Bureau, according to the report.

The meeting, which will continue today, heard reports bearing on many phases of the church's activities, including the press, lay organizations and immigration.

Work in Immigration.

The bureau of immigration of the National Council of Catholic Women found a decided decrease in the number of individual cases to handle this year, because of restricted immigration measures, but the bureau was confronted with an increase of work and more intricate problems, the Right Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Cleveland, reported.

Three factors—the economic depression, arbitrary restriction of immigration, and the drive to rid the country of undesirable aliens—operated simultaneously to afflict the immigrant and foreign-born resident, the report declared. The immigration bureau handled 20,000 immigrant cases during the year, conducting 64,000 interviews and helping 36,935 persons, according to Bishop Schrembs.

The National Council of Catholic Women, which recently closed a convention in Washington, now has committees at work on the development of unified programs for girl welfare, immigration, industrial problems, study clubs and social service, the report stated.

Birth Control Opposed.

The council, Bishop Schrembs said, has opposed anti-Christian and unmoral legislation, particularly legislation and propaganda favoring birth control.

There is a substantial educational concern in radio, the report of the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., Archbishop of Cincinnati, said in presenting the report of the Department of Education. The possibilities of the use of radio for educational purposes are obviously great, he said, adding that there are 50 educational radio stations in operation, five of which are under Catholic auspices.

The report of the executive department of the conference, presented by the Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco, told of the establishment of a Latin-American Bureau of the N. C. W. C. last year.

He said that the Catholic Church in the United States has done much to bring Catholics in the Americas closer together, and declared that the new bureau will strengthen and carry forward this work. Exchange of scholarships, interchange of information and efforts toward a more complete understanding of mutual aims and problems will be among subjects to which the bureau will give its attention, he said.

HIGH SCHOOLS HELD SHORT IN FACILITIES

Ballou Report Suggests 3 Ways to Meet Problem of Congestion.

Washington high schools will lack proper facilities for 2,466 pupils next February when the rising tide of children flows from lower schools, and this overflow will only be reduced to 2,166 by February, 1933, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, reveals in the section of his annual report devoted to accommodations.

Facilities at the beginning of the present school year were lacking for 2,936 pupils, the report shows.

Similar accommodation shortages, but not so serious, exist in the elementary and junior high schools, he says. February 1 there will be a lack of facilities for 5,486 pupils in the junior high schools, but this total will be reduced to 3,361 by February 1, 1933.

The needs in these schools September 1 were 7,806 short. This total was increased by loss of Columbia Junior High School, which diverted 1,000 more pupils into other schools.

Elementary schools will be short 182 classrooms in February. This number will be reduced to 124 by February, 1933. Shortage in classrooms at beginning of the present school year was 337.

The superintendent makes this forecast more than a year ahead by estimating the number of pupils that will be graduated from elementary and junior high schools. Population and expected growth partly forms the basis for estimate of elementary school requirements. The repart gives a detailed study of new buildings and transfers. In a future report Dr. Ballou will reveal the sum being expended on school construction in Washington.

The superintendent suggests three means of relief for high school congestion: Elimination of grade 9 from senior high schools, transfer of available buildings to senior high school use and appropriations for new buildings. He believes that the problem can be solved through adoption of any one of these suggestions.

Operators Not to Strike At Fox, Says Manager

Harry W. Crull, managing director of the Fox Theater, announced last night that the reported walkout of motion picture operators would not take place. The difficulties between the operators and Fox theaters throughout the country have been settled to the satisfaction of everyone concerned.

First rumors of the walkout came from the Middle West. Other rumors stated that musicians and stage hands would also go out.

Garfield Civic Group To Form Relief Body

W. H. Lewis, president of the Garfield Civic Association, last night was directed by that body, which met in the Garfield School, to form a relief committee for the purpose of investigation of cases of unemployment and consequent suffering during the forthcoming winter.

Officers who were elected included W. H. Lewis, president; W. D. McCain, vice president; Richard Chase, treasurer; W. R. Giles, secretary; W. P. Taylor, chaplain.

Citizens Association Asks Saving of Tenley School

The Board of Education will be urged to save the old Tenley School building for use as a community center until the Reno Center becomes an established fact, the American University Park Citizens Association voted at a meeting held at Hearst Hall last night. Under present plans the building is to be razed in February.

Everett Dix, a representative of the American Red Cross, spoke on activities of that organization. The meeting was the first of the year for the association and a number of committee reports were received.

Dr. E. A. Walsh to Reply Again to George B. Shaw

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, will be heard again over the radio this afternoon in a further reply to George Bernard Shaw's recent talk to Americans about Russia.

The Georgetown educator will commence speaking at 4 o'clock over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. As on October 18, when he first replied to the British writer, his talk will last half an hour. Dr. Walsh was invited by the Columbia officials to make a second reply on account of the unusual interest created among radio audiences by his first address.

Ether Overcomes Trooper Using It in Cleaning Boots

Fumes of ether pervaded an apartment building at 950 Twenty-fifth street northwest yesterday and an alarmed tenant called police. When a crew from the Third Precinct station broke in a door they found Staff Sergt. Walter Bishop, 43 years old, unconscious by the side of a half gallon container of the anesthetic.

The man was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, where it was said last night his condition was not serious. Members of the hospital staff said Sergt. Bishop was cleaning boots with the fluid. Sergt. Bishop is attached to the office of the chief of cavalry in the War Department.
